THE IMPORTANCE OF CORN.

The Cincinnati Price Current has joined other crop experts in the statement that corn in the Western States is proving a disappointment. The corn situation is that outside of Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and strips in states adjoining, the corn crop is good. In these states the crop is poor, and good judges think husking will show less than half an average crop in Kansas and Nebraska and less than a two-thirds crop in Iowa. As these three states furnish much of the corn sold commercially, the short crop will be a factor in railroad tonnage and in the price of corn. Other states, where the crop has been good, used the bulk of it for feeding. It makes the total crop approximate good figures, but like grass crop, most of it is for home use and not for market, with all this involves.
