In the case of W. B. Mackay, Charles T. White and R. D. Robinson vs. the arises in regard to lands in Sussex to an even rate of about 14 miles an hour. By the courtesy of the Majestic Steamship Company management, quite a number of guests were on board, among whom were Mrs. Samuel Thorne and children, Mrs. Bert. Estabrooks, Frank Watson, Edward Horneastle, Gilbert McMulkin, Oram Mabee, J. Patterson and others.

As the boat, adorned with bunting, edged away from the wharf and headed up stream, she was greeted with a piercing chorus of shrieks from the steamers and mills—an honor which she gracefully accepted. On reaching Cronk's Cove she turned on the home trip, just as the May Queen came in sight about one-half a mile up river. The trip down could scarcely be termed a race, but there was more or less of an anxiety on both boats as to which would come to wharfage first. The Majestle put about and sped along the back route, but the Queen was obliged to make a couple of stops along shore, resulting in the former boat coming to her wharf just as the latter rounded the point.
