

WIMAN'S WEAK SPOT

Although a Financier of Consummate Ability

AND A BRILLIANT MAN OF AFFAIRS

He Never Appreciated the Real Value of Money.

This Was the Joint in His Armor—He Is Undoubtedly Guilty—His Friends Counsel Him to Plead Accordingly—Big-Hearted and Without Criminal Instinct.

New York, Feb. 23.—A gentleman fully acquainted with the case of Brastus Wiman, but who refused to allow his name to be used, said to a reporter yesterday: "I do not think that ball will be sought for."

If Mr. Wiman follows the advice of his friends and does the most conversant with the facts I believe he will plead guilty. The situation was peculiar, and there were many extenuating features. It will be much better for him to submit all the facts surrounding the charges and throw himself on the mercy of the court, and the prosecution can fight their case. Mr. Wiman certainly forged the name of E. W. Bullington and Ogden Browne, and he will not deny it. His relations with these men were very friendly and intimate. He more than once carried checks to them for the indebtedness of Dun &amp; Co. He would sometimes tell them that he was very hard pushed for money, and ask if they could not lend him the amount of the checks, and take his notes. They readily assented, indorsed the checks and gave them to him, thinking his embarrassment was a mere temporary one. In the two cases mentioned, he did not go through the formality, but endorsed them himself. Mr. Wiman is a big-hearted man, and there is not a drop of criminal blood in his veins. The greatest trouble with him is that he never appreciated the value of money. His enterprise made R. G. Dun &amp; Co. what they are. Every important movement of the concern was under his guidance. He saw opportunities and grasped them. He was a man of great energy and ambition. He made friends for the company wherever he went. Frequently, too, when schemes which had been recommended failed, Mr. Wiman generously put his hand in his pocket and met all the losses, saying it was his fault.

Respecting the statement that Mr. Wiman was not a partner, I must take exception to that. The books will show that when the company was sued for damages, Mr. Wiman was charged with one-fifth of the losses. He would never have any trouble with R. G. Dun, the senior member of the firm. He was confident that the old gentleman would never have pushed him, for he knew too well that the company was under the control of Mr. Wiman. There are two nephews, however, connected with the firm, who are jealous of Wiman; they are the ones who have made the trouble.

The story of his downfall was his beginning involved in the Staten Island Electric Light and Power Company. He persuaded a certain man to go into it with him, and the business was largely extended. Wiman put up his money for his share of the money, but the other man failed to bear his part. The consequence was disastrous to Wiman. As to the present accusations, Mr. Wiman has known for a year that they were hanging over him. I think he will let matters take their course.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

Favorable Panama Railway Change—The Bay Interests.

Panama, Colombia, Feb. 23.—It is said here that M. Mange, agent for the liquidator of the Panama Canal company, will assume the superintendency of the Panama railway in place of Mr. Rives on March 1st. Panama and Colon will gain much by this change.

The Spanish consul here sent back to Havana on Wednesday 27 immigrants, who had been deceived into coming to this country by the false representations of immigration agents.

Washington, Feb. 23.—An extradition treaty between this country and Costa Rica will be sent to the senate soon. A draft of the proposed treaty has been prepared and practically agreed upon. One or two provisions remain to be settled, but it is supposed that the next mail from Costa Rica will bring news of the approval of the Costa Rican authorities of the changes suggested by the secretary of state.

The Costa Rican authorities have agreed to exchange a treaty which would include the crime of which Woods was guilty, and the negotiations now in progress are in accordance with this promise.

Lion Loose in a Theatre.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Wallace, a 500 pound lion on exhibition at the dime museum here, escaped from his keeper this afternoon and bounded among the crowded audience. Broncho Boccacio, the lion's trainer, was about to give an exhibition in the big iron cage. He entered the cage, but an assistant, whose duty it was to close the door, failed in some manner, and the animal, seeing its chance, gave a mighty bound through the opening. He completely cleared the cage and landed in an aisle fully 20 feet from the cage. The brute gave vent to his feelings when he struck the floor by sending up a mighty roar, and then went trotting up the aisle, snarling and roaring. There was the wildest confusion of a scramble among the men, women and children of the audience. They dashed over the stage and rushed into the basement, hiding themselves in bins and boxes and in dressing rooms. One man appealingly offered a stage box to a big roll of bills if he would lead him to a place of safety. Others sought protection behind the curtains of the boxes. Some came out of the basement

ENGLAND INSULTED

Comments of the Leading London Newspapers

UPON ADMIRAL BENHAM'S CONDUCT

Towards the British Squadron in Rio Harbor.

