Shannahan and Tucker

Tell of the Policeman's Troubles and Make an Appeal to the Government for a Raise in Pay.

We had a full meeting up at Tucker's last night. Present: Tucker and Mrs. Tucker, Delaney, the Cote Man and a male friend from Harbor Grace. The Harbor Gracian was very quiet and added nothing to the interest of the meeting; he simply sat up straight and twirled one thumb over the other and looked cuter, if possible, than the Cote Man.

Mrs. Tucker opened proceedings by referring to the increase of wages asked for by the police force, and said that in her opinion something should be done for this fine body of men. As it is now, said she, they are no longer acquainted with the town and know their business than they hear of some job being open and away they go and leave off the tunic and hang up the belt. You're just beginning to know a policeman and learn his name when you find that he has learned that he can't increase his weight by hanging on the force, and in order that he may be able to keep body and soul in co-partnership he quits for a better paying job.

The laughable, said Delaney, to notice all the duties a policeman is supposed to perform in this man's town. He must be capable of arresting a man twice his size, and is supposed to have an adamant face that can't be bruised by the kick of a Norwegian sailor; he is to be of exceptionally good character and walk by note, and at all times to be ready to respond to all kinds of calls; he takes his life in his hands and goes to quell a row on board of an American banker, or to convey a sailor to his ship in the stream, when he refuses to sail; he is called upon to question the man who starts in to demolish the furniture in his home, and must be a diplomat in restoring order without injuring the hair on the head of the offender; he must be capable of finding lost children who have strayed from home and must also be efficient at putting out fires in the woods. The latter duty, says Delaney, is the most burdensome and yet the most amusing from the onlookers point of view in the whole town. Some fine evening in the summer a smell of burnt woods reaches the city, and some one spies a cloud of smoke in the western horizon and immediately the poor Sergeant with a posse of police is hied off to fight the dragon, armed with a new axe and a coil of Manila rope they travel on and on and on till they meet a lot of more smoke and then they start in cutting down boughs and digging trenches in order to save the city from destruction. The policeman knows that this is an absurdity, the Inspector General knows that it isn't going to amount to a row of pins, as far as doing good is concerned, but they also know that if the police didn't go forth all the policemen would be in arms and say that they were neglecting their duty. I firmly believe, said Delaney, that if we had any more than three hundred summer men in this country that all the policemen, Superintendent and all would be now sleeping their last sleep. This a relief when the first snowfall strikes the town for then and then only do the women of this town desist from smelling the woods on fire, and then, and then only, are the hatchet and rope laid down by the worn-out constable.

On the day of the races, that glorious time when even the Cote Man lets himself out, the policeman's duty increases alarmingly. Every one knows that the town is going to be burned down on that day. Therefore he is expected to stay in town and protect the property of the men who go down to make the quickest time and dance a quadrille between acts, and also to watch for an explosion in the home of the betting character while he munges ice cream and swings in the creaky swinging boats.

At the opening of the People's House he is again on the run. Armed with a Martini Henri rifle that has never done active duty, he makes tracks to lend a tone of grandeur and seriousness to the occasion. He lines up outside the House and stands there till he is well and solidly frozen, and when he is good and cold he is allowed to start for home rifle on shoulder, and doesn't get rid of the cramps contracted on that auspicious occasion for about three weeks.

If you meet a policeman in plain clothes you have a dread of him, you immediately arrive at the conclusion that he is on special duty and you give him a wide berth. And yet, says Mrs. Tucker, this man doesn't get salary enough to make a decent jingle on pay-day.

'Tis a downright shame, and we as citizens make a strenuous appeal to our Legislators now in session to do something for these men. No hour is their own, they must always be ready to go on duty, and no body of men is watched more closely and great things expected of. Let us see some good talker in the House stand up and champion the cause of the policeman. No man works better than the man that is treated right and we will see our policemen remain in the force and have better results if we plank down our 'spendulices' and give the policeman a raise. Policemen can't get good and strong by being told that "we have it under consideration." What they want, and what they deserve, is a good bulky envelope on pay day. Then the policeman will hang on to the job, and while hanging on will become more efficient day by day. Then we will have a force that the city will be proud of.

Butler Case is Finished.

WOMAN GETS THREE MONTHS.

