HON. WILLIAM PUGSLEY

When Hon. William Pugsley was well he was only worthy of abuse from the tory press. Now that he is ill and unable to be in parliament the Ottawa correspondent of the Standard writes:

"The loss to the Liberals is serious. In forthis absence largely accounts for the coming from so influential a journal ly. fact his absence largely accounts for the apathy which has been shown by the opposition this session. His was the genius that framed most of the attack during the last two sessions." that an effort is being made to bring back again in this city the condition of opinion among the members of the British cabinet with regard to the naval british cabinet with regard to the naval estimates which are to be brought down. There is, however, a good deal of difference of opinion in the country, and a feeling that Mr. Churchill is leading his colleagues too fast and too far in the race for armament. The Manchester Guardian gives voice to the feeling of discontent. It is proposed to add four cupital ships this year, and the Guardian declares there is no occasion for more than two. It is said the new estimates call for £54,000,000 over the estimates of last year. Of this £8,000,000 the Guardian says it believes that from £3,000,000 to £5,000,000 has already been sport, and that Mr. Churchill has been pursuing the policy of spending the money pursuing the policy of spending the money is factory conditions of city government. pursuing the policy of spending the money and then asking permission to do so. But if £5,000,000 has already been spent, it is proposed to add £8,000,000 more, and the Guardian looks about for some explanation of an increase so unexpected. It charges that Mr. Churchill was not ing their share of local taxation might explanation of an increase so unexpected.

It charges that Mr. Churchill was not owners of sites which are not now bearing their share of local taxation might ment and the country, and that he is really embarking upon a new policy, really embarking upon a new policy, which must involve still greater expenditures for which the still greater expenditures. which must involve still greater expenditures, for which there is no sound rea-tures, for which there is no sound reason. We quote:—

"When Mr. Churchill spoke of his ratio of sixteen to ten over the next strongest power, he was thinking solely of our position as regards Germany in the North Sea. From the first, he has the North Sea. From the first, he has said that the three ships offered by Canada were to be ignored in calculating that ratio, but, all the same, he reckoned them in when he made his own dispositions of the fieet. The three Canadian ships, had the senate not rejected the bill, would have formed part of the squadron stationed off Gibraltar, which was intended to operate in the Mediterranean, if necessary, without diminishing the strength of our navy in home waters. Mr. Churchill also, in the memorandum addressed to Canada, the memorandum addressed to Canada, distinctly held out the hope that something might be seen of this squadron, or of its equivalent, on her side of the Atlantic. That is to say, while offering Germany a standard of sixteen to ten, he was all the while making arrangements for a considerable squadron in the Mediterranean in addition, and also for an Imperial squadron for service outside European waters. I will only state, writes Lord Selborne in introducing a book on 'Our Navy,' written by Mr. Archibald Hunz,' writes Lord Selborne in introducing a book on 'Our Navy,' written by Mr. Archibald Hunz,' writes Lord Selborne in introducing a book on 'Our Navy,' written by Mr. Archibald Hunz,' writes Lord Selborne in introducing a book on 'Our Navy,' written by Mr. Archibald Hunz,' writes Lord Selborne in introducing a book on 'Our Navy,' written by Mr. Archibald Hunz,' writes Lord Selborne in introducing a book on 'Our Navy,' written by Mr. Archibald Hunz,' writes Lord Selborne in introducing a book on 'Our Navy,' written by Mr. Archibald Hunz, and last on the support of the act.

JAS. COLLINS 210 UNION STREET, Opp. Opera House

I have been troubled with rheumatism for the last five years. Suffered with much pain in the limbs, back and feet and my joints have been badly swollen. Also suffered from constipation. Besides having a regular physician, I had tried every remedy without receiving the least benefit until I accidentally came across a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I began taking it, never thinking it would help me, but must acknowledge it has done wonders for me. Have taken more than a dozen bottles and feel that it has been a God-send to me. I am recommending it to all my friends.
