TAFT ON THE ABOLITION OF WAR

WILL BE ACCOMPLISHED THROUGH ARBITRATION

Ouestion of Treaty With Great n to Be Taken Up Immediately

1931 by the United Press Asso

Washington, D. C., March 28. The abolition of war is not the dream of of arbitration. The president has taken Mayor Morley on the subject was to Herbert Ford English, Robert Jelthe leal in a great movement of the broach the possibility of co-operative land, J. A. O'Brien and W. B. Shotnations looking toward the realization

Through a special interview granted by the president, the United Press is able to present for the first time his views on this vast project. Under the he following an earnest effort is made o reproduce his opinions as he exressed them.

Arbitration will surely come as the neans of settling international disutes. Disarmament is incidental, it ill follow as a matter of course and as no part in the present movement. The realization of arbitration will make mament useless, and when it is use ess it will disappear. The way to disose of armament is to provide some neans of settling international disputes ithout the use of armament

The first step is the formation of ar rbitration treaty with Great Britain The favorable manner in which this uggestion has been received in Great Britain speaks well for its early ac omplishment. The favorable enddrse of France is another indicatio ime is ripe. When severa get together with such the others will observe he new system works, and all acter will be taken up immedi ately. Secretary of State Knox and Ambassador Bryce probably will exchange deas, and the treaty will be worked out o that it may be submitted to the sente at the earliest possible time comatible with careful preparation:

It is right that the United States hould take the first step in this movement. The hearty response with which the plan has been received is an indiation of this. While the exact details ere as yet in a formative stage, they will soon be worked out.

The arbitration treaty must not be infused with an alliance. It distinctly not an alliance. It is an agreement between two nations to settle disputes arising between them, and will have no earing whatever upon a dispute be ween one of the parties and a third power.
