Cupid In Town

By CONSTANCE D'ARCY MACKAY
Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

It was a warm morning in midsummer. The sky was intensely blue and the air rife with the smell of dust and heat parched pavements. Fifth avenue seemed as arid as a desert. Houses were closed, their blinds drawn. Malls gossiped in arcways. Instead of the pageantry of carriages which graced the street on winter afternoons there were occasional cabs, lumbering automobiles and buses filled with tourists.

I was strolling along toward the club and devoutly wishing I was any place but in town, when suddenly I espied Honoria Langham. She had come in from a house party on Long Island, and our meeting was the merest accident. I at once suggested the little Casino in Central park as a cool and inviting place for luncheon. Hon-you're giving splendid entertainments in your brownstone front I dare say we'll look back on these times we've spent together with a good deal of amusement and some regret. Don't you think so, Honoria?"

But Honoria was engaged in spearing an olive and apparently did not hear me.

"I've often wondered," she said musingly, "how it would seem to be poor. I suppose I'd make my own hats and wear ready made tailor suits and live in a little box of an apartment."

"But even a box of an apartment can be made attractive," said I. "I know of some dingy shops on the east side where one can pick up fascinating old prints and brasses for almost nothing and furniture that is a joy to discover. There's a Tuscan lamp that's waiting to send a cheerful glow over polished wood and the backs of one's favorite books, and there are curious auditions made solely to reflect the gleam of a small hearthstone—such a hearthstone as I have imagined you sitting by, Honoria, while the snow falls without, and—"

"Some of our friends would give us up," said Honoria hastily.

"We'd find better ones to take their places."

"Our greatest diversion," said Honoria, "would be the theater, and we could go so seldom that it would take us a long time to decide which play we really wanted to see."

"We'd enjoy it all the more," I declared. "And after it was over we'd go off together to some quaint cafe—oh, I know of places that you've never even dreamed of, Honoria—places where struggling poets and artists have carved their names on the tables and where a Hungarian violinist plays, not the catchy music of the concert halls, but things that are heartbreak and rapture and longing all in one. And the people we know will be supping at Sherry's or Delmonico's—all the wealthy, foolish people who haven't found out that life is ashes and faces but a picture gallery and talk a tinkling cymbal, where no love is. Are you listening to me, Honoria?"

"Yes," answered Honoria very low.

"I know it's sheer folly," said I, "this dream of mine. We've talked of it so often and decided that it was impossible. But now that we've come to the parting of the ways, do you think that the other things of life really matter so long as we miss the exquisite joy of being together? Ah, Honoria, I know it's madness—worse than madness—to ask it, but could you care enough to give up luxury for a poor duffer of a fellow who isn't worthy of you and loves you with his whole heart and soul?"

"But the heiress!"

"Oh, d—hang the heiress!"

"Dick?"

"I mean confound her! Honoria, for the last time, will you marry me?"

Honoria's answer was so low that I had to lean across the table to catch it.

"Honoria," I cried, "is it true do you really mean it?"

"Don't, Dick," said Honoria. "Those people at the other table are watching us. They'll think we are engaged!"

"But so we are!" I cried exultantly. "So we are!"

The Caribou as a Swimmer.

Clad with a coat of oily wool next his skin, the caribou is covered exteriorly with a dense pelage of fine quills. Every caribou, indeed, wears a cork jacket, and when this is prime, the creature seems on the water rather than in the water. No other quadruped that I know swims as high as the caribou.

Their speed about is so great that it takes the best of canoeists to overtake a vigorous buck. A good paddler is supposed to cover about six miles an hour, so the caribou probably goes five. There are many kinds of woodland and rough country over which the caribou cannot travel so fast as this. What wonder, then, that they are so ready to take to the water as soon as they find it in their course? Mr. Munn assured me that several times he saw caribou swim a broad bay that was in their line, though a trifling deflection would have given them easy walking along the shore to the same point and with but little increase of distance.—Ernest Thompson Seton in Scribner's.

The Terrible Cockatrice.

The explanation of the origin of that remarkable organism, the cockatrice, leaves nothing to be desired as regards accuracy of detail. We are told that "when the cock is past seven years old an egg grows within him, whereat he greatly wonders." We can well imagine the dismay of any well conducted masculine bird of that age on finding himself in such a compromising predicament, but how did he communicate his feelings to the historian? That the embryonic cockatrice had some mysterious power of self advertisement is evident, for we hear further that "a toad privily watches him and examines the nest every day to see if the egg be yet laid. When the toad finds the egg he rejoices much and at length hatches it, bringing forth an animal with the head, neck and breast of a cock and from thence downward the body of a serpent."—Pall Mall Gazette.

