AMUSEMENTS.

To-Day's Closing Performances—Attractions Next Week.

Mr. Arthur Rehan's company of comedians can only be seen twice more at the Grand in "Nancy & Co."—this afternoon and to-night. They give a finished performance of a sparkling comedy. Next week the attraction will be "A Night Off." This piece requires no commendation to theatre goers. It was one of last season's hits in the comedy line, having run through two successful engagements. In the hands of a first-class company, it will be as enjoyable and laughable as ever.

"Capt. Mishler" will be the bill at the Toronto House this afternoon, and to-night Gus Williams closes his engagement with "One of The Finest." Mr. Charles Manbury's company will occupy the boards all next week in "The Wages of Sin." It is a powerful melodrama from the pen of Mr. Frank Harvey, possesses an interesting story, which is well told, exhibits remarkable constructive ability, abounds in entertaining incidents, shows many excellent types of character, and altogether is a play which unquestionably deserves a successful run, the company being efficient.

Two last performances of "The Mikado" at Horticultural Gardens this afternoon and to-night.

The members of Philharmonic Society meet in their hall on Tuesday night next at 8 o'clock for enrolment and their first practice. Members of the Festival Chorus, who intend to join the society, will also be present, or failing this may send in their names to the secretary, Mr. C. G. Hallowell. The committee of the society will undoubtedly meet with much public support in their determination to present for this season more varied programs of orchestral and vocal selections than the "Creation" of the past season. The program outlined for the first concert is bright and sparkling, in addition to the cantata that created so much enthusiasm at the last Birmingham Festival, "The Spectres' Bride," by Dvorak.

The Toronto Vocal Society.

The Toronto Vocal Society held its first meeting for the season on Thursday evening last in its own hall, corner Yonge and Alexander streets, which has been refitted and made in every way more suitable to the requirements of the society. The attendance was large and gratifying, while the spirit manifested by the members gave promise of a successful season. The President, J. K. Kerr, Q.C., was present and made a brief address and some others of the officers were also heard from. The desire was expressed that as many as possible of the old members who were not present should be numbered among the society's active participants this year. It is arranged that the first practice shall take place on Monday evening next, 13th inst., at 8 o'clock sharp.

R. R. Martin & Co.'s Fine New Drug Store.

Citizens going west must have noticed the fine drug store recently opened at Queen and Simcoe-streets, where Sloan's grocery store stood. It is undoubtedly one of the finest of the kind in Toronto. Its proprietors are Robert R. Martin & Co., who succeeded H. J. Rose and carried on business at that well-known stand at Yonge and Queen. Lately, however, their trade grew so large that they were compelled to look around for more commodious premises. They have now got a corner where the retail drug business of Toronto is sure to gravitate. All their departments are complete. Their dispensary is conducted on such principles that a person can bring in a prescription, no matter what it may be, and have it filled in not more than five minutes. This is something to boast of, as in most stores it take fifteen minutes to mix an ordinary prescription. The firm has spared no expense in procuring the latest machinery for their wholesale trade, which extends all over Ontario. Their specialties in the retail line are perfumery, the finest of toilet requisites, foreign products in brushes, etc. They are in a position to offer advantages to physicians, as their laboratory and wholesale department is a main feature of their business. The store is open all night and the clerk is a graduate of the Ontario School of Pharmacy. As their stock embraces everything usually kept in such stores, and their prices are close, they must in a short time secure a large share of the patronage of westenders who pass along Queen-street. In choosing the corner of Queen and Simcoe streets, Messrs. Martin & Co. have shown themselves to be business men with their eyes open.

Visitors to Exhibition.

Visitors attending Toronto fair should not fail to call and see the fine display of hair goods as ladies' bangs, waves, wigs, switches, etc., at Dorenwend's Paris Hair Works, 103 and 105 Yonge-streets. Mr. Dorenwend will be personally at the store during the fair and attend to all that are wanting something in his line. He keeps the best lin in hair goods in Canada. x

Married in Separate States.

From the Indianapolis Journal.

A whimsical marriage took place in the eastern part of the state last Saturday during an excursion from Lafayette to Dayton, O., over the Lake Erie and Western Railway. While the train was crossing the dividing line between Indiana and Ohio it was stopped by an accommodating conductor, and David Clark, residing near Mulberry, candidate for Sheriff of Clinton County, assisted off the cars a lady named Mrs. Mary Hawkins of Lafayette. The gentleman placed himself on the Indiana side of the line and the lady on the Ohio side. A minister in attendance for the purpose straddled the dividing line, and soon pronounced the couple man and wife. The whole 800 passengers on the train formed a circle around the central figures in this singular marriage and gave them three cheers, the ever-present photographer secured a negative, the band played, and the train started up with everybody happy.

A Pretty Girl With a Whistle.

