Who was the woman? What was her picture doing there? That's what Mary Moreland asked herself when she found the picture in her father's suit case. And she found out—but only after a series of dramatic and surprising adventures. It's a Thomas H. Ince production, "The Woman in the Suitcase," starring Enid Bennett and we're showing it for three days starting tomorrow. Don't miss it. And with this we also offer the second episode of "The Black Secret" starring dashing, daring Pearl White, a Snub Pollard comedy, and the latest Canadian Kinograms.

"Happiness a La Mode" is the story of Barbara Townsend, who wishes to make a success of married life and allows her husband, Dick, so much freedom that he attributes it to a lack of interest in him. Dorothy Mitchell takes advantage of his feelings and cajoles Dick into the idea of getting a divorce from Barbara. When he announces this to his wife, her pride asserts itself, and she acquiesces.

A frame-up, agreed to by all parties, is staged, whereby Dick is caught in a hotel room in company with another woman. With this evidence the divorce is secured and Barbara is notified that within three months she may have the final decree. Dick now begins to crave Barbara's company but she refuses to resume her former status as man and wife, while Dorothy becomes enraged with jealousy over the turn of affairs. Dick and Barbara dine together and during the course of the dinner, she is stricken ill. Dick takes her home and sends for the doctor, who pronounces it to be a case of nervous breakdown. While Dick is trying to nurse Barbara, Dorothy enters and accuses him of perfidy. Then things begin to hum, causing this delightful picture to come to a snappy and unexpected ending.

"Happiness a La Mode" comes to the Bijou Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Also Jack Dempsey in "Dare Devil Jack."

A FAN'S PRAYER.

From fledgling stars of forty; from fledgling stars of eighteen; from fledgling stars. From bathing suit comedies; from Mae Murray's classic dances; from new names for old novels; from new stories of old masterpieces; from new versions of Robert Louis Stevenson. From Theda Bara on the stage; from Alice Brady's weight-reduction methods; from missing "Pollyanna." From "Treasure Island" or "The Garage" from self-advertising directors; from 2.75 press agents; from imitators of Mary Pickford; from pseudo-morality pictures; from allegories; from names of pictures with "Sin" or "Sinners;" from George Boane Tucker's enthusiastic recognition of Frank L. Packard, author of the "Miracle Man." From producers with brilliant advertising and dull pictures; from Italian dialect titles; from French directors who cannot speak English; from Southern dialect written by Swedish scenarioists; from dialect; from Robert Gordon's miscast roles; from Charlie Chaplin's indifference; from Bessie Bariscale's recent plays from eye-strain due to Selznick's electric signs; from husbands of screen celebrities; from policeman-mothers of celebrities. From uninspired scenarioists and mechanical directors; from male ingenues; from male vampires; from female vampires from Vampires; from Universal's drawing room props; from all acting animals except Bennett's Teddy and Arbuckle's bulldog; from photographs of stars with distinguished visitors; from books by actors and actresses; from hair matress beads. From Griffith's harassed heroines; from "educational" pictures of coffee-raising heroines; from advertisements which theatres get paid to run and you pay to see; from "educational" with trademarks slyly sneaked in; from use of screen to advertise butcher, baker, and candlestick maker; from screen reviews by Baron Munchausen and other editors of newspapers-motion picture departments; from fat second rate grand opera singers; from stars who wear fussy clothes; from fresh ushers; from the Henry Ford Weekly that you pay real money to sit through.

From these things, and many more, Good Lord, Deliver Us.

Thomas H. Ince presents ENID BENNETT

ENID BENNETT has scored again! A romance brimming with fun and adventure, yet big with the things that count in human lives.

SHE advertised for a live young man to show her the "sights of New York. Then she went the "rounds." At length she met the woman who was wrecking her home, and—you'll want to see what happened after that!
