Predictions at the Convention

The Ontario Conservative Convention called by Sir Charles Tupper, seems to have passed off pleasantly.

The meeting was held for organization, and the defunct Conservative

Union of Ontario was revived. How different the gathering was from the great Liberal Convention, held at Ottawa. At that gathering, everything was open and above board. The speeches delivered could be reported in every daily paper of the land. But at the Toronto Conservative Convention, the utmost privacy was obtained, and no Liberal or Independent newspaper was permitted to have a representative within the tyled doors.

Sir Charles, as usual, indulged in prophecies. He expressed himself as certain that at the earliest opportunity he and his followers would simply overwhelm the new Government at Ottawa, as well as upset every Provincial Liberal Government in the Dominion.

Sir Charles Tupper has prophesied before. He stood up in London, on the eve of last Dominion election, and asserted that he would sweep Canada from end to end. Election night proved that he was not the swiftest of the party. Then, before the new Parliament met, he was confident that the Administration could not stand. Again, his prognostications were falsified, for the majority for the new Government showed an increase every time the House was divided.

The comfort which he derives from predicting brighter days to come can never be denied an Opposition leader; but it is one thing to prognosticate and another thing to realize, as Sir Charles has before now found out.

An impression, indeed, is generally prevailing among the non-official Conservatives that so long as Sir Charles Tupper remains at the head of their party, it is fated not to make much headway in the country.

Premier Greenway, of Manitoba, has called a meeting of his Cabinet for tomorrow. Then, it is believed, the final touches on the Manitoba schools agreement will be put. This is well within the six months limit from June 23.

England's New Primate

The man whom Lord Salisbury has delighted to honor by advancing him to the see of Canterbury and primate of all England is Frederick Temple, a widely-known scholar and divine of the English establishment, now in the 75th year of his age. Dr. Frederick Temple was born Nov. 30, 1821, He graduated at Balliol College in 1842, succeeded Arnold as headmaster at Rugby in 1853, was made Bishop of Exeter by Gladstone in 1893, and in 1895 he became Bishop of London. His greatest reputation was made in 1890, when he gave to the world his essay on "The Education the race was left to itself, to be guided by the teaching of the Spirit within. Rules, Examples, Principles; these are the three stages of progress alike in the individual and in the race; and the idea is beautifully wrought out by the essayist by illustrations drawn from the world's history.

Upon the study of the Bible Dr. Temple laid great stress in this essay, and the spirit in which he would study it pervades the whole of his life; it is seen as clearly in outline here as in the more elaborate exposition of the Hampton lectures a quarter of a century later in life. "The Bible from its very form is exactly adapted to our own present want. It is a history—even if the doctrinal parts of it are cast in a historical form, and are best studied by considering them as records of the time at which they were written, and as conveying to us the highest and greatest religious life of that time. Hence we use the Bible as some consciously, some unconsciously—not to override, but to evoke the voice of conscience. When conscience and the Bible appear to differ, the pious Christian immediately concludes that he has not really understood the Bible. Hence, too, while the interpretation of the Bible varies slightly from age to age, it varies always in one direction. The schoolmen found purgatory in it. Later students found enough to condemn Galileo. Not long ago, it would have been held to condemn geology; and there are still many who so interpret it. The current is all one way; it evidently points to the identification of the Bible with the voice of conscience." And the essayist goes on to say that the Bible by its form is so admirably adapted to our need that it wins from us all the reverence of a supreme authority and imposes no yoke of subjection.

"This it does by virtue of the principle of private judgment, which puts conscience between us and the Bible; making conscience the supreme interpreter, whom it may be a duty to enlighten, but whom it can never be a duty to disobey."

These were the views of 1860. In 1884 they were almost re-echoed in the conclusion of the argument, in the Hampton lectures. "It is distinctly the fault of religious, not of scientific men, that there was once a great contest between the Bible and Astronomy, that there has since been a great contest between the Bible and Geology, that there is still a great contest between the Bible and Evolution." In no one of these cases was the revelation contained in the Bible in danger, but only the interpretation commonly put on the Bible; and when men have to give up in such circumstances, they generally give up more than they need. The antagonism between science and religion arises mostly from a difference of spirit and temper in the students of each. "The man of science is inclined to shut out from consideration a whole body of evidence, the moral and spiritual; the believer is inclined to shut out the physical." The result of the conflict is, that it is the higher and not the lower that is likely to suffer; for physical evidence is tangible, while the spiritual is hid from eyes that have no spiritual perception. "Let a man put before him the Lord's commands." "Our Lord is the crown, nay, the very substance, of all revelation. If he cannot convince the soul, no other can."