Cor. of Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

I suppose that the English people do like this sort of thing. They are easier pleased with mediocrity than any people I ever saw. Anything that any amateur does for their amusement they regard as very clever, and are unstinting in their praise. There is a young lady in London who whistles. She was invited one evening to whistle at a reception where I happened to be, and I heard her. I was sitting pretty near the piano. She played her own accompaniments, and she whistled a shrill sort of whistle through her closed teeth. Anything less interesting as an entertainment could hardly be imagined. Any boy who walks the streets could beat her fifty times over on her own grounds, and there are very few American girls who whistle at all who could not whistle much better. Yet she is quite famous in fashionable society as a whistler, and the Queen heard so much of her wonderful powers in this direction that she was invited to whistle to Her Majesty. I did not hear how the Queen was pleased, but I have no doubt she was like the rest of the English people, and thought it a remarkable performance. Now, I have heard whistling that was remarkable. There is a colored man that whistles through the streets of New York that the Queen might hear with edification; and I have heard Wilhemj whistle. It is not often that you can induce him to do so; but if you can, you can have a treat. The tones that he makes are exactly like the tones that he gets from his violin. I do not think that I could stand a season of English receptions if they furnish nothing more enlivening than Mrs. Potter's recitations and this young lady's whistling.

Grateful for a Favor.

A tough-looking man entered the sanctum of a San Francisco paper recently and said to the inmate: "Are you the editor?" "Yes, sir," was the reply. "Well, I have come to see you about a piece in your paper one day last week which says that my wife, who keeps a candy store on —— street, is rather fond of the society of young men." "I assure you," said the editor, as he cast his eyes around the room in search of some weapon of defence, and seeing none, looked out of the window to calculate the distance to the ground, "I had nothing to do with the publication of that article, and the reporter who wrote that article was discharged last Saturday. But I will have the false publication corrected with pleasure." "Corrected? Why, I wouldn't have it corrected for $500. I expect to make a fortune out of it. My wife sold more candy this week than she did the whole six months before; and as I am not the man to forget a favor I just came around to pay for the advertisement. Here's $25, and if you will put in another piece next week and make it a little stronger I'll pay you $50."

Try this on Your Friend:

"Mamma, did you say that your eyes couldn't eat?" Yes, I said so." "Can't your eyebrows?" Mamma went off into a dead faint.

THE SEA SERPENT.

Portrait of the Monster from Descriptions by Capt. Robert Brush.

From a careful description of Capt. Robert Brush, of the schooner Mary Ann, we are enabled to present our readers with an accurate engraving of the sea serpent seen in the Hudson river by the captain, and by many others on several occasions since.

THE SEA SERPENT.

There seems to be no longer any doubt of the existence of this marine monster. For a century or more similar serpents have been seen and described, but the stories have been discredited until this summer, when, through the persistence of the monster in exhibiting itself, it can no longer be considered a myth.

In the last century a missionary to Greenland describes such a monster. This was on July 6, 1734. Soon after this the bishop of Bergen, a member of the Copenhagen Academy of Sciences, published a "Natural History of Norway," in which he collects considerable evidence to prove the existence of this serpent. In 1817 the sea serpent was first seen opposite Gloucester, Mass., and the Linnaen society of New England, after carefully investigating the alleged apparition, reported that it considered the testimony obtained "sufficient to place the existence of the animal beyond doubt." On Aug. 6, 1848, Capt. McQuahe, in command of the Daedalus of the Brisish navy, encountered a sea serpent. But this year the monster has been seen several times, notably off Gloucester on the Massachusetts coast and in the Hudson river and by highly creditable witnesses. If the animal is not eventually captured, it is to be hoped at least a photograph of him may be obtained when the accuracy of our picture of him will be established.

Dominion Organ and Piano Company.

Nowhere did the thousands of children who gathered on the Exhibition grounds yesterday seem to enjoy themselves more than in the pavilion of the Dominion Organ and Piano Company, and thither all afternoon crowds flocked eager to see and hear the handsome instruments and to secure the attractive cards which the company, well known for its artistic and beautiful advertising matter, through Mr. Ruse and his courteous assistants, was distributing with characteristic liberality and profuseness, careful to reach if possible each child. Many were the curious comments made by these young wise heads upon the beauty and sweet music of these instruments. Some of the larger, with remarkable quick intelligence, gathered the strange names of the fancy wood pianos, and it was interesting to watch them point out each and repeat it to the younger ones—such names as Brazilian Thuya wood, Turkish cherry Burle, mahogany crotch, Italian walnut Burle, silver grey maple, American curly walnut, ebony and gold, and so on. Many evinced a knowledge of the geography and products of the foreign countries from which these woods came, as well as the countries to which the pianos and organs of this company were sent, that was astonishing, and proved how careful their educational training had been. These children will long remember this exhibition, and if they go home with brighter memories and more tentative recollections of the exhibit of the D. O. and P. Co. than of all else they saw and heard, it can but be jotted down as a just tribute to the energy and master management of this company and their unprecedented display.

