TWO

A DAUGHTER OF THE SIERRA

BY OHRISTIAN BRID

ed by permission of the B. Herder Book Co., St. Louis, Mo,

CHAPTER XIII

INTO THE SIERBA

Why the deuce you should be in such a hurry to get away, Lloyd I don't understand." It was Armistead who spoke, in no very amiable tone, as he sat on the side of his hard, narrow bed in the room the two men occupied to-gether, and watched Lloyd's prepar-

"If you don't understand, it's not because I haven't told you why I'm going," Lloyd replied, rolling up, with the definess of long practice, a few necessary articles on the zerape which was to be carried behind his saddle. "I have nothing to do here; and, not being fond of idleness, I going out to Urbeleja to look after some prospects." "There might be a good deal for you to do here, if you were not so confoundedly disobliging, and would do it."

As for example-?"

To assist me in getting possession of the Santa Cruz Mine." "I've told you that I can not possibly assist you in that matter. I made that plain to you before we left San Francisco."

I didn't believe you would really be such a-um-er-" "Don't hesitate to use the term you consider applicable. I am not thin-skinned and can stand it."

"Well, you must acknowledge that no sensible man would act as you are doing." "According to your definition of sensible man, probably not." "And I consider that you are treating me very badly besides."

"You haven't the faintest right to think so, in view of our positive understanding; but if you do, the remedy is simple—we'll shake hands now and go our different ways."

"And how about those prospects in the Sierra?"

Lloyd shrugged his shoulders as pulled the straps of his roll

"The prospects will remain pros-pects," he said; "at least I shall not expect you to sell them." tighter.

Armistead frowned as he looked at the other.

You are without exception the most pig headed and impracticable man I have ever known." he said. You are ready to throw up for tune, if half what you say of those prospects is true, rather than help me in a matter that does not con cern you in the least

It concerns me to hold fast to my own standards of conduct. I don't impose them on any one else, but they are essential to my self-re-

Oh, hang your self-respect.' Armistead rose, moved impatiently across the room, then turned sharply When are you coming around. back to Topia ?" he asked.

don't expect to return to Topia," Lloyd answered. "I have no business here. From Urbeleja I shall go to San Andres." "Well, of all—" Words failed

"Well, of all—" Words Ialieu "Well, of all—" Words Ialieu Armistead for a moment, as he stood with his hands in his pockets staring with his hands in his pockets staring "I must believe you, I suppose." but I have my suspicions that the prospects come in very conveniently And if you see Dona Vicgive up those mines because you are a quixotic idiot."

"In that case you can meet ine as San Adres, where I must go to see about the titles. I will let you know I could not give the warning without betraying confidence, you know. As when I reach there, and you have nothing to keep you here." "You are mistaken; I have a great deal to keep me here. To get pos-session of the Santa Cruz Mine is my stoutly. session of the Santa Cruz Mine is my first business in the country, and I ing; in fact, I know nothing of Armto direct operations. Then, since you have failed me, I must depend

"I am very glad to hear it. Tell me, then, exactly what you want me "Not unless it were for slipping Not unless it were for slipping away so mysteriously at the San Benito the other evening and not coming near us since," she answered. "I was just wondering if I should have to send and compel you to come and be thanked for the beauti-ful sketch of the quebrada you have sent me." to say." "Something like this, I think: that you feel deep interest and sym-pathy in her struggle for her rights, and that you hope she will give atten-tion to any advice I may offer her." Miss Rivers rose eagerly. "Come into the sala and help me write it," she said. "My Spanish is not faultess, and after 'Muy apreci-able Senorita' I should be at a loss sent me.'

how to proceed."

pleasure of meeting you again.

"But surely you are not going to

You are as bad as papa. Topia

Nothing, except that the Sierra is oor of 'La Golondrina,' Voy a partir a lejanas regiones.

"Well, I am going into the 'lejanas regiones' also," she said, nodding determinedly. "Some day when you would come !" " "Hasten the day !" said he, smiling.

"I shall look for you now on the top of every mountain I climb."

And I will answer : 'I told you

She laid her hand in his.

