IT WAS STONE IN THE BLADDER

GIN PILLS PASSED IT

"Five years ago, I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of the Bladder—intense pains in the back and Ioins, and difficulty in urinating, and the attacks, which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony. I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor. My wife read in the papers about GIN PILLS and sent for a box. From the very first, I felt that CIN PILLS were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once, and the attacks were less frequent.

relieved at once, and the attacks were less frequent.

In six weeks, the Stone in the Bladder came away. When I recall how I suffered and how now I am healthy and able to work, I cannot express myself strongly enough when I speak of what GIN PILLS have done for me'. JOIIN HERMAN, Hamilton, Ont.

Artificial Sponges.

There is now to be had an artificial sponge which is the outcome of German ingenuity. The process of making it consists principally in the action of zinc chloride on pure cellulose. This results in a pasty, viscous mass, which is mixed with coarsely grained rock salt.

rock salt.

Placed in a press mould armed with pins the mass is pierced through and through until it appears traversed by a multitude of tiny canals, like the pores of a natural sponge. The excess of salts is subsequently removed by prolonged washing in a weak alcoholic solution. The artificial sponge swells up with water, but hardens on drying, just like its prototype; it is said to be eminently adapted for filtering water for sanitary or industrial uses and it can be employed for all the purposes that are usually assigned to the genuine article.

ed on Her Own Children.
While Italy's Queen—the tall, girlish-appearing Elena—shines in society, is noted for her charity work and takes not a little interest in all kinds of healthful sport, it is as a mother that she holds first rank in the hearts of her loyal and loving subjects. She declares emphatically that her happiest hours are those spent among her children. As soon as her first simple meal of rolls and coffee is finished in the morning she goes to their nurser. cest nours are those spent among her children. As soon as her first simple meal of rolls and coffee is finished in the morning she goes to their nurseries. When they were much younger it was her great delight to give them their matutinal bath, but now she merely presides over their breakfast and plays and romps with them until they are ready to go out. The children's rooms are furnished with the utmost simplicity, designed to give a maximum of light and air and a minimum of dust-containing draperies and carpets. In the playroom inexpensive toys may be seen, dolls, soldiers, engines and the ordinary playthings dear to every child.

Queen Elena has earned the title of the "Babies' Queen" in Italy through her love of all children. Since her marriage she has established many children's hospitals and creches and hardly a day passes when she is in Rome that she does not visit one of the institutions. She has also caused a revival of the lace-making industry by establishing schools where Italian girls are taught.

No royal mother spends so much time with her children during the day as she does and she studies them before anything else. For their sake, a plain but substantial meal is provided in the middle of the day, so that they may share it with their parents, and the choice of the menu is the subject of much care with her chef every morning after breakfast.

gives promise of growing up into an equally beautiful woman. She has the same thick, dark soft hair, a lovely complexion and expressive eyes. Like here mother, too, she dislikes formalities. To be 'dressed up' is pain and grief to her; but to have on a plain overall and to be able to rush about the garden with some of her favorite animals is pure low. animals is pure joy.

Did You Ever Think of This? Did You Ever Think of This?

Did you ever hear that it is dangerous to open your morning mail at the breakfast table? According to a Berlin scientist, Prof. Kron, it is dangerous—very. Prof. Kron has succeeded in tracing several cases of contagion to the old custom of waiting until you sit down at the breakfast table before opening and going through your morning mail. He cally attention to the fact that the average man and woman goes down to breakattention to the fact that the average man and woman goes down to breakfast with hands and face scrupulously clean, teeth scrubbed and throat gargled. In that condition he is prepared to eat without danger of swallowing more disease germs than may have possibly escaped the watchful attentions of the cook. But instead of doing that he handles letters and opapers which have passed through papers which have passed through many hands before reaching his own. Between bites he opens envelopes and wrappers and in doing so unthinkingly paves the way for the absorption of all kinds of germs which may or may not do him a great deal of harm.

Remarkable Bamboo Bridge. Remarkable Bamboo Bridge.

In Java the government engineers have recently constructed a road bridge more than 100 feet long, with a central span of over 60 feet, entirely of bamboo. The roadbed is composed of bamboo matting, which will be covered with a layer of dry earth. In profile the bridge resembles a steel structure, but all the members are bamboo rods. It is estimated that such a bridge should be good for 10 or 15 years. There are two kinds of bamboo used in building and cabinet making in the east, one having solid and the other hollow stems. The solid, seen in Japanese furniture, is much and the other hollow stems. The solid, seen in Japanese furniture, is much smaller than the hollow, but both belong to the same species. In the construction of bamboo houses no nails are used. The parts are bound together with lashings formed from the bark of the bamboo itself.

In the Land of Contraries.

In the Land of Contraries.

Old women, not young, are the idols of Chinese society.

Elderly men fly kites and play ball, while the children look quietly on.

The very highest ambition of a Chinaman is to have a handsome coffin and a costly funeral. Men wear long skirts and carry fans. Women wear short jackets and carry canes.

When a Chinaman meets an acquaintance he covers his head and shakes his own hand. If very glad to see a friend a Chinaman very often rubs shoulders with him.

If a Chinaman desires a visitor to dine with him he does not ask him to do so; but if he should not want him he says: "Won't you stay and dine?" The visitor then knows that he is not wanted.

IT REACHES THE SPOT.—There are few remedies before the public to-day as efficacious in removing pain and in allaying and preventing pulmonary disorders as Dr. Thomas' Eelectric Oil. Agriculture in Rural Schools.

If evidence were needed to show the practical benefits derived from teaching agriculture in rural schools, some recent information given out by the Department of Agriculture at Washington will supply it. In March, 1907, Prof. Benson, of that department, sent out a circular to 31 schools in Iowa, asking these questions:-How many boys above the fifth grade expect to be farmers when grown to manhood, and how many of the girls when grown to womanhood expect to have something to do with the farm home and rural life? Out of the total of 164 boys above the fifth grade in these schools, 157 said they would have nothing to do with the farm, thus leaving only seven who decided to stay by the farm. This looks bad. But, wait a while. After 1907 the teaching of agriculture was taken up in these same schools. In 1910, Prof. Benson sent out the same circular, asking the same questions. Out of 174 boys then enrolled above the fifth grade, 162 replied that they would stay by the farm or have something to do with agriculture when they came to manhood, and only 12 decided to leave the farm. Then, the girls must not be left out. In the first census, 163 girls out of 174 enrolled, decided not to remain on the farm if they can help it. When the second census was taken in 1910, 161 girls out of 173 enrolled, decided they would have some-thing to do with the direction of the farm home. There could be no more conclusive evidence than this that the teaching of agriculture in rural schools will do what is claimed for it—induce the boys and girls to remain on the farm.

One hundred thousand placard pearing the words "Beware hatpins" are being distributed broadcast in Montreal. It is the first step in a movement to abolish the modern feminine dagger. On Saturday thousands of these placards were pasted upon fences, telegraph poles, street cars, and everywhere it was possible to stick one. It is said that there is a society organized in Montreal who have for their aim the abolition of the modern hatpin. They are said to be all unmarried men, and as such are not familiar with the magnitude of the task they have undertaken.

"Was Fading Away"

A Young Woman-Scarcely Thirty-Seemed to Be Dying on Her Feet.

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then Lgot blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay." Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston,
