

My son, walk not thou in the way with sinners; refrain thy foot from their path.—Prov. i. 15.

EVANGELISTIC BIBLE CLASS

HELD

EVERY SUNDAY AFTERNOON,

AT 3 O'CLOCK.

All Welcome.

LECTURES AND CLASSES.

OUR Lecture Committee is engaged in perfecting arrangements for the coming Season. Parlor Lectures will be delivered every Tuesday evening, beginning Sept. 25th, and continuing to end of April, excepting months of November and January, during which we hope to arrange for special Evangelistic Services. A complete list of the Lectures will be published in a future issue of our Bulletin. These lectures will be free to the members. The Committee has also concluded arrangements with Mr. H. H. Ragan for a series of four of his interesting illustrated lectures on Travel. Those who heard Mr. Ragan last Season will be pleased to learn of this

Two of Mr. Ragan's lectures are entirely new; one being on Ireland, and one on Wales. Members who have paid their fees for 1883-1884, will be entitled to a reserved seat ticket for the four lectures for fifty cents.

Classes in Drawing, Phonography and Book keeping, have been arranged for, and we hope also to add one in Elocution.

A MEETING FOR ENQUIRERS

IS HELD

EVERY MONDAY EVENING,

From 7.30 till 9,

In Parlor C (up stairs) Shaftesbury Hall

"I'LL NEVER SWEEP ANOTHER CROSSING."

POOR man was one day sweeping a crossing on one of the streets of Dublin. A lawyer, with his umbrella under his arm, came up and spoke to him. "Is your name so-and-so?"

"Yes," said the street-sweeper.

"Had you a friend called S—, who lived in T—, in America?"

"Yes."

"Well, I have come out to find you, and to tell you that this friend of yours has died, and left you ten thousand pounds, which you can get at once!"

The poor man was greatly astonished. He could scarcely believe it true, it was so good. He asked some questions. At length he came to see it was really true. He was worth ten thousand pounds. He lifted up his broom, flung it as far away along the street as he could, and said, "I'll never sweep another crossing!"

My son, forget not my laws; but let thine heart keep my commandments.—Prov. iii. 1.
