THE TORONTO WORLD

No mair of common sense who interests himself in this business wants impossibilities or absurdities. Give the large dealer the lower rate; it is done in business of bargain and sale generally, and let it be done in freight business too. By all means give the man who takes 100 cars. But, everything in reason. The present objection is that rates are utterly unreasonable now, and so indefensible that they won't bear the light. Turn on the light, we say; let us have just the very fiercest light that we can get to beat upon the throne of reilway monopoly. The plain truth is all that the time, and he did not forget his Whig family friends. He appointed many, very many of them to effice, and to pensions last-ing for lifetimes. By and by the Grey Ministry got into disfavor, even among the Radicals of the day, who but recently had been shouting for it. Somebody hit upon a happy thought. He just got up and published the "Grey List," as it was called—a the "Grey List," as it was called—a that the officers of some of their vessels have list of all the worthy Earl's friends was a big one, it counted into the hun- the navy is of no use for anything. dreds. It was published without note or comment, but the mere facts of the Grey List killed the Grey Ministry as dead as a door nail in three weeks. A Canada Railway List might have a similar effect now. Whatever may be the motives of the Mail's and of other Ontario papers' attacks on the standing of the Roman Catholic church in Quebec, the outcome cannot for a moment be doubtful. No one will dare to pretend that the Castor-Rouge coalition is not quite sphemeral. A corrupt bargain has been struck to enable the the outcome cannot for a moment be doubtful. No one will dare to pretend that the Castor-Rouge coallition is not quite ephemeral. A corrupt bargain has been struck to enable the Uitramontanes to take vengeance on the Gallicans, and to thrust for a time the Rouges in to power. This compact, naturally disgusting to both, will of course be rendered as little unpalatable as possible by a free division of the spoils. But the moment it becomes plain that the object sought cannot be obtained by the means employed, the alliance will be shired erd in a trice. It is not in the nature of the hierarchy to dally long with those whose radical content. Nor can the Rouge continue to hug those who contend that all laws should be of the church. Nor can the Rouge continue to hug those who contend that all laws should be of the church's making.

Miss Cleveland has discovered the mistake in lath the relation. Rouge condition is not quite ephemeral. A corrupt bargain has been struck to enable the Uitramontanes to take vengeance on the Gallicans, and to thrust for a time the Rouges in to power. This compact, naturally disgusting to both, will of course be rendered as little unpalations. Miss Cleveland says that she retires from the editorship of Literary Life because she is sick from overmuch writing. We are bound to believe her readers when they say they are sick of it too. The fact is that the sating when the object sought cannot be obtained by the means employed, the alliance will be shired and the relationship of Literary Life because she is sick from overmuch writing. We are bound to believe her readers when they say they are sick of it too. The fact is that the estimated by the means employed, the alliance will be shired by the means employed, the alliance will be shired by the means employed, the alliance will be shired by the means employed, the alliance will be shired by the means employed, the alliance will be shired by the means employed, the alliance will be shired by the provision of the county of the county of the count

When Rouge and Castor have resumed their true positions the attacks of the Ontario press on the status of the Roman Catholic Church will begin to bear fruit. It requires no witch at a riddle to guess that the so-called political parties in Canada are on the eve of disintegration. The solidity of Conservatism depends on the life of one man already far advanced in years. The party which numbers among its leaders a Joly and a Mercier, a Mackenzie and an Edgar, a Blake and a Flemming cannot be said to have any solidity. Liberalism, it is true, has only one aim, but that aim which, if we consider the heterogeneous materials of which the links are made, is all too brittle to be binding.

It is not too much, then, to expect that at The distillers and brewers of the United States and brewers of the United States and brewers of the United States have in convention assembled "re-States have in convention assembled "re-Floating cargoes—Wheat rather easier; maize a turn dearer. No. 1 California just shipped, etc., sail 34s 9d, was 35s; do. nearly due 34s was 34s 6d; maixed American maize, prompt shipment, and the newly-converted prohibition organ is as anxious to condemn the Ontario Government as to sustain the Act. These letters show—if they show anything—that the Act has made confusion have anything—that the Act has made confusion have anything—that the Act has made confusion have anything—that the Act has made confu terials of which the links are made, is all too brittle to be binding.

It is not too much, then, to expect that at some day the genuine Liberalism of Quebec will free itself from the foul and foreign accretions which now choke it. And when that time arrives, it will find that its audience has been greatly enlarged. Other ears than those of timid custom, of superstitious ignorance, of purblind reverence will be open to its complaints, to its arguments, to its proposals. In the vast and unique privileges of the Roman Outhelic Church in Quebec, the people of Ontario will begin to suspect the explanation of Quebec's poverty and Ontario's burdens. And as soon as the whole question of tithes, of exemption from taxation, and of the accumulation of the pool of the accumulation in the the free of the committee of the the free of the the free of the the free of the committee of the foundation in the the free of the of the states Government is determined that the Apaches who surrendered upon favorable contitions and the the Apaches who surrendered upon favorable conditions and the whipped by somebody. The true proposals are free o lation of untold property in mortmain, has been thoroughly discussed, as surely as day follows night, Liberals of Ontario, nay, Liberals of all Canada, will perceive in it a matter of vital importance to the country at large.

It is no secret that even now there are in Quebec thousands dissatisfied with their peculiar institutions. The Church is, moreover, thoroughly aware of this dissatisfaction. She will certainly do her utmost to preserve the status in quo. But she has to contend with two mighty antagonists—Time, which devours from taxation, and of the accumu- not yet been invented. two mighty antagonists—Time, which devours so many of his offspring, and Liberalism, freed from the fetters which now clog its every movement. It is, indeed, quite possible that this Liberalism which we forestell may have its abode in the breasts of those calling themselves Conservatives. It will create, however, no great surprise if the country should owe to Conservatives what naturally ought to have been the crit of Liberalism.

Conservatism what naturally ought to have been the gift of Liberalism.

We have no wish, however, to aid in the precipitation of a struggle whose issue for good or evil must largely depend upon the spirit with which it is entered on. We are not careful to insist on the necessity of that struggle. But we accept it as a fact in the future.
