LITERARY NOTES.

The Century begins its new year with a brilliant cover in color by the well-known Parisian poster-artist, Grasset, who made the Napoleon poster for The Century. This time he pictures Alexander the Great on the famous Bucephalus. This is in connection with the magazine's new historical serial on Alexander, written by Prof. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, which will be one of the leading features for the coming year. The lessons from the career of the Macedonian conqueror are of particular interest in these days of empire-making projects. Aside from the archeological material that is pictured, the life is strikingly illustrated by Castaigne and Loeb. Captain Charles D.

Sigsbee begins his "Personal Narrative of the Maine." This is the contribution of the commander of the battle-ship to The Century's new war series, which will include articles by most of the leading officers in the land and naval operations in the recent war. Captain Sigsbee, in this paper, gives for the first time, and in a full and authoritative manner, the story of the ordering of the "Maine" to Havana, her arrival in the harbor, her reception by the Spanish officials, and the precautions that were taken to guard her safety. The article is fully illustrated from photographs that have not appeared elsewhere. Paul Leicester Ford, author of "The True George Washington," begins a series of profusely illustrated papers on "The Many-Sided Franklin," the opening article dealing with Franklin's Family Relations. A new romance by Marion Crawford, his most im-
