What-Not.

A Married Man's Embarrassment.

BY THOMAS HOOD.

A pretty task, Miss S -, to ask A Benedictine pen,
A Benedictine pen,
That cannot quite at freedom write
Like those of other men.
No lover's plaint my Muse must paint
To fill this page's spar.,
But be correct, and recollect

I'm not a single m Pray, only t ink, for pen and ink
How hard to get along.
That may not turn on words that burn,
Or Love, the lile of Song!
Nine Muses, if I choos a 1

May woo all in-a clan, But one Miss S-, I daren't address-I'm not a single man,

Scribblers unwed with little head May eke it out with little head
May eke it out with heart,
And in their lays it often plays
A rare first fiddle part.
They make a kiss to rhyme with bliss,
But if I so began.
I have my fears about my ears—
I'm not a single mon.

Upon your check I may not speak,
Nor on your lip be warm;
I must be wise about your eyes,
And formal with your form;
Of all that sort of thing, in short,
On T. H. Bayly's plan,
I must not twine a single line—
I'm not a single man. I'm not a single man.

A watchman's part compels my heart To leep you off its "beat;" To leep you off its "beat;"
And I might dare as soon to swear
At you as at your feet. I can't expire in passion's fire, As other poets can—
My wife (she's by) won't let me die—
I'm not a single man.

Shut out from love, denied a dove, Forbidden bow and dart, Without a groan to call my own, With neither hand aor heart; To Hymen vowed and not allowed To fiirt e'en with your fan ; ere end, as jûst a feiend, 1 must— I'm not a single man.

THE HOOSIER IN NEW ORLEANS.

After satisfying his gaze he asked a pas-serby what building it was; on being told it After satisfying his gaze he asked a passerby what building it was; on being told it was a hotel, he inquired for the entrance, and being informed, he ascended the steep ateps. Approaching the office, he enquired if he could get a bite? to eat. Mr. E. R. Mudge, who was the host at that time, and who is a host at all times, humoning the fellow, told him he could do so by paying adollar. After considering for some time on this item and gravely looking his host in the face, he said, "Well, I'll go, it, that's my dollar, what's your dinner?" "Well, "said the other with a smile, "it is not ready yet, but take a seat the table, and you can amuse yourself with the papers for an heur, when you will hear the gong, which will inform you that the dinner is ready." "The gong, what's that?" asked the Hoosier. "Oh, you

"No yeu don't take that that pudding," said the Hoosier with a seowl, "that's private oudding." And he rehelped himself

Shortly after the gentlemen opposite was n the act of drawing the dish over to him. Hold on, Mister," said the Hoosier, with a ook of triumph, "I'd have you to know that that pudding is private pudding," while at the same time he put his thumb to his nose and made sundry gyrations with his fingers. "Private wine, eh?"

The attention of the table being attracted during the latter scene, the gentlemen athe whole sfory was whispered from one to another. The thing took so well that every-gentleman was induced to send his bottle to the Hoosier with his complements; and our "green un" soon became as merry as a lord. Hiccoughing, as he left the table, he turned around to the gentlemen and said:
"Well old (hic) fellows, you couldn't (hic)

there was a general simpering and tittering among the waiters, turned on the servant who stood at the back of his chair, and who had taken away his plate for the fifth or sixth time, and cried out to him with an oath to bring back his plate, and "if he took it away again, he'd be dod rot if he didn't draw his picker on him," and suiting the action to the word, put his hand into his bosom, showing the handle of a buge bowie-knife.

After this, things went-on quietly, till the desert was put on the table, when a large Charlette Russe pudding was set right before the Hoosier. This he immediately drew near his plate, and looking right and left at
