Women at St. Peter's Cathedral Hear Father Donnelly Define Conscience.

The appeal of special Advent preparation for the feast of the Nativity of our Lord was evidenced by the large attendance at the opening of the three days' retreat for women at St. Peter's Cathedral last evening. Rev. Father P. B. Donnelly who is conducting the triduum selected as his text of his discourse the words of St. Paul, "This is my glory, the testimony of my con-science." Defining the conscience as the human reason enlightened by the garding the moral goodness or evil of our actions, the speaker pointed of our actions, the speaker pointed out the moral degradation which results from allowing the conscience or lax, and the consequent remores which comes with the realization of having stifled the voice which warns against wrong and commands right. The power of this insistent accusing voice was illius-trated by the case of Cain. Against this the speaker set the consolation in the Wellington Street Synagogue, of the peace of conscience which follows from the knowledge of having acted according to the dictates of a Zlotnick of Montreal will address conscience, which has been kept himself especially to the older mem-aright and showed the power of the bers of the audience in the Yiddish which men have left home and coun-

Father Donnelly announced that a short instruction course would be given after the 7 o'clock mass each norning on the practice of frequent Holy Communion and that the devotions, with sermon and benediction of the blessed sacrament, would be held on Thursday and Friday even-ings at 7:30. The triduum will close on Sunday morning at the 8:30 mass. when all will receive Holy Com-nunion. Friday, December the 8th, the feast of the Immaculate Conception, will be holy day observed throughout the Catholic Church. The masses at St. Peter's will be said at 6, 8 and 9 o'clock, the last being pontifical high mass sung by Rt. Rev.

Claims Boy Mystery.

Mrs. Rose's subject was "A. Mother's Love for Her Boy." In her introduction, she spoke on the different kinds of education a boy received while in the "Y," and spoke in the highest terms of what a boy could get in the association if he was pregary at the National Council of Women, it was unanimously agreed by all mothers, grandmothers and daughters that almost without exception the mother always favored the boy. It is very difficult to say just why this should be true. One f the reasons might be in the fact that she loves the boy's attitude of chivalry, that he is her knight. It was also added that the boy was a mystery to the mother, which was not so in the case of the daughter."

Mrs Rose stated that the mother was always loving, unsacrifical in her attention to the boy from his birth and was always ambitious that he should grow and develop into a real man, taking his position of leadership in the community life. When boy puts on long pants he seems to draw away from his mother, it is not so from the lack of love. is mainly because of his desire to make good, to mix with other young men, and to go out into life and con-quer the difficulties toward success. Mrs. Rose was deeply affected in her address because of the great subject upon which she had been called