SANDOW BADLY BEATEN.

A Little Ordinary Mercurist Makes Sport of the Modern Samson

New York, Feb. 23.—Sandow, the strong man, met his match yesterday for the first time. The meeting took place in Sandow's rooms in the presence of several physicians and half a dozen medical students. Dr. C. H. Herserun, a mercurist, was his opponent. Sandow went under the influence in a minute or so, and thereafter performed every act suggested by the doctor while himself not aware of what he was doing.

"You're weary, Mr. Sandow," said the doctor, when his patient began to show signs of giving into the slightest influence he was exercising. "You are going to sleep; your eyelids are closing, now you are asleep!"

Sandow was apparently in deep slumber. In response to the physician's suggestion, he breathed hard, and his chest rose and fell like a great bellows. "You cannot raise your arm, try it," commanded the doctor. Sandow tried and failed. He strained apparently with all his power, and grew red in the face in his attempt to elevate his right arm, but to no purpose, until the word was given, and then it flew like a battering ram. Then a five-pound dumb-bell was produced.

"Now, Mr. Sandow," this Jumball weighs 400 pounds, and I do not think you can lift it; in fact, I am quite sure you cannot," said the doctor. Then the strong man took hold of the dumb-bell in the middle. He tried to pull it over toward himself, preparatory to raising it, as he usually does with one weighing 25 times as much. He could not stir it. He went through all his exhibition motions; and to all appearances put forth all his tremendous strength. The muscles upon his neck stood out like iron until they were as big as an ordinary man's wrist, and he became red and purple, and finally almost black in the face, but he was unable to budge the little bell upon its end on the floor.

Then the trick was changed to the 130 pound-bells which had been taken to the house, and these were brought out.

"Here," said the doctor, "is one that weighs only five pounds; see how easy it is to swing it." Urged on still by the doctor he never gave such an excellent exhibition of his trained powers as now, when he grasped the big bell and threw it over his head with almost the ease that he would have exhibited had it in reality weighed what he had been told to serve.

When the test had been carried out to everybody's satisfaction, Sandow was restored to his normal condition of mental and physical strength. This required about a minute, and he was somewhat dazed for a while. Then he complained of extreme lassitude and said the muscles in his back and arms ached.

EASTERN CANADA.

Bell Telephone Company Prosperous—An American Citizen Act.

Montreal, Feb. 23.—The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Bell Telephone company of Canada was held to-day. The meeting was a quiet one. No questions were asked and everything passed off smoothly. The result of the year's business. The old board was re-elected.

The inquest on the body of Alexander McInnes, sixteen years of age, a farmer, who died suddenly, commenced to-day. The post mortem examination disclosed the fact that the throat was choked with wheat, partially masticated. Wheat was also found in the pockets. The inquest was postponed.

Brentford, Feb. 23.—Hon. A. S. Hardy, commissioner of crown lands in the Ontario cabinet, has been deposed from the city solicitorship by a vote of the aldermen. He held the position for over twenty years.

Metropolitan and Hays have been appointed to succeed him. Political differences are said to have led to Mr. Hardy's deposition.

Toronto, Feb. 23.—Mr. Garrison gives notice of a bill to amend the election act. He desires that mariners and other classes of men similarly employed who take the oath of allegiance to the United States in order to work there, but who maintain their homes in Canada, shall not be disfranchised thereby.

The Matabele Massacres. London, Feb. 22.—F. O. Selous, who was prominently identified with the South African company massacre of the Matabeles, it is said, will shortly bring an action against Henry Labouchere, paper, truth, asking damages for libel. The truth has strongly opposed the action of the company, in driving the Matabeles from the territory owned by them, and Mr. Selous, among others connected with the company, has been severely attacked by Mr. Labouchere.

Expensive Blaze. Port Wayne, Ind., Feb. 23.—Fire is raging in the heart of the city and three business houses are burning. The telephone exchange has been gutted.

Wall Street Affected. New York, Feb. 23.—Sugar was the feature at the opening to-day, and advanced 12 to 15 on heavy trading, based on reports from Washington about the growing opposition in the senate to the Wilson bill.

Their Queue Betrayed Them. Chicago, Feb. 23.—Special Treasury Agent M. E. Foley, has in custody on Chicago men who were turned over to the United States officials by the Welsh railroad. It is alleged that they came from China by way of Vancouver, masked second-class passengers, and came to Chicago on a sleeping car, beating their way. They have no money and no baggage. They are dressed as Americans, but small pieces of holly-wood were found concealed in their queues, on which were engraved their credentials to their fellow-countrymen. They would not talk or give their names, so they were booked as One Lung and Three Lung, according to their size and looks.