Go with God !" The beautiful stay in the Sierral' she exclaimed 'You will be back soon ?"

She looked surprised.

Lloyd

"I am glad if it is what you want ed. It did not satisfy me at all." "One always finds it difficult to be satisfied with one's work, does one not? I can account in no other way for your not being satisfied with this. You must pardon me for say-ing that it seems to me much better done than any of your other sketches, of which Mr. Thornton has shown me a good many."

"Has Thorpton kept those fragments? Well. if this is much better, it must have been with me as with old Picot, the French carpenter : you put a spirit into us to make us do our best for you." She looked at him for a moment in silence before she said : "I should like to put a spirit into ou to make you do your best for time to go. He rose to his feet, slipp.

you to make you do your best for ing the note into an inner pocket; and as he did so his glance fell on yourself. "I am sure you would," he anhis own sketch of the quebrada, which was placed above the desk. Isabel's glance followed his.

swered, smiling at her - they had by this time sat down in two large chairs facing each other. "I have never seen any one who evidently possessed more strongly the desire of helping lame dogs over stiles. But, you see, sometimes the dog is ungrateful-

You are not that, I am sure, Mr. Lloyd.

And sometimes he is incapable of moment you snatched me away and the boulder crashed past us, brushprofiting by the assistance of the kind hand held out to him. That is ing my dress as it went." He could not resist the temptation my case. The time has gone by when I could care to do anything for myself. It is long since I have even particularly cared about making money, which is understood to be money, which is understood to be the first duty of an American. But I am going to mend my habits in that particular, at least. I am now on my way into the Sierra to take up ne prospects." 'You are on your way into the 80

"Not very soon, I fear; and it can not be that Topia will keep you very Sierra !" She glanced at his horse and then across the valley at the eastern heights, where a trail wound upward like a thread to the pass be-tween the crowning cliff. "I wish will keep me for a long time yet; and, besides, I am going out into the Sierra. What is to prevent our ween the crowning cliffs. I were going with you.' Needless to say that I wish so.

meeting there ?" very wide, and, like the sad-hearted

"That is more polite than true, I'm afraid. But I am determined to go some day. I shall make papa take me.

You are going to see Dona Vic toria some day, you know." "I hope so; but"—she lsaned sud-denly and eagerly forward—"are determinedly. "Some day when you have climbed a high mountain, you will find that I have been coming up you going to see Dona Victoria now, Mr. Lloyd? Oh, you don't know the other side. We shall meet on the top. You will say: 'What! you how much I have been thinking.

wondering how you would contrive here! to warn her!" "This seems the only way," he d. "Of course I am not going to said. see Dona Victoria. I shall simply call at the mine and warn Don Mariano to be on his guard against pos

"I am sure we shall meet," she said confidently; "but meawhile I hope you will come back and tell me sible surprise." "How good, how very good of you how you have fared with Dona Vic toria. I trust she will heed your to undertake such an errand ! Don't give me more credit than I warning. deserve. I am going to Urbeleia, as

So do I, for her own sake, And now "-he held out his hand-"good-bye! I suppose I will find Mr. not take me very much out of my Rivers in the office?" "If he is not at the mine. Good-

And-what is it they say here ?-Vaya Vd. con Dios ! toria parting words still rang in his ears

'May I tell her that she owes the after he had climbed the steep heights and paused an instant at the summit of the pass for a last look at Topia, lying in its green valley three thousand feet below ; and then rode it is, my conscience is not at all easy about the matter." "It should be, then," said Lloyd, onward into the fair, wild, sylvan ways of the great Sierra.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE CATHOLIC RECORD

to oblige you in any way possible, Armistead ; but I really don't think it possible for us to take any part in e business."

"My dear sir," replied Armistead earnestly, "I don't ask you to take part in it further than to recommend ome men for my purpose."

