

Fat is absolutely necessary as an article of diet. If it is not of the right kind it may not be digested. Then the body will not get enough of it. In this event there is fat-starvation.

Scott's Emulsion supplies this needed fat, of the right kind, in the right quantity, and in the form already partly digested.

As a result all the organs and tissues take on activity.

See and get on, all druggists.

according to the beautiful expression of St. Ambrose:—"Ubi Petrus ibi Ecclesia." Both are divine institutions which have survived every attack and outrage, which have seen the centuries go by without being shaken, and which have gained increased strength, energy and constancy from misfortune itself.

As to ourselves, we will not cease to love this noble and beautiful country, the land of our birth, proud to spend our remaining strength in preserving for it the precious treasure of religion, in keeping its sons on the honourable path of virtue and duty, and in relieving their distresses as far as we can. We are sure, Venerable Brethren, that in discharging this noble duty you will give us the effective and of your care and your enlightened and constant zeal. Continue the sacred work of reviving piety amongst the faithful, preserving souls from error and the seductions which surround them on all sides, and of consoling the poor and the wretched by the means of the Gospel, and in your pastoral ministry bring us the fruits of your charity and your love for the people, the principal object of our care and affection; you who have been made the butt for the most bitter trials because of your nearness to us and your close union with this Apostolic See, take comfort and our firm assurances that the Papacy in past ages, during days of storm and stress, was the guide, defence and salvation of the Catholic people, especially in Italy, to in the future it will not fail in its great and salutary mission of defending and vindicating your rights, assisting you in your difficulties, and loving you when most persecuted and oppressed. You have given, particularly in these later times, many proofs of self-denial and zeal in doing good. Do not lose heart, but keep strictly, as in the past, within the limits of the law, and in full submission to your pastors, continue to pursue the same line of action with Christian courage. Should you meet with fresh contradictions and fresh hostility on the way, be not discouraged. The goodness of your cause will become more evident day by day, when your adversaries are obliged to have recourse to such weapons to combat it and the trial you will have to bear will increase your merit in the eyes of honest men, and—what is of more importance—in the eyes of God. And now, as a token of heavenly favour and a pledge of our more special affection, receive the Apostolic Blessing, which we impart from the bottom of our heart to you, Venerable Brethren, and to the Italian clergy and people.

Given at St. Peter's, Rome on the 5th August, 1898, in the 21st year of Our Pontificate.

LEO XIII., Pope.

Important Items.

Cardinal Sembratovic, Archbishop of Lemberg, whose death was recorded some weeks ago, was the hundred and twenty-third wearer of the red hat removed by death during Leo XIII's papacy. Of the hundred and seventeen Cardinals created by the present Pontiff only fifty survive.

The old female prison of St. Lazare, Paris, now disused, is not to disappear in its entirety, like its male colleague of Mazas. It would have been a pity indeed, for the building is a historic one with many memories connecting it with the religious history of France in the first part of the seventeenth century. It was formerly a Laxist convent, and in it can still be seen the cell of St. Vincent de Paul, where the great apostle of charity passed the last twenty-eight years of his life and died in 1660. It has been transformed into a chapel and is religiously kept by the Sisters of Mary and Joseph, who had charge of the prison. Not far from the cell is also the bell which King Louis XIII. presented to the saint. This bell is still tolled daily for the convent of the nuns, which is hard by, and used also to be tolled for the exercise of the prisoners when St. Lazare was still a jail.

The London Daily Chronicle says Cardinal Vaughan has corrected the statement lately going the rounds of the press to the effect that 700 converts a month were added to the Church in the Diocese of Westminster. What His Eminence did say was that between 600 and 700 converts a month were made in the 'province' of Westminster, which includes all the dioceses of England.

The fiftieth anniversary of the Sister Superior Marie de la Croix was lately celebrated in the prison at Antwerp. Every member of the administrative force was present, as well as all the prisoners. M. le procureur du roi, in his address, complimented the Sister on her half century of devoted and unwearying service. "In your difficult and ungrateful mission," he said, "you have never allowed yourself to be dejected for a moment, bringing to your work the most perfect tact, charity and love of God and your fellow-men. On your breast shines the cross of the Order of Leopold, the civic cross, the gold medal. The Government can do no more for you. But I realize that no earthly reward can affect an angel of goodness like you. It is from your conscience and your faith that you derive your admirable unselfishness and abnegation."