The last of the charges preferred against Mrs. Charlotte Butler was for the larceny of a door mat, the property of Mr. F. W. Bradshaw, and occupied the attention of Judge Knight yesterday afternoon in the Magistrate's Court. In opening the case, Howley, K.C., for the prosecution, asked that the case be withdrawn owing to the plaintiff not being able to swear that the alleged stolen article was his own property and a consequent lack of evidence to warrant the conviction of the prisoner. The case of the apron, on which accused was convicted but sentence suspended, came up. Mr. Squires for defendant made an earnest plea for mitigation of sentence on the prisoner's behalf, pointing out that his client had already been harshly and severely punished, even if the crime was much more heinous, having been incarcerated in H. M. Penitentiary from the day of her arrest until bonds were furnished. His Honor Judge Knight reviewed the case, intimating that he was only judging the prisoner for the one charge, and that he would not be unmindful of the surrounding circumstances. He sentenced the prisoner to three months' imprisonment.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GART in COWS.

Strike Calmly Accepted.

Special to Evening Telegram: LONDON, March 1.

That England has accepted the coal strike situation with philosophic calm is largely due to a belief that the attitude taken by the Government will bring the mine owners to terms. Some of those who, on Wednesday, held out against the principle of the minimum wage, gave in yesterday. Only 35 per cent. of the owners are still irreconcilable. These are Welsh and Scottish owners, in whose districts the miners strike funds are considerable. Though there is no official statement as to details of the Government's plans, there is a growing belief that a special bill will be rushed through Parliament if other means fail. The only mine in the country where the miners are not on strike is a little one in North Wales, where work is being carried on under police protection. An official return issued this morning estimates the strikers at 1,049,407.

Novel Freak.

About 5 o'clock a couple of evening's ago a drunken man who was down at the rear of R. G. Rendell's premises finding that the place was locked up and that he could not get out attempted to do so by scaling the roof of the building tenanted by Jackson & Co. He went up a 40 foot ladder to the slate roof and then climbed the roof ladder to the saddle of the building. He sat across the roof for a while but seeing no ladder on the other side he came down over the rear part of the roof which he had just before climbed. It was then that Messrs. Fitzgerald and Ebsary who were in the office saw the man and their breath was taken away. When the man reached the eave he could not get hold of the ladder running up from the ground, for full five minutes and hung over the side of the structure holding on to the roof ladder with his hands. Every moment the men who watched him expected to see him let go and be dashed to death on the ground, but he eventually swung himself along and getting a grip on the ladder came down. He was so far gone in liquor that he could not walk straight, but did not seem to realize the danger he had encountered on going to the roof.

Cascarets Work While You Sleep.

Salts, Cathartics and Cathartic Pills are violent—they act on bowels as pepper acts in nostrils.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important. Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gasses; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

Put on the Track

Last night being so fine and bright crowds of people went up the railway track near Browning's Bridge to view the work in progress of getting the derailed engine 109 on the track; a large number were engaged at it and 3 locomotives were held on the tracks near to render assistance when the engine was jacked up on the temporary rail laid down to run the engine up on the main line. Mr. Turnbull was in charge and at midnight the engine was pulled onto the track and later came into the station. The engine will need a deal of repairs.

The regular weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Deputy Mayor Martin presided.

Accounts were received from the Colonial Secretary for $25 for the Angel Engineering and Supply Co., and $30 for St. John's Automobile Works, fees for examinations of motor drivers. It was the opinion of Councilor Channing that according to the Act the Council was not liable. The contract was made by the persons who secured the license, and the Council was only supposed to pay the Government portion of the taxes collected from car owners. The matter was deferred.

There was considerable debate respecting snow being removed from Merrymount Road.

Tenders will be asked for the supplying of hose.

Mr. F. Baxstrom, Water Street West, complained of ice being stored adjoining his residence. Referred to Engineer.

On behalf of the Trustees of Cochran Street Church, J. P. Blackwood asked that claim for damages be settled.

The case of the promoters of the hockey match, regarding taxes, was next discussed. Matter referred to Solicitor.

The Health Officer reported that offensive matter was being deposited at the head of Quidi Vidi Lake. Referred to Sanitary Committee.

The Council refused payment contending that the pipes they received were in a damaged condition. A special meeting will be held shortly when the matter will be dealt with. The meeting adjourned at 5.45 p.m.

Gus Ruhlin Dead

New York, Feb. 14.—Gus Ruhlin, famous a decade ago as a puglist, conqueror of Tom Sharkey and many other men of lesser note, died suddenly yesterday in his cafe in Brooklyn, as the result of a stroke of apoplexy. Ruhlin aspired to the heavyweight championship honors, and from 1896 to 1901 met most of the best known heavyweights of that time, including Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries and Ed McQuay. Ruhlin fought his last big fight on Nov. 16, 1901, in San Francisco, when Jim Jeffries defeated him in five rounds. Ruhlin was born in Canton, Ohio, 40 years ago, and went later to live in Akron, where he was known as the "Akron Giant."