"But that's impossible, don't you see ?-because the only men for whom I could speak are the men in our employ, and it would never do for any man connected with the Car. followed her willingly Mine. enough into the room she had made so pretty and homelike. He was not sorry to carry away a picture of her as she sat at the desk beside the winidad to be concerned in this matter. "In short," said Armistead, stiffly, "it seems that I can not count on any friendly services from the Cari-dad. It's not avacuate that I can help you in the matter? " "For some private reason of his own—probably he is afraid." Thornton shook his head. dow and wrote her note, with the light falling on the softly piled masses of her golden-brown hair and the gracious curves of her fair cheek. The few lines which he dictated dad. It's not exactly what I looked for-to have the cold shoulder turned to me by the representatives were, however, soon written, the pale gray sheet, with its stamped of an American company.

"I think that we have proved that monogram and faint violet fragrance, was put intc an envelope, addressed to the Senorita Dona Calderon, and there is no cold shoulder turned to you personally," Mr. Rivers answered; "and if your business here where of an ordinary character, the Caridad influence and help would be with you. But you must recognize that that what you are engaged in is not an ordinary business, but is one in which so much feeling is arrayed against your claim, that I should

Was

"You see I have it there," she said, "not only to admire, but to rememseriously injure my company with the people it I lent you any assistan ber how near I was to being carried You could not expect me to do that down into those dark depths. That is why I wanted the shadows of eveneven if my own sympathy were with you-that is, with Trafford-in the ing—the impression of awe; and you have given it so well. I can never look at it without thinking of the contest: and frankly, it is not.

Armistead rose to his feet, more angry than he wished to express "I see that I have nothing to expect in the way of help here," he said with apologies for having troubled you, I'll bid you good-day." Mr. Rivers rose also, and laid his to say: 'I am glad you have it, then; for I shall know that you remember me sometimes, if I should not have the hand upon the other's arm.

"Be reasonable, Armistead !" he rged. "You are a man of the world urged. and you certainly must know that Trafford's conduct in this matter is inexcusable. We all like you but we continental line now, and a great swell. But no man from the West can't possibly let our personal liking lead us into lending a hand to as for an audience, though bigger men do. They talk of him out there yet dastardly a business as any man-again I am speaking of Trafford-Not of Bucks, which he came to be, nor of ever engaged in. But don't go off General Manager Bucks. On the offended. Come into the house and see Isabel. If Armistead had been capable just whole lot. then of smiling, he might have smiled at the tone of the last words. 'Come into the house and see Isabel," Mr. Rivers said, much as he might have offered a sugar-plum to an angry child; and with an absolute couldence now, and by all accounts soon will be too in the efficacy of the sugar-plum. superintendent. But Armistead's feeling where too much ruffled to allow of his accepting "It is a good deal of money-$300. 000-Callahan," I objected. the invitation. He curtly declined to pass into the patio, toward which Mr. Rivers' gesture invited him; and, turning his back on its possible se-ductions, walked out of the front door into the street-or, rather, into the road which became presently the main street of Topia. Before he reached the first houses of the village, however, he met

Thornton, who, followed by a mozo with a bag of coin carried on his shou ders as if it were a bag of grain, $300.000 in it for Bucks. was on his way to the office; for this was pay-day at the Caridad, and on such days the merchants of Topia were frequently called upon to give up all their silver in exchange for drafts on Caliacan and Durango. They were very willing to do so, since the drafts of the mine supplied an prised. exchange which there was no bank "Wh to supply; and since the coin with which they parted quickly found its way back, through the hand of the "Hello!" said Thornton, as he met the man swinging at such a rapid pace down the road. "The express pace down the road. "The exisn't due for five minutes yet. Dreaming, werent you?" he added with a laugh as Armistead paused. Thought you were in the Land of "High winds will prevail for en-

Hurry again, I suppose, with a transaction of a million or so to be settled agents will use extra care to secure

You

" How so ?"

on any road.

"I thought you had one. What has become of Lloyd? "He has gone off into the Sierra." "But isn't he coming back?" "Not to help me in the business I What am here specially to transact." "And that is-?" "To get hold of the Santa Cruz none of them weighed over sixty pounds. Fify-nine was due at 11 o'clock; it was 12:30 when she pulled Mine. You must know—it appears that everybody knows that." "Ah!"Thornton looked meditatively in, and on Callahan's track. But Bucks hung around until she stag at the great heights towering before them. And why will not Lloyd

Not even the hardy chief police ventured out.