Prince Alexander of Bulgaria.

All Europe woke up one fine morning recently and were dumbfounded at the news that Alexander, the apparently popular governor, whom the great powers had appointed over Bulgaria, had been hustled from his throne. It occurred so unexpectedly that it required days before the perpetrators of the deed could be determined. They were instigated by some government, undoubtedly, but this is not so easy to locate. The wiley Muscovite publishes an oily statement denying the charge that they had anything to do with it. It is a question that may remain as far from a solution as the one in regard to the party who assaulted "Billy Patterson."

PRINCE ALEXANDER.

The sympathies of the outside world will naturally be with the unfortunate prince and against his enemies, because he is so handsome for one thing. If he doesn't get his princedom securely back again and retain it he ought to, simply because he looks so much the prince. He is a brother of that German Henry of Battenberg who married Queen Victoria's daughter Beatrice. European nations naturally wondered what England was going to do about it, and English papers hastened to assure the world that England was going to do—nothing.

Russia is believed to have been at the bottom of the plot to depose him. It was a thoroughly Russian trick, that of surrounding him entirely with conspirators, then waking him from sleep, telling him he was deposed and marching him over the border.

However, there came in an element which Russia had not counted on. Next day his people rose in a rage and declared they would not have it, that Alexander was the prince of their choice and they would have him back. It seems to be the first time in the history of those regions that the people have had anything to say about anything.

Tale of the Two Alexanders.

From New York Sun.

The antagonism between the Prince and the Czar is not of modern birth or later growth. It dates far back, from the time when they were both children. They used to meet every year at Darmstadt. The Empress Marie of Russia was in the habit of annually visiting the city of her birth to spend a few weeks with her brothers, Alexander of Hesse and the former Grand Duke Louis III. They were so much liked by the Czar Alexander II, that, in order to be near them, he had fixed his summer residence at the castle of Jugenheim, and never failed to summon near him the two little Battenberg boys, his nephews.

Prince Alexander was so particular a favorite of the Emperor that the jealous rivalry of his own sons was thereby excited. Thus were laid the seeds of the enmity which has attracted so much attention. One day at Jugenheim the little Battenberg boy, seated on the Czar's knee and toying with his orders, asked the name of one particular star. "It is the cross of St. George," answered his uncle, "a cross you will wear on your breast when you are a Russian general and have won your first victory."

At these words of his father's the Czarewitch turned away, impatiently muttering so as to be heard: "Of course all the good things must be for Germans now."

"Are you not a German yourself?" asked the dauntless little boy. "German blood flows in your veins, imperial highness."

The Czarewitch never quite forgave or wholly forgot the retort of the pampered child whom in his heart he considered as an objectionable poor relation; and there never was then or thereafter much love lost between the cousins.

Lovely Tresses Lost in the Surf.

From the Santa Cruz, Cal., Surf.

A hum of admiration issued from a crowd lying about the beach this morning, when a jauntily-attired young woman, whose most noticeable feature was a luxuriant growth of raven black hair, snugly ensconced beneath a silk swimming cap, made her appearance in the water. At the moment of her entry three very heavy breakers dashed themselves upon the sands. The effect upon half a score of female beauties bathing was, to say the least, demoralizing; but upon her of the raven tresses the surf seemed especially bent. A complete reversion of that perpendicularity incident to both man and womankind followed, and a gallant amateur at once sought out the unfortunate. Bringing her to the surface was the work of but a second for the swimmer, but in the melee with the waters the lady's hair had disappeared. A general grin on shore ensued, and those sharp enough espied the lady's assistant bravely endeavoring to hide a mass of "real natural" in a bathing hat. The lady soon left the water, and things resumed the even tenor of their ways.

About the Same.

From the Wall-street News.

"Father," he said, as he sat on his parent's knee, "have we got lots of money?"

"A pretty fair sum, my boy."

"Did we make it in Canada?"

"In Canada? How could we make it in Canada?"

"That's what I told the Smith boy, but he stuck to it that it was the same as making it in Canada. He said you compromised with the bank for half, and was allowed to return. Father, I——"

"You go to bed, sir," exclaimed the indignant father, "and if I ever hear of your playing with that Smith boy again I'll have your hide on the fence."

An Invitation.

From Life.

I.

She had my heart—she rented it awhile;
A fair-haired, blue-eyed, gentle tenantee,
And half in mischief, half in truth, in guile,
When she departed, carried off the key.

II.

And so I have a vacant heart "To let;"
The sign is pasted up all over me;
And yet I can no worthy tenant get,
Because it's locked and she has got the key.

III.

L'Envoy.

Now hath my heart to me grown worthless quite,
No other tenant would I have save thee;
Forgive your landlord's accidental slight,
Come back and you shall have it, dear, rent free.
