ST. JOHN HARBOR IMPROVEMENT.

The people of the Province will be very glad if the assistance which the Local and Federal Governments feel warranted in giving will ensure the construction of wet and dry docks at St. John and provide other necessary harbor accommodation The people of St. John are not really much more interested in this matter than are the inhabitants of a very considerable section not to say the whole, of the province. The only ground upon which any expenditure of public moneys in this direction can be justified is that it will lead to an increase in the business done at the port and consequently to an augmentation of the por ulation. It is THE HERALD's belief that is St. John will let party politics sleep for a while and make a determined effort to continent, a fine future is before the citya future in which steady growth and pertures. With three great lines of railway centering at its wharves and a fourth line within a very few years have in St. John to be near at hand when our chief New Brunswick city shall take its marching orders for a new career of commercial pros perity. It is in this belief that the City Council has determined to aid the dock scheme and asks that the governments also give assistance; and it is feir to say that the citizens by their hearty endorsemen of the Council's action have shown that they have faith in the good results of the proposed work. Among the first of these results will be an increase in the popula tion of the city, which means a better market for produce, and this will be a direct benefit to the farmers over a wide section of country. Hence the proposed work is of more than local importance. It may of course happen that the anticipations of the projectors of the dock scheme and of those who are foremost in supporting its claims for public assistance, may not be realized; but the risk of failure i no greater than in any other similar project and much less than in many This point ought to be kept prominently in mind-that the era is one of keen competition and only these places can secure trade which afford the best facilities for handling it. Very much has been said about what shall be the winter port of Canada. Possibly some political leaders have made very explicit promises on the subject; but the matter is really beyond the control of politicans, unless the country adopts new canons of legislation. Commerce does not wait for legislative permission to seek any particular channel. Like all other forces it moves in the line of least resistance and if the route via New fords less resistance than that via St. John, political conventions and legislatures may annually becoming larger, so that great posed harbor improvements at St. John.

FIRST ARTICLE. There is happily no longer any ground to doubt the future greatness of Canada from the standpoint of material prosperity. almost boundless in their extent and variety. Few persons take the trouble to examine the geographical position occupied by the Dominion, the agencies which affect its climate, the agricultural, pastoral, forest, mineral and piscatorial wealth which go to make up the grand aggregate of its advantages. A few observers, notably Erastus Wiman and Joachim Miller, have through the pages of leading United States periodicals told the world that Canada was by nature a greater country than the Republic; but their high words of praise have been received with hesitation amongst ourselves and by our neighbors with incredulity.