TO BE CONTINUED

By Frank H. Spearman

BUCKS, DESPATCHER "I see a good deal of staff in print about the engineer," said Callahan, dejectedly. "What's the matter with the despatcher? What's the matter with the man who tells the engineer what to do-and just what to do? How to do it—and exactly how to do it? With the man who sits shut in brick walls and hung in Chinese puzzles, his ear glued to a receiver, and his finger fast to a key, and his eye riveted on a train chart? The man who orders and annuls and stops and starts everything within five hundred miles of him, and holds under his thumb more lives every minute than a brigadier does in a lifetime? For instance," asked Cal lahan in that tired way of his. What's the matter with Bucks? stealthily, evenly, resistlessly into the teeth of the night. In a minute, Now, I myself never knew Bucks. He left the West End before I went only her red lamps gleamed up the yard. One man still on the station on. Bucks is second vice-president -which means the boss-of a trans-

He came up to the despatcher's End that calls on Bucks has to wait office and eat down. Callahan won dered why he didn't go home and to bed : but Callahan was too good a General Superintendent railroad man to ask questions of a superior. Bucks might have stood West End he is just plain Bucks; but Bucks on the West End means a quiries from Callahan.

I kind of looked for my mother tonight," said he, after Callahan got his orders out of the way for a minute.

"Chicago. I sent her transporta-tion two weeks ago. Reckon she thought she'd better stay home for Christmas. Back in God's country $5,000 apiece, isn't it?" Callahan had a cold-blooded way of figuring a passenger's life from the average wind."

standpoint. "It would have killed over fifty passeogers if the runaway "It would have killed point for two freights when the door closed behind Bucks; he didn't even " Good night." sing "Good night." And, as for Merry Chri-well, that had no place > ing into the room. Callahan wasn't asleep. Once he did sleep. When he told Bucks, he made sure of his time, only he thought Bucks ought to know.

Bucks shook his head pretty hard Tabard Room that time. "It's awful business, Jim. It's murder, you know. It's the pen-itentiary, if they should convict you. thing happened because you went to sleep over the key, you'd have them Hotel on your mind all your life, don't you know-forever. Men-and-andchildren. That's what I always think about—the children. and scalded and burned. Maimed Jim. if it ever happens again, quit despatch ing; get into commercial work; mis takes don't cost life there : don's try to handle trains. If it ever happens with you, you'll kill yourself."

That was all he said. No wonder Callahan loved him.

CALGARY, ALBERTA DAY, FERGUSON & CO. BARRISTERS DENTISTS

James E. Day John M. Ferguson Joseph P. Walsh TORONTO, CANA TORONTO, CAMAR Reilly, Lunney & Lannag. BARRISTERS, SOLICITORS, NOTABLE CALGARY, ALBERTA DR. BRUCE E. RAID Room 5, Dominion Bank Chambers Cor. Richmond and Dundas Sts. Phone 5853 St. Jerome's College Founded 1864 KITCHENER, ONT Excellent Business College Departmens Excellent High School or Academic Department Excellent College and Philosophical Department REV. A. L. ZINGER, C. R., PH. D., PRESIDEN Funeral Directors John Ferguson & Soms 180 KING ST. The Leading Undertakers & Embal Open Night and Day Telephone - House 373 Factory 548 E.C. Killingsworth FUNERAL DIRECTOR Open Day and Night 583 Richmond St. Phone 3978 When in Toronto visit the King Edward Breakfast 60c. to $1.00 Lunch - - 75c. Dinner de Lux $1.50 Splendid Service manelli's Orchestro Father Finn's Latest Book