Protecting Vatican Treasures. Rome, Feb. 24.—As a result of the scare recently occasioned in the Vatican by the breaking out of a fire in the mint it has been decided to station a special fire brigade within the immediate area of the latter institution. The mint is immediately behind the Basilica of St. Peter, opposite the entrance door to the pontifical palace, and its right wing rests against the church walls of the Vatican library. In case of a serious fire all the precious treasures of the Vatican galleries, museum and libraries would be swept away.

Joyful Journeys. San Francisco, Feb. 23.—Although the attendance at the Midwinter fair yesterday was far in excess of that of any other day with the exception of opening day, today surpassed it both in point of interest and numbers. Thirty

CAUGHT A TARTAR.

Disaster Overtakes a British Expedition

ON THE CAMBIA COAST, W. AFRICA

Sailors From Two Warships and West Indian Corps

March Against the Forces of Chief Fodisalah—Capture Two Stocked Villages, Holding Them All Night—Retreat to Boats, Give the Savages a Chance—Ten British Killed.

London, Feb. 24.—The wife of the paymaster on board H. M. S. Widgion, stationed on the west coast of Africa, has received an ambiguous telegram, which indicates a fatal disaster has overtaken a British force in a fight with natives somewhere along the west coast.

London, Feb. 24.—Advices from Bathurst, capital of the colony of Gambia, West Africa, say that a detachment of British troops, including the 1st and 2nd regiments, landed for the purpose of attacking a slave-raiding band under Chief Fodisalah. It is reported the British were surprised by odds and compelled to retreat with heavy losses.

Later dispatches from Bathurst make the fight between the British and slave traders more serious. In addition to those killed and wounded a number of the greatest importance to members of the Roman Catholic church, who had just been received here from the sacred congregation of indulgences. It relates to the recitation in common of the most holy rosary, and provides that when two or more persons recite the rosary together it will be sufficient for each one of the number should hold in the hand, a chaplet or a pair of beads, properly blessed, to enable all the other persons engaged in the devotion to secure all the indulgences annexed thereto. It is probable, however, that the full attention of the full attention of the mind and spirit of the worshipper shall be devoted thereto.

Recitation of the Rosary. Baltimore, Md., Feb. 24.—A decision of the greatest importance to members of the Roman Catholic church, who had just been received here from the sacred congregation of indulgences. It relates to the recitation in common of the most holy rosary, and provides that when two or more persons recite the rosary together it will be sufficient for each one of the number should hold in the hand, a chaplet or a pair of beads, properly blessed, to enable all the other persons engaged in the devotion to secure all the indulgences annexed thereto. It is probable, however, that the full attention of the full attention of the mind and spirit of the worshipper shall be devoted thereto.

Tacoma's Coming Show. San Francisco, Feb. 24.—Frank Lane, of Tacoma, who is chiefly responsible for Tacoma's fair project, has been visiting San Francisco for a week. Last night he left for home. Just before leaving he said: "As a place of entertainment, Tacoma's fair is not intended to be a rival of the Midwinter, but it is to be an exhibition of the industry of the Pacific coast such as has never before been seen. It is, properly speaking, an interstate exposition, the territories and states of the northwest will be fully represented by Wyoming, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, British Columbia and Alaska. The resources of each will be amply and practically demonstrated, not for parade or effect, but for utility. Profits of the soil on which crops are raised and the minerals will be shown in detail, and the manufactures of such states as have manufactures. Growth and progress in the northwest is what we intend to make known throughout our fair and so far as possible it will be done on an extensive scale and in a practical way. The plan is to illustrate each phase of the country's growth, after the fashion of the 40 camp exhibit in your Midwinter Fair. A big feature, and a thoroughly original one, is a gigantic Indian village to be built on Oregon. It will be 250 feet in height, and to contain within its mammoth interior living illustrations of the manners and customs of the Indian tribes inhabiting the northern section of our country."

Pendergast's Fate Sealed. Chicago, Feb. 24.—Judge Brento this morning denied the motion for a new trial in the case of Pendergast, the murderer of Mayor Harrison, and sentenced the prisoner to be hanged on March 25.

