

LEAPS TO DEATH FROM BIG LINER

Brooklyn Man Leaves Note Saying He is Sick and "Cannot Stand This Any Longer"—Wife Notified by Wireless.

New York, Jan. 26.—When the White Star liner Celtic arrived recently from Liverpool and Queenstown with 800 passengers of all classes, Purser T. L. Evans reported that Thomas Tompkins, fifty-nine years old, of 188 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn, disappeared from the ship sometime on Wednesday night. He left a note in his cabin which read: "I am too sick and tired to stand this any longer. Please notify my wife." There were two valises containing his effects, but no papers of any kind were found, the purser said.

Tompkins had been abroad for some time, he told acquaintances on the ship. He was last seen at 6.30 p. m. Wednesday, taking a cocktail with two other passengers. He did not appear for dinner, and it was thought he had gone to bed early. When the steward knocked at the cabin door the following morning there was no response. The bed had not been slept in, and the note, addressed to the purser, was lying on the settee. Mrs. Tompkins, the widow, had been notified by wireless and was at the pier to claim her husband's effects.

Among the passengers who embarked at Queenstown were the Rev. Father Denis J. Wilson of Winona, Minn., and Thomas Donoghue of Cork. Father Wilson went to Ireland last summer for a visit and joined the Free State army as a chaplain. He was detained to the prison in Cork, where 500 republicans were confined. Among them Donoghue, who managed to escape with thirty others, and get safely on board the Celtic. While the ship was still in the harbor, Donoghue went into the dining room for breakfast and saw Father Wilson with several Free State officers who had come to see him off. Donoghue was in his cabin until the vessel was well out of the harbor.

Another passenger was the Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard, rector of the Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Charing Cross, London, one of the oldest churches in the British metropolis. He faces Trafalgar Square, where so many homeless persons sleep at the base of Nelson's columns when the weather is fine. In his cabin were the unfortunate who got into St. Martin's Church and sleep comfortably on the cushions in the pews.

Dr. Sheppard was chaplain to Queen Victoria, said that his church was kept open day and night all the year round, and while he did not approve of its use as a common lodging house, he believed it was doing good as a refuge for the poor. "If anything is stolen," he said, "the good Christians in the congregation can make up for it." He declined to comment on the Dr. Grant controversy, and said that he would take care to keep out of all discussions on the subject.

Dr. Sheppard was met at the pier by the Rev. Karl Reiland of St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square, who invited him to America to be the guest of the church for a month. Dr. Sheppard will preach his first sermon in America at St. George's next Sunday.

SLEIGH DRIVE AND SOCIAL

A party of about 130 members of the St. John the Baptist Young Men's Society and their friends, enjoyed a sleigh drive and social on Wednesday night. It took three large sleighs to accommodate the party and to the tune of horns and other instruments of music attended the journey was made to the Three Mile House and back to the society's rooms in the parish building in St. James street. Refreshments were served and games and amusements were indulged afterwards. The outing and social were thoroughly enjoyed and the new society proved itself most efficient in arranging an evening of pleasure. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Doyle were the chaperones and the men's committee which arranged for the evening's programme consisted of Stephen Daley, J. Butler, Edmund Lowe and Frank Hurley. The refreshments were in charge of a committee of ladies consisting of Mrs. Thomas Killen, Mrs. J. McCarthy, Mrs. F. Doyle, Miss M. Johnson, Mrs. A. McCarthy, Miss Margaret Driscoll and others.

Slayer Says He Doesn't Even Know Why He Shot His Friend.

Yorktown, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Coroner Fred A. Snowden of Peekskill was called to Yorktown Heights today to investigate the killing of Jacob Cassenberg, aged sixty, who was shot yesterday in his home by William Warren, a friend and neighbor. The police say Warren confessed and said he was drunk and did not know why he did it. He was overcome with grief when he learned his friend was dead. "I didn't mean to do it," was all he could say.

After killing the man with a rifle, Warren ran and fetched a member of the New York City aqueduct police who arrested him.

SALARY INCREASES RECEIVE ATTENTION

Matter Discussed at a City Hall Meeting and Goes Over to Later Session.

The matter of increases for civic employees occupied much of the time of the Common Council yesterday afternoon but nothing tangible was arrived at. All the commissioners favored increases but thought that any increases granted should be general and not confined to one department. Further consideration will be given the matter.

The estimate for the Workmen's Compensation Board for its department this year was $1,650. Last year, it was $2,224. This passed.

Payment of $6,255.29 for the work done in the Marsh Road in conjunction with the province, also passed. A sum of $1,000 is included for the Rockwood Park grounds. This occasioned considerable debate, during which it was revealed that some $15,000 had been spent on development of the grounds so far. The first amount spent was $5,000 in 1913, when a start had been made on draining the land. A bond issue of $10,000 was voted in 1920 and this also has been absorbed for drainage purposes. G. H. Hatfield, the road engineer, who was present, said that by the end of this year, a good running track would be constructed and the field would be in shape for a general athletic meet.

An amount of $2,000 for the development of the new West Side playground was allowed to stand until the commissioners meet with a representation of west end citizens regarding this project. Commissioner Frink, replying to Commissioner Thornton, declared that none of the west side people had made any offers of assistance in the development. He remarked that the location chosen would require a considerable expenditure to put it in shape and that the $2,000 was included to get a start.

Commissioner Bullock declared that the West End Improvement League was not taking hold of the project. In fact, he said, there was no present site not being the most suitable that could be obtained.

Commissioner Wigmore said he was rather surprised to hear that there was opposition. Other sections of the city had developed their playgrounds in co-operation with the city and he was sure that the west side people would assist. He suggested that, before passing the item, the west side league be communicated with to find out how far it was prepared to go in the matter.