No. 59, the California Express, was late that night. All the way up the valley the wind caught her quarter-ing. Really the marvel is that out there on the plains such storms didn't blow our toy engines clear off the rails; for that matter they might as well have taken tha rails, too, for ven to Employment Cast off Clothes Always in Demand 25 Shuter St. gered up under the streaked moon-light, as frowsy a looking train as ever choked on alkali. There was always a crowd down at the station to meet 59. But it was not so that night. The platform was The engineer swung out of his cab with the silence of an abused man. His eyes were full of soda, his ears full of sand, his mustache full of burrs and his whiskers full of tumble weeds. The conductor and the brakemen climbed sullenly down, and the baggegeman shoved open his door and slammed a trunk out on the platform without a pretence of sympathy. Then the outgoing crew climbed abcard, and in a hurry. The conductor elect ran downstairs from the register and pulled his cap down hard before he pushed ahead against the wind to give the engineer his copy of the orders as the new engine was coupled up. The fireman pulled the canvas jealously across the nar-row gangway between tank and engine. The brakeman ran hurriedly back to examine the air connections, and gave his signal to the conductor; the conductor gave his to the engin-eer There were two short snorts from the 101, and 59 moved out nlatform watched them recede : it was Bucks on his head on the stove, and it red hot, without being pursued with in-

"He saved the company just $300. 000 that night the Ogalalla train ran away," mused Callahan. Callahan himself is assistant superintendent had ever struck 59, and there wouldn't have been enough left to on the West End anyhow. "D-i, D i, D-i, D i," came click make a decent funeral. Then the equipment, at least $50,000. But there was a whole lot more than 'He told me once that if he hadn't saved 59 that night he would never nave signed another order anywhere Why?" I asked, a little bit sur-Why ?" Because, after it was all over he found out that his own mother was aboard 59. Didn't you ever hear that? I thought that by this time everybody had heard of that incident. Well, sir, it was Christmas Eve, and the year was 1884. Christmas Eve everywhere but on the West End; there it was tore frantically around The wind

Where does your mother live ?"

Office Hours 9 to 4 TORONTO PROFESSIONAL CARDS WATT & BLACKWELL Members Ontario Association ARCHITECTS Bixth Floor, Bank of Toront LONDON, ONT. nto Chamber

M P MODONAGH BARRISTER. SOLICITOR, NOTARY, MTC. 425 Richmond St. London, ONT.

JANUARY 18, 1919

U. A. BUCHNER BARRISTER, SOLICITOR, NOTARY

SPECIALTIES : Estates Collections Money Loaned 426 TALBOT ST. LONDON, CANADA

FOY, KNOX & MONAHAN BARRISTERS, SOLICITORS, NOTARIES, Hon.J.J.Foy, K.C., A. E. Knoz, T. Louis Monshes

Iddleton George Cable Address : "Poy" Telephones (Main 794 Main 798 ices : Continental Life Building

CORNER BAY AND RICHMOND STRENTS P. O. Box 2008 Box 2003 Phone M 4118 H. L. O'ROURKE, B.A. (Also of Ontario Bar) EARRISTER, SOLICITOR, NOTARY

Money to Loan Suite 5, Board of Trade Building 281 Eighth Avenue Wea

on the Caridad people for help in certain matters. By the by, are you going away without bidding Mr. and Miss Rivers farewell ?'

Certainly not. I shall call to see them as I leave town. And now glancing quickly round—"I believe I am ready for the road. Good bye, old man! I'm sorry I can't wish you cess in the Santa Cruz matter, but I hope you'll come to no personal harm over it Armistead lifted his brows.

To what personal harm could I possibly come ?" he asked. Good-Look out for yourself in that fearful Sierra !'

Oh, the Sierra and I are old friends !" Lloyd laughed, as he went out to where his horse waited for

In the saddle and riding up the street, the stimulating freshness of the morning, with its diamond-like air and brilliant sunshine, seemed to brace both body and spirit like a tonic. And so it was a clear-eyed, self contained map, with mouth and chin resolutely set, who presently rode with the ease of old familiarity into the patio of the Caridad house, and uncovered at sight of Miss Rivers, who was basking in the sunshine on the corridor.

"O, Mr. Lloyd !" she cried, looking up as his horse's feet rang on the pavement. "How delighted I am to see you! Oddly enough—and yet not oddly at all,—I was just thinking of you.

Not anything ill, I hope?" he said, as he dismounted and went toward her; thinking, when he met the smile on her lips and in her eyes, what a face to match the morning some advice to Don Mariano, which he may or may not heed."