How Death Feels.

In a sermon at St. Pancras parish church, the bishop of London gave an indication of his views as to what the sensation of death would be like. He said: "At an operation, when you receive whatever it is that makes you for the time being insensible, you seem to be carried for the moment out of the body. You are, in fact, out of the body. The body is for the time dead. Your spirit, your mind, is perfectly active. I dare say it is the experience of many others that you seem to be swept swiftly under the stars toward your God. When you are out of the body, or seem to be, if only for a few moments, you realize what death will be."—London Telegraph.

Hydro-Power Commission.

Toronto, June 20.—A meeting of the hydro-electric power commission of Ontario was held yesterday, with all the members—Hon. Adam Beck, George Pattinson, M. P. P., and Cecil B. Smith—present. The commission is working on three reports covering the Thunder Bay, Georgian Bay and Ottawa River districts, and when these are completed the commission will cease to exist.

May Be Triple Drowning.

New Liskeard, June 20.—An upturned canoe, drifting towards Dawson's Point, in Lake Temiskaming, is the indication of a fatality which is supposed to have occurred on Saturday evening. Three unknown men of French nationality left New Liskeard in a birch-bark canoe. When last seen they were changing places far out from land, on Monday morning.

YOU PAY AFTER YOU ARE CURED

The physician who has not sufficient confidence in his own ability to cure his patient first and foremost his patient's pocket.

Dr. Goldberger's "Iron" is a permanent cure, because he never accepts incurable cases, and he is satisfied to receive his pay, after he has cured the patient.

If you have prostatic trouble, blood poisoning, bladder and kidney trouble, physical or nervous debility, etc., write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. It will receive most careful attention and a correct diagnosis of your case will be sent you free of charge.

Dr. Goldberger wishes to warn patients against trial treatments, good up solely for immediate effect, and which delude the patient, as these remedies are nothing but stimulants, which when they wear off they leave the patient in a worse condition than before he commenced treatment.

Dr. Goldberger and State Boards of Medical Examination of his standing and ability. You have nothing to lose by everything to gain. You will be satisfied to see how your case is handled. You will be told, before you accept the treatment, all the medicine, diet and transportation charges prepaid. Address: Dr. Goldberger, 265 Woodward Ave., Suite 110, Detroit, Mich., U.S.A.

An "Iron" Wedding.

An unusual festivity took place recently at Potsdam; Herr Perse, who boasts the proud title of "master carpenter to the Imperial Court," celebrated his "iron" wedding, which stands in Germany for the 70th anniversary of that event.

The old greybeard, who is a favorite at Potsdam, is 93 years of age, and his wife 86. The Emperor William made the venerable couple a present of two finely decorated vases from the Royal Porcelain factory. The Crown Prince sent a diamond pin, and Prince Eitel Friedrich appeared in person to offer his congratulations. Prince Hohenzollern conferred the Order of his house upon the "iron" bridegroom, and the garrison commander of Potsdam sent two magnificent oil paintings framed in oak; so, with all these distinctions showered upon them, it is safe to assume that no prouder and happier couple lives in Potsdam to-day than Herr and Frau Perse.

A hog requires plenty of water in his feed, but should have none in his bed.

Are You Tired, Nervous and Sleepless?

Nervousness and sleeplessness are usually due to the fact that the nerves are not fed on properly nourishing blood; they are starved nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes pure, properly nourished and all the organs of the body are run as smoothly as machinery.

Every ingredient entering into the world-famous "Golden Medical Discovery" has the unanimous approval and endorsement of the leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice. No other medicine sold through druggists for like purposes has any such endorsement.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" not only produces all the good effects to be obtained from the use of Golden Seal root, in all stomach, liver and bowels, as in dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, ulceration of stomach and bowels and kindred ailments, but the Golden Seal root used in its curative action by other ingredients such as Sarsaparilla, Black Cherry bark, Bloodroot, Mandrake root and chemically pure triple-refined glycerine.

"The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free in paper covers on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of stamps and mailing only. For 50 stamps the cloth-bound volume will be sent. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

F. B. McNamee Dies.

Montreal, June 20.—F. B. McNamee, one of the oldest and best-known citizens of Montreal, passed away early yesterday morning. Mr. McNamee, who was born in Ireland in 1828, was in his earlier years a well-known contractor, having had the rebuilding of the Lachine Canal. He also constructed the Toronto pipe line into the bay, to supply the city with its present water system.