It is to the man with this record and holding these views that Lord Salisbury has presented the greatest prize that can fall to the lot of a member of the State Church of England. Dr. Temple is certainly a great and worthy man, and possibly the prize could not in the present day go to a better or worthier.

The Dominion Premier will be entertained at a banquet by the citizens of Quebec tonight. Mr. Laurier grows in favor with the public of Canada the more they know of him.

Another Attack on the Queen's Representative.

At the Conservative convention in Toronto, Sir Charles Tupper is reported to have said:

"He had no hesitation in saying that if her Majesty were to adopt the course which was taken by the Governor-General in reference to the late Government, she would not be able to obtain the services of a single statesman in the whole of the United Kingdom who would undertake the responsibility of answering to Parliament for such an act. Sir Charles claimed that with the accession to office of the new Administration, all precedents had been brushed aside and the policy of introducing personal, instead of Parliamentary, government had been adopted."

The Conservative leader is very vainglorious now that Parliament is no longer in session. He had an opportunity to take the sense of the representatives of the Canadian people on the question of the Governor-General's treatment of the seep-gap Government. But Sir Charles did not dare to divide the House in condemnation of his Excellency, or of the new Government, which, in accordance with constitutional usage, declared that Lord Aberdeen did quite right when he stood up for the liberties of the people when trampled on by the moribund Administration.

All this outcry about the adoption of "personal" government, and this cool assumption by Sir Charles that the Government-General has not the indorsement of British statesmen, is wholly gratuitous on the part of Sir Charles Tupper. The defeated leader merely wishes to cover his retreat, from a position in which he was hopelessly beaten, by denunciation of her Majesty's representative, whose position does not permit him to continue the controversy.

When all is made known, however, it will be found that the course adopted by Lord Aberdeen has been unequivocally indorsed by the British authorities.

What can the old world statesmen think of these after-election lamentations of Sir Charles Tupper?

The succession duties on the estate left by the late Sir David Macpherson will amount to $22,000. None too much.

The wife of James Lyon, of the Sarnia Indian reserve, who died on Friday, was buried on Sunday from the English Church on the reservation to the Indian burying ground. There was a large attendance.

Goderich council have decided to do away with the artesian wells from which they have formerly derived their water supply, and have let the contract to Mr. W. Lyons, of Windsor, for laying a conduit into the lake.

Henry Harlick, of the Grand Central Hotel, Thamesford, was fined $30 and $15 costs by P. M. Morrison, of Ingersoll, for giving the privilege of going to jail for 30 days for keeping two bars in this hotel on fair day. He paid his fine. Inspector Cook prosecuted.

Charles Johnson, one of the oldest residents of Windsor, died Monday night in his son's home, 747 Howard avenue, Detroit. He was about 80 years of age. He leaves a widow, a son and a daughter. He will be buried in Windsor on Thursday morning.

James Ireland, the well-known cheese and butter maker of Beachville, has assigned to the sheriff. The assignment is said to be due to Mr. Ireland's indorsement of a paper for a farmer of East Oxford, who recently became financially embarrassed and left the country.

In the Park Street Methodist Church, Chatham, upon the occasion of the anniversary service of the church, Rev. E. N. Baker, asked for a free-will offering of $400, which amount was required to insure a satisfactory state of finances at the year's close. The collection amounted to $490.25.

After running one week, it was found that the material used in building the tank at the Wallaceburg glass works could not stand the strain of the heat. Consequently the fire was shut off on Saturday and the glass set out of the tanks for repairs. It is expected to be in running order again in about five days.

A number of Sarnia's citizens have provisionally organized as the Elba-Traill Creek Gold Mining Company, of Sarnia, to operate the Elba mining claim in the Traill Creek district, which had been purchased for the syndicate by Mr. Robert Barr, of Roseland, who is also a large stockholder in the company. The officers are: President, David Barr; vice-president, John H. Jones; secretary, H. Gorman; treasurer, Thos. H. Cook; managing director, Robert Barr, Roseland, E. C.

William Matheson and J. J. Hendrick, of St. Marys, have been very successful this season in sinking artesian wells. During the latter part of the summer and early fall seven wells were sunk in Downie at an average depth of 90 feet, and each testing a flow of 90 barrels an hour. The names of the farmers are: John Murray, Robert Murray, Thomas McNichol, James Ballantyne, Thomas White, Alexander Hotson and John Hotson.

Some time ago J. I. Armitage, an American apply buyer, created much excitement among the Oxford farmers by arranging to purchase large quantities of apples at unusually high prices. He contracted for several thousand barrels, and was to have packed on Oct. 15. Two weeks ago he left town, and has not been seen since. The farmers are now beginning to fear that they have been duped. The suspicion is gaining ground that Armitage was sent out by the American dealers to block the Canadian market and give the Americans a chance to work off their stock.