In order that the poor of Rome might have some cause, however slight, to remember his feast day, Leo XIII. directed that 18,000 francs be distributed to the poor—5,000 francs to poor priests and 13,000 to the poor people. The sum is small, but the means of the Pontiff are very restricted and he himself may be said to live on the alms of the Catholic world.

As yet only echoes reach us of what the members of the twenty-sixth national pilgrimage to Lourdes have been doing by the banks of the Gave during the last few days, says a Paris correspondent. The contingent of sick borne thither this year was 1,900. The "white train" had its three hundred. Numbers of Parisians who will never have the privilege or perhaps the wish to go to Lourdes have been able, nevertheless, by personal observation to understand something of the marvellous episode of the national pilgrimages. Crowds were at the Gare d'Orleans watching the pilgrims off, seeing the moving hospital as it rolled away bearing with it every variety of human suffering. There was no discordant note, no scoffing at religion. The point was particularly noticed by representatives of the Catholic press. The mind was divided in admiration between the faith of the sick pilgrims and the heroic abnegation of those who waited on them. The Little Sisters of the Assumption, beneath a broiling sun and in an atmosphere charged with hospital odours, were to be seen gay and calm, fitting hither and thither, thinking of everything, and at last taking their places in the crowded compartments—mistresses of the situation. Some had been in quest of milk, others of pillows, and others of delicacies for the most needy of their patients. Not less admirable was the conduct of the "transcendents" and of ladies doing the work of the Sisters of Charity in lay attire. Some of the "transcendents" are men of the highest position. Here and there at the Gare d'Orleans they were to be seen setting the litter and bearing in their strong arms to the train some frail piece of humanity who seemed to have but a breath of life. Among these men intent on alleviating human suffering was M. Rolland-Gosselin, whose young wife was burnt to death at the charity bazaar last year. Among the "Dames Hospitalieres" may be mentioned the Countess de La Croix-Laval, Mdle. Calla and the Comtesse de Jumilhac. A woman on a litter, unable to move and waiting to be put in the train, struck the eye of a Catholic journalist, M. Le Roy. He said to her: "Courage, my poor woman; you are going to be cured." "I know it," was the reply, calm and confident. As one of the trains rolled out of the station the first strophe of the "Oredo" burst from thousands of voices. "I did not know there was so much faith in France," said a Spanish journalist in reference to the national pilgrims at Lourdes.

His Faith Revealed by the Scapular.

In the June number of the Alma Mater, the college magazine of St. Ignace's College, Riverview, there is a touching obituary notice of the late Mr. Francis Dyon, of the firm of John Dyon & Sons, Melbourne, who died recently in Hobart, and who was buried in Cornelian Bay Cemetery.

"In April last he visited Tasmania on business connected with his firm. After a short stay in Hobart, he proceeded to the mining centres on the famous West Coast of Tasmania, and returned to Hobart very ill. For a time he bore up bravely against illness, but eventually, he felt forced to go into Fairfield, a private hospital. It was too late! From the very moment of entrance delirium seized him, and the lady in charge knew that her patient was not only past the aid of human skill, but was also a stranger in a strange land, unable to give any account of his friends or their whereabouts. She noticed, however, that the sufferer was wearing a scapular and a medal, and, though not a Catholic herself she knew something of the significance of the badge, the index of his sonship to the Church, and she promptly telephoned to the Palace of the Archbishop of Hobart. Almost immediately the Rev. Father Gilligan, Administrator of St. Mary's Cathedral, was upon the scene. At once grasping the situation, he set to work and discovered the identity of the sufferer, and the address of his relatives in Melbourne. To the latter he cabled intelligence of his approaching demise, and then the Fairfield nursing staff positively fought with death, but neither their skill and patient attention, nor the unwearying care and attention of Drs. Scott and Wolfgraben (two of Hobart's foremost practitioners) could do more than slightly delay the end. A brother and sister of the sufferer arrived from Melbourne some few hours before Frank Dyon passed away. . . . Our quondam schoolfellow's death was a severely happy one. The several non-Catholics who were in attendance at the bedside, accustomed as they are to such scenes, aver that no more edifying spectacle could have been witnessed than the perfect calmness, nay, even joyful resignation with which Frank waited the summons of his maker." R. I. P.

