INDIA.

All eyes are still turned with painful interest to India. The end of the troubles there, is not yet. Let us hope that peace may be soon restored, and that under the mild sway of our good Victoria, "Queen of Hindostan," an open door may be presented for the spread of the Gospel. We doubt not many of our young readers ask their friends anxiously for, and listen eagerly to, tidings from India. Many of them have their sympathies linked to that land. They contribute to the support of an orphaned child there, perhaps, and they pray that she may be taught to know the Saviour. But do our readers realize their own blessings? Do they understand what a good, Peace is? Do they feel thankful that they live in a Christian land, and not "amid the habitations of horrid cruelty?" The heart of man, the Bible says, is "desperately wicked;" and it means yours, reader, as well as that of the cruel Sepoy, unless it has been made new by the power and love of Jesus. But the real cruelty of the natural heart of man has become terribly manifest of late. The gentle, fawning Sepoy, has shewn himself an untamed
