TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

Contributed by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Hamstead, N. B.

Rise up ye Women that are at Ease

God never fails to find the man
When mighty deeds are waiting
For full protection of his plan.
Some new, subtle plotting,
When wrong has trampled o'er the land,
And widens his oppressor's hand.

To-day His voice is heard, and some
Have listened to its calling;
O men heroic, listen, come;
On your feet the need is falling.

Come to the field of active strife,
With brain and heart on fire;
A nation looks to you for life,
In you is its desire.

Put self aside, O man, to-day;
Be blind to all ambition;
The God who calls, he will not stay
His will till it is finished.

Your strength is needed in this hour,
When truth and best endeavor
Are called to wield a mighty power,
And build a last for evermore.

Come at the call, some future day
When human wrongs are righted,
Our land redeemed from sorrow's sway,
Its heroes shall be knighted;

And priceless crowns of fame
No kings of earth are wearing;
Shall bear untarnished every name,
In all its triumphs sharing.

—Good Templar's Watchword.

THE "SHEDDEN IDEA"

"What would Jesus do?" is the question the author of "In His Steps" will attempt to answer from the standpoint of the editor of a daily newspaper.

Beginning with March 13, the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon will for one week assume entire editorial and business control of the Topoka Daily Capital, the publisher of this leading newspaper of Kansas thus making it possible for him to practically demonstrate his conception of the Christian daily paper as set forth in his famous book.

Last July, in Detroit, Mr. Sheldon started the Christian Endeavor controversy by the question, "In the day, when shallan pray? significantly inquires for its institutions of learning, is there a man who, recognizing the potency of the public press to make or mar our civilization, will contribute a million dollars to establish a daily Christian newspaper?" It is in response to the wide spread interest evoked by what has come to be known as the "Sheldon idea," that the Capital has made and Mr. Sheldon, has accepted this unique offer.

Mr. Sheldon's "Sheldon" thought his books the world over. "In His Steps," which less than three years ago was read as a serial to Sunday evening congregations in a small church in Topoka, has been published in fourteen different languages, and been read by twenty million people. Its message appeals to men and women of all classes and conditions and creeds and to those with no creed at all. The whole of Christendom will watch with keenest interest this new development in modern journalism, and millions will pray that the experiment will be the beginning of better and purer methods in that great "institution of learning," the public press.

A TRIBUTE.

It is not every eminent man who has honor in his own city. Men of wide reputation are often discounted by too intimate acquaintance. As I travel over this continent I am asked again and again: You are from Topoka. What about that man Sheldon of "In His Steps"? How does he stand at home? It is always a source of great satisfaction to be able to say: "Sheldon is as he writes. He practices what he preaches. He is universally respected in the town where he is known the best." If any man is exposed to the "woe" pronounced upon those of whom all men speak well, our friend Sheldon is subject to the peril. His fellow citizens of all classes and his Christian brethren of all churches do say concerning him, "Well done, good and faithful servant." Strong as this statement of the case is, it is not by any means, an overstatement.—Bishop Vincent.

Clever Advertisers.

A clever advertising scheme was employed by a firm in a southern city. The junior partner of the firm wrote out a warrant for the arrest of the senior partner on the ground that he was selling goods below cost and that the firm was constantly losing money thereby.

The case came up in court, and the counsel for the senior partner asked for a postponement in order to have more time to prepare his case. The judge granted the request, bail was fixed and the senior member released. As he left the courtroom the junior partner rose and exclaimed, "If he is released the sacrifice will go on!"

The news soon spread, and the firm did a better business.

When the case was again called, no plaintiff appeared, and the charge was dismissed. The firm had succeeded in their object—advertisement.

Damp Hands.

Many girls suffer great discomfort from damp hands. This complaint generally arises from a weakly constitution and highly nervous temperament. Excessive preparation is not only unpleasant for the sufferer, but renders the hands repulsive to others; therefore anyone who has the misfortune to suffer from this complaint should do their utmost to cure it. It is usually worse in hot weather; but in most cases the patient suffers both in winter and summer. If it is not a very bad case, it may be successfully treated with ablutions of very hot soft water, and the application, after drying, of fuller's earth or a medicated powder prepared as follows: Salicylic acid, three parts; talk, seven parts; starch ninety parts.

Before going out into society in the evening, when the hands are likely to get very hot and damp, plunge them into water, in which some powdered alum has been dissolved.

In severe cases it will be found necessary to resort to more stringent remedies and the inside of the hand should be rubbed two or three times a day with a cloth dipped in the following solution: Eau de Cologne, fourteen parts; tincture of belladonna, three parts.

It is well to omit this local treatment with careful diet. Avoid all fermented liquors, pickles, tea, coffee, and highly spiced dishes, and shun as much as possible all gas-lighted and overheated rooms.