A Brave Printer.

Insurance and Finance Chronicle, published in Montreal, has the following: Without knowing aught of the Lord Mayor of Belfast, it would be safe to say he realizes how great is the danger to any one engaged in the rescue of the drowning. From some of the ghastly stories told by the survivors of the French steamship La Bourgeois, may be obtained a faint idea of the strength of the grip of a drowning dying man or woman. 'Tis worse than the clutch of poverty, and more difficult to shake off. But Patrick Morris, a Belfast printer, living in London, is one of the many plucky Irishmen who in the effort to preserve life thinks nothing of the possible peril to himself. He was present at the disastrous launch of the battleship Albion, in company with a number of merry-making Londoners. When the terrible accident occurred and the Thames claimed dozens of victims, this brave Irish printer furnished those present with an instance of the heroism and self-sacrifice which when displayed on the battlefield gains for its exponent the coveted Victoria Cross. Patrick Morris plunged again and again into the river, filled as it was with the poor drowning London holiday-makers, ready in their fight for life to clutch, cling to, and possibly strangle a rescuer, and each time he saved a life. Testimony to his bravery came from those who know that, although any substance will swim whose specific gravity is less than that of the fluid in which it is immersed, there is slim chance of the swimmer when seized by a drowning person. The members of several swimming clubs subscribed for a gold watch, and the same was presented to Morris, of Belfast, by the Lord Mayor of that city, who very justly remarked that the cross so much coveted by soldiers had often been presented for actions less heroic than those of this Irish printer, at the launch of the battleship Albion.

Pope Leo Twenty Years Ago.

At the time of his installation the appearance of the present Pope is thus described by the Abbe Ydieu, his biographer: "The new Bishop of Rome is tall and spare, with a grand, patrician air. He has a magnificent head, crowned with white hair, strongly marked features, the aspect of an ascetic, with something marvellous in the general appearance of the figure. His face is lighted by a piercing look, and his amiable and paternal smile goes straight to the heart of those whom he addresses. His voice is sonorous and very pleasing, though less mellow and more powerful than that of Pius IX. The day after his election he was asked why he took the name of Leo, and he replied, 'Because Leo XII. was the benefactor of my family, but also because Leo signifies lion, and the virtue which seems to me the most necessary of all is the force of the lion.' There was three ballots at his election. At the first he received seventeen votes, at the second thirty-five, and at the third forty-four, or two more than were necessary to his elevation."

It is Just as Important

That you enrich and purify your blood in the Fall as in the Spring. At this time, owing to decaying vegetation, a low water level, and other causes, there are disease germs all about us, and a weak and debilitated system yields to attacks of malaria, fevers, etc. By purifying and enriching your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla you may build up your system to resist these dangers, as well as coughs, colds, pneumonia, and the grip which comes with colder weather. To be on the safe side, take Hood's Sarsaparilla now, and always be sure it is Hood's and not something else represented to be "just as good."

Kidney Trouble FOR YEARS.

Nothing did Mr. R. E. Pitt any good until he got Doan's Kidney Pills.

Throughout the County of Leeds and the Town of Brockville there is no medicine spoken so highly of for all kinds of Kidney Diseases as Doan's Kidney Pills. As Canada's pioneer kidney pill, introduced by Mr. James Doan, of Kingsville, Ont., in 1882, they stand to-day far superior to all the imitations and substitutes that have been offered the public in their stead.

Mr. R. E. Pitt, the well-known contractor and builder, voices these sentiments when he says, "I have had kidney trouble for years. I had tried numerous remedies without much relief, and had given up my back as gone for good, but since using Doan's Kidney Pills the result has been marvellous! The pain is all gone. I feel like a new man, and can highly testify to the virtues of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Doan's Kidney Pills are sold by all dealers or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or 3 boxes for $1.25. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont.