Salary Increase. The item for salary increases then was presented to Commissioner Frink. He explained that he had not received any requests for increases, but that he thought the officials he was recommending for an increase deserved it. He recommended that the road engineer's salary be increased $250, making it $2,400; the street superintendent, $200, to $1,900; the assistant road engineer, $100, to $1,700. Also, that the chief clerk's salary be increased by $200 to $1,800, half to be borne by his department and half by the city.

Commissioner Frink, replying, said that the city paid $3.25 a day to laborers, which was more than received by other laborers, it was true. Yet, he could not conscientiously recommend a reduction as he was at loss to understand how these men supported their families on even this small wage. He did think that unmarried men might be paid $3 a day.

Commissioner Thornton reiterated that it should make no difference whether the laborer was married. Commissioner Wigmore said that he had not received any requests for increases from his men, although there were several deserving cases. He was prepared to recommend increases but these increases must apply right down the line and not be confined to the officials.

Commissioners Bullock and Mayor Fisher expressed similar sentiments. It was finally decided to throw the matter out at a meeting this morning at 11 o'clock.

Commissioner Thornton, expressed surprise that these increases were presented. It had been the common understanding, he said, that no increases would be granted this year, and on that understanding he had made up his estimate. If other departments were to increase the salary item, he contended that he had men in his department who were deserving of an increase. The city engineer's salary of $2,700 a year, he thought should be increased if the road engineer's was to be increased.

Commissioner Frink, said Commissioner Thornton, had made the positive declaration that there must be an end to paying city laborers 75 cents a day more than laborers employed by private corporations. "Where is his recommendation to that effect?" asked Commissioner Thornton.

HELP MAN BANDITS SHOT. Detective Gives Blood to Former Officer Hurt Five Years Ago.

New York, Jan. 26.—Five years ago Joseph Korody, then a policeman, was shot by bandits and he received wounds which caused complications that have lingered with him since. Recently an operation was ordered and it was performed yesterday.

A blood transfusion also was necessary. The operations were performed at the Norwegian Hospital in Brooklyn. Korody came out of the ether at 6.30 o'clock last night.

Acting Detective Sergeant Joseph T. Shea was chosen from a large number who offered to give their blood to help Korody. He received no payment for the loss of his blood as Korody said he was too poor to give remuneration for it.

After the transfusion, Shea put on his coat and walked to the subway. He asked reporters not to give his act any publicity.

"I don't know Korody," he said, "I was glad to have a chance to do him a favor."

The transfusion and operation was performed by Dr. Henry F. Graham, of 474 First Street, Brooklyn. The transfusion took a half hour, the other operation following.

KILLS TWO, WOUNDS THREE. Destroys Youth Then Dramatically Ends His Life in a Theatre.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 26.—While police were seeking Louis Cavellitti, for mer soldier and vocational training student of Fort Collins, Colo., for the slaying of two persons and the wounding of three others, one probably fatally, he entered a downtown motion picture theatre, took a front seat in the balcony and shot himself to death. The audience in the theatre was thrown into an uproar by the dramatic act of the youth. Police identified the body.

Cavellitti was being sought as the result of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Christina Nider, 25 years old, and Silvio Plocini and the wounding of Jimmy Fariello, Mike Nider, husband of the slain woman, and John Darigh, 6-year old son of a rooming-house employe, in a lower downtown rooming house.

SAYS HOLLY MAKES FOOD AND DRINK

Lawyer Gives Up Practice to Develop Properties of the Christmas Plant—Also a Tobacco Substitute.

New York, Jan. 26.—Holly, heretofore limited to Christmas decoration, contains properties of great commercial value, according to Stephen M. Hoye, corporation lawyer and chemist of 694 Sixth street, Brooklyn, who announced that liquid soap, alcohol, tobacco substitute, cattle fodder and medicinal remedies could be produced from the green leaf. Mr. Hoye said he was convinced that $1,000,000 would be a conservative estimate of the annual commercial value of the holly plant, which grows in profusion, particularly in the South.

"Saying that he had given up a $40,000 year income from his law practice to devote himself to the study of holly, Mr. Hoye told how he had experimented for the past ten years with the plant. The study was inspired, he said, by a talk with a Brazilian official, during which the latter told of a beverage with stimulating qualities which Brazilians made by steeping the leaves of holly in water.

"It occurred to me that the holly must contain medicinal qualities," Mr. Hoye said. "I sent some leaves to the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, for analysis. I received a report from Professor George W. Kavanagh which showed that holly had 14.66 per cent. in protein and 18.58 per cent. fat. These figures were higher than for such grains as barley, oats, corn and rye. Wheat, for example, contains two per cent. fat and one per cent. Holly contains six times more protein than wheat.

"I found that a substitute for alcohol could be extracted, as well as liquids of medicinal value in treating diabetes and kidney trouble. Liquid soap and tablets containing all the food elements of a dinner are by-products. The pulpy residue, when shredded, can be made into a filler for cigarettes and cigars. I have been handling out cigarettes with holly substitute within the wrapper to friends, who say they could not detect the presence of the leaf. The residue also constitutes an excellent fodder for cattle and chickens. I know a man on Long Island who is feeding his chickens holly pulp with good results."

Mr. Hoye was graduated from Yale in 1898. He has been counsel for several banking and railroad corporations. He is a member of the American Bowling and Billiard Academy. It took two hours more to put it out.

The total snowfall for the first twenty-five days of the month of January was thirty-five inches, which makes the grand total for the season seventy-six inches, or six feet and four inches. In the war of 1812, the U. S. lost fewer than 1600 men.
