ST. PATRICK'S DAY

IN ST. CATHARINES.

IN ST. CATHARINES.

The grandest concert ever given in St. Joseph's convent on the evening of March 17th, in St. Nicholas. Those who had charge of the concert anticipated a large crowd, but their most sanguine expectations were more than realized in the perfect jam that sought admission when the doors opened, standing-room not being available when the curtain rose. The orchestra played some nice selections while the audience was being seated, and when the curtain rolled up it revealed a tastefully arranged and beautifully decorated stage. The concert opened with a chorus of fifty of the pupils of the Sisters' schools. During the evening Miss Ella Doyle and Miss Helen Morey sang very sweetly, and were rapturously applauded. Messrs. Abbs and Suckling rendered some beautiful selections in a highly appreciable manner. Messrs. Moore and Groves sang humorous selections, which were well rendered. A Hoop Drill, by eighteen of the younger pupils attending the Sisters' schools, excited wonder and admiration. They kept excellent time and were in perfect unison in their movements; their costume were white with yellow sashes and their hoops were fancily decorated. A pantomime, "The Angels of Buena Vista," was a most beautiful thing, and as it was recited by Miss Carrie Morton, while the others followed with gesture and expression, a feeling of emotion soon possessed the audience, who listened breathlessly to the end. But the really captivating feature of the evening was the Empire Drill, performed by eighteen young lades, led by Miss Morton as captain. The costumes worn in this drill were Empire gowns of mull, in four colors—green, rose, yellow and pink—while the captain wore white. They were as if made by one person, so much alike were they. Every young lady in the drill carried in her hand a shepher's crook tied with a bow of ribbon to match her costume. The evolutions of this drill corps were marvelous, and the effect of the mingling of colors as they marched and performed so many intricate evolutions defies description.

When the drill was over the cheers of ap-When the drill was over the cheers of applause was deafening, and everyone went home well pleased with the entertainment that had been given them.

After the concert the committee of management entertained those who took part in the concert to a supper in the Grand Central Hotel.

whose elecutionary powers, as well as her graceful, dignified appearance, so characteristic of the young ladies of Lorette, completely charmed the audience. The young lady not only displayed careful training but rare elecutionary schilities. The orchestra, led by Prof. Hulme, opened the different parts with some classical selections. Miss Rose Andrich, of Preston, most acceptably and satisfactorily performed the duties of accompanist. Dr. Vardon acted as chairman in his well-known proficient manner, and is undoubtedly a staunch Home Ruler. The entertainment closed by singing "God Save the Queen."—Gelt Reporter, March 24.

IN PERTH.

St. Patrick's Day was celebrated, as is usual in Perth, by a grand High Mass and sermon, suitable to the feast. This year nearly the whole congregation approached holy Communion. In the evening a capital programme and the opportunity of hearing Dr. Montague crowded the Town Hall to the doors so that not even standing room was to be had. Mr. Elliott presided, and in opening made the request that owing to the length of the programme there should be no encores. This was a good arrangement, as although there was no delay between the pieces it took fully three hours to get through the programme. The Harmonic Band opened the evening with Irish Airs in honor of the day, after which the puptls gave two choruses. Where all did well it might be invidious to make special mention of a few; but the second chorus of the children, "The Little Brown Church," was remarkably good and gave evidence of excellent training, as did the recitation of Miss A. Major, "The Painter of Seville." At the close of the first part Dr. Montague was introduced, and after a few remarks appropriate to the day gave a most magnificent and eloquent address on Long-fellow and his works, quoting largely, especially from his songs. He gave a sketch of his life, and compared his work with that of other poets, altogether giving a most charming address, which was listened to throughout for more than an hour with wrapt attention by the large audience. At the close of the address a motion of thanks was moved by Rev. Father Duffus, who spoke in very complimentary terms of the doctor, and at the same time took occasion to thank the addience for their magnificent turnout of all denominations, showing the kindly spirit that prevailed, and also the Harmonic Band and those who assisted. The motion was seconded by Col. Matheson, and carried with great applause. In the second part of the programme three well-arranged tableaux were very effectively put on the stage, the evening closing with the singing of the National Anthem. The committee are to be congratulated on t encored at the end of every song, some times being recalled several times in succession.

Little Miss Laura Bohannan captured the house with her singing of "The Man in the Moon." She has a sweet, melodious voice, and was handsomely dressed in pink. She moved so gracefully around on the stage that she reminded one of a fairy.

The fan drill was very gracefully executed by sixteen young ladies from Sarnia and Point Edward, who went through the various evolutions with such military precision that they won the admiration of all military men present. They went in pairs, each pair being dressed precisely alike, the funs and dresses matching in color. Those taking part were as follows: Nellie McMahon, Mary Donnelly, Phil Dennis, Annie Donnelly, Minnie McMahon, Kate Dean, Maria Donnelly, Minnie McMahon, Kate Dean, Maria Donnelly, Minnie McEachren, Kate Hefferon, Minnie Sharp and Eva Dennis.

Miss Minnie Moore has vocal powers of a highly trained and cultivated order, and is well and favorably known to Sarnia audiences as a popular vocalist. Her rendition of "Thy Blue Eyes" was enthusiastically received and earned for her the well deserved applause of the audience.
