Mrs. Waterton was the only daughter of the late Charles Tillott, of Blackheath, England, and was married to Mr. Waterton at Rothesay in July, 1920, by the Rev. Canon Daniel. Rev. Mr. Waterton salso a native of England, having come to this country several years ago, and was stationed for some time in the parishes of Blissfield and Ludlow (N. B.), afterwards being transferred to the Kingston parish church. The funeral will take place from the Kingston parish church on Sunday afternoon. The death occurred in the General

WOMEN TO HAVE TAG DAY.

A meeting of the women's department of the dispensary board was held yesterday at their rooms in Prince William street, to arrange for their tag day, which will be held on Wednesday, Sepember 6. The money which will be raised is much needed by the institution, as the cost of running it is over $3,000 yearly and the only asset is about $500 from investments. In the drive which was held last spring a great many persons were found who had tuberculosis and adenoids, and these cases cost the institution about $1,000.

CHILD PRODIGIES WHO DID GO ON

Child prodigies on the stage sometimes go on. Sam H. Harris has three of them. One each in his three successful plays of last season and this—"Music Box Revue," "Six-Cylinder Love" and "Captain Applejack"—the "boy actors" being, respectively, Joseph Santley, Ernest Truex, and Wallace Eddinger, and each has gone through the blonde curls and knickerbocker stage of their stage careers and climbed the ladder to leads and electric lights.

Wallie Eddinger was born to the stage, the son of Lawrence Eddinger, a well-known actor. His first part was Little Lord Fauntleroy, with the long blonde curls and the velvet knickers, and his personal opinion of those curls, which he had to wear for several years, would not make good reading. But he parted company with them some years ago. As a grown-up he made his first hit in "Officer 666," and then followed other plays, but his chance came in "Captain Applejack," with his string of strange, beagoing oaths instead of that string of curls, and that wonderful "scum." He is a lusty pirate, but his father says that pirates were his childhood's fear. The cellar was full of them.

Time was when "America's Best Known Boy Actor" was a common sight on the billboards. Little Joe Santley was one of them. His first part was that of a girl at the mature age of three years, in Corse Payton's stock company in Brooklyn. Then he was the boy of day in "Six Cyliner Love" in New York and is out in Chicago with the show. He began high, at five years of age, as "the youngest and smallest Hamlet on any stage," with an Ophella of equally tender years, and toured the west for three or four years. Later he came to New York hunting a chance to play boy's parts, and finally landed in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," then was with Mary Pickford in "The Good Little Devil." He joined the grown-ups in "Very Good Eddie," and then came to his greatest success in "Six Cylinder Love" via "The Very Idea," and "Please Get Married." So three prodigies did go on.