One Woman's Ruling Passion.

"There goes a woman," said the girl, "who hasn't a thought of earth except dress. I know what superior man attributes this particular weakness to all women—but it's a curable, is of course, and fine out of ten of male estimates of women."

"She conquered a refractory Burton on her glove before she continued."

"But that woman who passed us, without doubt, the most dress-crazy woman I have ever met. She knows no topic save dress—can speak of no other subject. She spends one half of her time at her dressmaker's, and the other half in exploiting the handicraft of the modistes. Goodness only knows when she manages to get anything to eat."

"She's dead to every feeling, I believe, except that which has to do with dress. And what do you think she said Saturday? I met her as we were going out of a house of mourning. A young woman whom we both knew had died—and we had been at the funeral. Coming down the steps I noticed my friend, but the feeling of sorrow was too fresh upon me to permit anything more than a nod of recognition."

"For half a square we walked side by side. Then said: 'Poor, dear Clara—alive and well one week ago, and now—now she's gone!'"

"Yes," answered my friend, blandly; "but wasn't she dressed beautifully! Really it was a treat to see her."—Philadelphia Press.

Part of the Brain that Keeps Names.

An Austrian savant has declared that the human brain contains a "name center." He says that it is the office of this cell to retain names.

A striking case which would seem to confirm this theory recently occurred at Cleveland. A brakeman was shot by a conductor, and the former could not remember the names of persons or things, although he could perfectly well describe the functions of all articles exhibited to him.

The surgeon probed for the bullet and found it in the exact spot necessary to affect the remembrance of names, according to the Austrian's theory. When the pressure on the brain had been relieved the patient remembered names as well as he had done before his injury, and told the name of his assailant.—Scientific American.

General Wauchope's Speech.

Here is an amusing story about General Wauchope as a soldier and a politician. When in command of the Black Watch, the famous Highland regiment, he was said to have attempted to address the men after parade at Maryhill Barracks, Glasgow. From the demeanor of the colonel the regiment anticipated an eloquent address, but it is stated that the general addressed only got the length of: "Men of the gallant 42d, when his tongue seemed to cleave to the roof of his mouth."

Thrice did he make the attempt, and thrice did he fail to make progress, until, exasperated with himself he suddenly exclaimed, to the astonishment of the regiment: "Man of the gallant 42d, right-about wheel!"

His Very Own Jones.

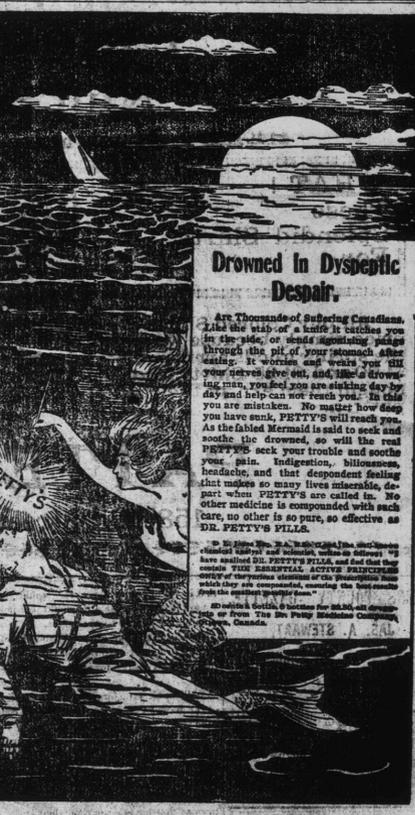

There are many Joneses in this world, but perhaps not quite so many as people think. Not long ago two friends met who had not seen each other for ten years, since their school days.

"Whom did you marry, Billy?" asked one.

"A Miss Jones of Philadelphia," replied Billy, who was a trifle sensitive.

"You always did take to the name 'Jones.' I can remember when we went to school together you used to tag around after a little snub-nosed Jones girl."

"I remember it, too," said Billy. "She's the girl I married."

Drowned in Dyspeptic Despair.

Are Thousands of Suffering Canadians. Like the ship of a knife it catches you in the side, or scalds agonizingly jagged through the pit of your stomach after eating. It worsens and wears you till your nerves give out, and the life of a drowning man, you feel you are sinking day by day and help can not reach you. In this you are mistaken. No matter how deep you have sunk, PERRY'S will reach you. As the fabled Mermaid is said to seek and soothe the drowned, so will the real PERRY'S seek your trouble and soothe your pain. Indigestion, biliousness, headache, and that despondent feeling that makes so many lives miserable, depart when PERRY'S are called in. No other medicine is compounded with such care, no other is so pure, so effective as DR. PERRY'S PILL.
