

SCHOOLMASTER'S VALENTINE.

I write to you because, dear Kate,
I have a verb to conjugate;
The verb To Love, an easy word
To say, but, oh, 'tis very hard
To know each voice correct, yet I
Have quite made up my mind to try;
And this myself I cannot do,
Without a little help from you.
The active voice I know full well;
"I love," the rest I need not tell,
It is the passive voice alone
That puzzles me—ah! that's the one,
If "I am loved"—only I knew,
To be correct (I mean by you),
Ah! then I'd pass to "will and will,"
And ever be your loving Bill.

ALL FOR LOVE.—Like the youth of some other places, the Pittsfield (Mass.) boys, to the number of fifty or sixty, rush out of evening meetings as soon as the benediction is pronounced, and stand ready to offer their company to their opposites of the other sex as they come out. One of these young bloods was about giving his arm to the girl of his choice, a few nights ago, when her father, who hasn't a bit of romance in his soul, but a mighty sight of vigor in his muscles, stepped up, and taking in the situation at a glance, grasped the youth by his coat collar, lifted him about a yard clear of the ground, and nearly shook him out of his trousers. The young man has been shy of that Miss ever since. He says "it isn't safe to be hanging round a girl whose father acts like a derrick."

A Boston lecturer—quite a connoisseur in bird stuffing—told a droll story of himself. One day he stopped at a window where a large owl was exhibited, and remarked to a friend: "You see that there is a magnificent bird utterly ruined by unskillful stuffing. Notice the mounting? Excellent, is it not? No living owl ever roosted in that position. The eyes are fully a third larger than any owl ever had." As he thus spoke the bird raised one foot and solemnly winked at the critic. Moral: be careful in expressing your opinions.
