hatter had gone as far as Suspension Bridge when he was overtaken. It is understood that they are both in charge of Governor Allen, at the jail.

IT WILL be noticed by an announcement in another column that the Government have removed the duty from a number of articles imported by manufacturers. This step is taken in pursuance of the powers granted the Government at the last Session, and is in harmony with the general policy of incidental protection which underlies our present tariff.

THE advantages of the St. Lawrence as against the Erie Canal and New York route, are being well ventilated in the Western States. These are the facts which are going the rounds of the press; wheat, Chicago to Liverpool via New York, 35c.; via Montreal, 30c.—difference 5c. per bushel; time via New York 23 days, via Montreal 17 days or a total saving by Montreal over New York of 16½ per cent. Truth is bound to prevail.

A LATE cable despatch conveys the information that the British Parliament have added three more to the list of bank holidays:—"Easter Monday, Whit Monday, the first week day in August, and the day after Christmas." On this side of the water we have anticipated this action in having long ago appropriated some of these days as days of relaxation. In the Province of Quebec the list of holidays is such a formidable one as to cause the frequent suggestion that the thing is overdone. The effect of these holidays upon the community depends very much upon how they are observed. With too many they are spent in the back rooms of saloons and taverns at gaming and drinking (notwithstanding these places are ostensibly shut) much to the detriment both of morals and pockets. Could the Chinese custom be introduced, of celebrating holidays, by everyone "paying their debts, forgiving their enemies and shaking hands all round" we should have no objection to a further addition to the list which, as matters are, we think unnecessarily extended.

THE FOLLOWING paragraph from a well-informed New York journal ascribes a Canadian origin to the Joint High Commission. It is probably news to most of our readers that the two Canadian Knights "engineered" the whole matter, or at any rate set the ball rolling, that has brought about the proposed Treaty, the draft of which appeared in Wednesday's dailies:—

"When the limited powers of the Commissioners became known, and the difficulties of the case began to be realized, there was a reaction from the first feeling; and since the unfortunate culmination of the quarrel between President Grant and Senator Sumner, a great many Americans and Englishmen have doubted still more seriously whether the Commission would result in an acceptable treaty. We believe that it will; though, as has been said, it may not be a treaty covering all the points in dispute. It was not at first intended by the British Government, who proposed the Commission, that it should deal with any but Canadian questions. Indeed, the Commission, as first proposed, had a purely Canadian origin, and grew out of certain suggestions made by Sir John Macdonald, the Canadian Premier, to the Imperial Government, and by his friend Sir John Rose, to our Government. As originally contemplated by Lord Granville, the British and Canadian members were to be but three—Sir Edward Thornton and the two Canadian Knights just mentioned. When, at the instance of Secretary Fish, the Alabama controversy was referred to the Commission, Earl de Grey and Prof. Montague Bernard were added, and Lord Tenterden, a grandson of Abbott, the famous lawyer, was made Secretary. The latter, though a Peer, is a clerk in the British Foreign Office; and Prof. Bernard, though he lectures at the Cambridge University, is also intimate with the Foreign Office papers, and in his book on "The Neutrality of Great Britain," is little other than the mouth-piece of the British Government. In connecting those two men with the work of the Commission, the Ministry signified that the British side of the Alabama question should have full justice done to it, for both Lord Tenterden and Prof. Bernard are perfectly familiar with the controversy and the British line of argument."

IN REPLYING last week to a letter from a friend, we gave an opinion upon the plethora of people in the market, offering what they considered "skilled brains," instead of what there are pro-