China and Japan. San Francisco, Feb. 23.—The steamer Oceanic brings the following advices from China and Japan. The inhabitants of a large village named Ku Laou, in Canton Province, are said to be brigands and bandits who are just now overrunning that portion of the country, might pay them a visit constructed a strong stone building in the centre of the village in which they deposited their money and valuables. At the end of last month a band of sixty robbers arrived at the village and blowing open the stronghold with gunpowder, plundered its contents, amounting, it is said, to more than one hundred thousand taels. The affair was reported to the authorities, who immediately sent a detachment in pursuit of the freebooters, but up to latest advices they had not been captured.

Two men on the U. S. S. Concord were seized on the 12th ult. with smallpox, another on the 16th and a fourth on the 18th. They were all immediately sent to the hospital, where one of them died. Smallpox is prevalent in various parts of Japan. There have been fifty-two cases in Tokyo since January 1.

A tragic story comes from Guizhou, Japan. Tsuboi Zenshiro fell in love with a girl who refused to become his wife. She married soon after to one Zempu. Zenshiro resolved upon revenge. He went into Osawa's house, and before anyone was aware of his coming threw a bomb into the hearth at which Osawa's wife, his mother and servant were warning themselves. The mother was killed on the spot while the others were so seriously injured that no hope is entertained of their recovery.

Searching for Buried Miners. Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 24.—Superintendent Rosa came up the shaft of the Guyard mine at Plymouth yesterday afternoon. He said he thought the end of the search for the thirteen miners who were buried by the fall was very near now. "The work will be much easier from this out," he said, "and we can push ahead much more rapidly than we have been able to heretofore. The fall ahead is light and is mostly of coal, so that it can easily be cleared. It will not be half as hard to move as the buckshot rock we have just passed through. As to the bodies, we may come to one at any moment. I have ordered the men to be careful with their picks, as I don't want any of the bodies to be mutilated, and a careless man might drive his pick through one of them, you know, before he saw it." The searchers are not to be induced to buy any substitute article, take Hood's and only Hood's.

MODERN SURGERY.

A Boy With a Broken Neck Completely Cured.

New York, Feb. 24.—Isaac Gerstein, 10 years old, of Allen street, who was taken to the Gouverneur hospital on January 10th, with his neck apparently broken, Dr. Jamal said yesterday, will be discharged cured and returned to his home in a few days. Young Gerstein was knocked down and run over by a team and wagon.

Dr. Jamal said yesterday that when the boy was brought into the hospital it was found that he had sustained a fracture of the base of the brain and fractures of the second and third cervical vertebrae, with a probable dislocation either of the second or third cervical vertebrae. He was unable to speak or swallow. Occasionally he moaned with pain and he never lost consciousness entirely. The upper part of his body was put in a plaster of paris cast and he gradually began to improve. Hope was first entertained of his ultimate recovery when he began to swallow, taking small quantities of beef tea and other liquid food. From the third day after receiving his injuries, he showed signs of paralysis of the limbs, but now the only signs of paralysis are on the right side of his face.

The boy's neck and upper part of his body were kept in plaster of paris for four weeks, when they were removed and his injuries were found to have healed and though there are slight disfigurements due to the nature of his injuries, they do not affect his vitality. The results of his injuries, which are still apparent, consist of a peculiar squint of his right eye, which is due to paralysis of the sixth cranial nerve, and paralysis of the right side of his face, due to an affection of the right cranial nerve.

His sense of hearing, sight, taste and touch are all perfect, with the exception of a slight impediment in hearing, which will probably improve in time.

P. E. Island's New Governor. Ottawa, Feb. 24.—Howland, who was in a Lieut.-Governor of Prince Edward Island at 12:30 to-day by Lord Aberdeen. The whole city is excited to-day over the report that Angers, Olinette and Cossigny have resigned their positions in the cabinet. On inquiry your correspondent learns there is no truth in the story. Thompson denies it, but it shows that the government is not a happy family.

Carlton the Much Married. New York, Feb. 24.—The marriage of Henry Guy Carlton, the playwright and author, and Miss Olive May, who is a member of the John Drew theatrical company, was celebrated last night. The ceremony was performed while the company was in Chicago, but has been kept secret. On January 21st Mr. Carlton and Miss May, with Mrs. May, the bride's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl Gram. The party returned to Chicago, but the marriage was not announced, and not even the members of the company knew of it. This is Mr. Carlton's third marriage. His first wife, Miss May, was the daughter of the late Mrs. May. Miss May's mother, and two friends, left Chicago and ran up to Milwaukee, where they were married by the Rev. Carl