"Will he not think that you are the assistance he needed from "the king a liberty, and perhaps resent Caridad people," paid a visit to Mr. taking a liberty, and perhaps resent it, if you put the matter that way?' Possibly; but that is strictly his affair.

affair." "No, no: it is our affair also; for we are thinking of Dona Victoria and her mother, and we don't want them to lose their mine. Take my advice, Mr. Lloyd—perhaps I ought not to give it, but I will,—and make your warning emphatic. Let Don Mariano understand that it rests on Mariano understand that it content of the second to the seco knowledge." "But Don Mariano would be quite Now, I suppose I don't need justified in wondering why I should betray the confidence of my friend for the sake of strangers. That is "Yes, I see. It's rather a difficult matter, isn't it ? "Very,' said Lloyd, a little dryly; so difficult that the part of wisdom. if not altruism, would seem to be to stand apart and let the opposing forces fight it out slone." 'Oh, but I can't' - I really can't!" said Miss Rivers, distressedly. "When I think of that man in San Francisco and those poor women in the Sierra,

"In what from ?" "Well the form of a line or two to Dona Victoria, asking her to heed any warning I may give." "Do you think she would heed that?" "I am inclined to think so. I tion took place in the office of the know that you won her liking and Caridad. trust during your journey up the quebrada.'

AN OLD ACQUAINTANCE in five minutes over the selephone. cars on sidings; brakemen must use See how much better we do business care to avoid being blown from from Topia, Armistead, in fulfilment of his expressed intention to obtain ward the mozo, who haulted patiently bent shoulders. "Send that fellow on! I want to talk to Rivers and formally asked this assistance. The Gerente of the Cari-dad leaned back in his chair and you," said Armistead, impatiently. "Go on to the office, Dionisio, and tell the Gerente that I will be there in five minutes," said Thornton in Spanish. "He'll not be surprised if he doesn't see me for helf an hour the speaker added as the mozo 'Such are the blessings of being what scoffers call the Land of Manana. And now what can I do for to tell you ?"

'A great deal, if you like," Armiyou that there's a pretty strong feeling about this Santa Cruz matter." Armistead shrugged his shoulders. "That is to be counted on of stead answered. "In the first place, what will you take to sever your con-nection with the Caridad and enter into my employ?" Thornton stared for an instant.

cerned," he replied. "You aren't in earnest?" he said. Do you suppose I ever jest on bus-iness?" Armistead demanded. "You Rather more than simply against 'women' in this case, you know, my dear fellow," Mr. Rivers suggested. "I understand perfectly that it wouldn't do for you to give open assistance, and I am not asking any-thing of the kind," Armistead went but I am left in rather a diffisalary you are getting from the Caricult position by Lloyd's defection.

If feel that I must take part in the He has such scruples, or such fears dad company, for as long a time as fight, if I have to go and warn Dona for himself, in the matter that he has refused to give me the help I you to California with me when I go "You couldn't possibly do that; but it might, perhaps, help matters if you were to give me a credential."

reliable men to take possession of the worwhelmingly," Thorn-the mine; for I'm sure you'll agree with me that that is the best and quickest way to end the matter." great on a system which, as you re-quickest way to end the matter."

trains.' That was about all Bucks said in is bulletins that evening; not a ord about Christmas nor Merry "Twelve or fourteen cars passed." with the heavy bag of coin on his bent shoulders. word about Christmas nor Merry Christmas. In fact, if Christmas had come to McCloud that night they conddit have here - just - now east - running a-a a." Callaban sprang up like a flash - listened. What ! "R.u.n-minutes, much less twenty four hours; the wind was too bigh. All lahan jumped to the key. "What's that ?" he asked, quick as lightning the week, all the day it had blown-a December wind: dry as an August could dash it. "Twelve or fourteen cars coal noon, bitter as powdered ice. It was in the days of our western railroad-ing when we had only one fast train passed here, full forty miles an hour, headed east, driven by the wi—" on the schedule-the St. Louis Celi. fornia Express; and only one fast That was all J could send, for Oga lallah broke in. Ogalalla is the staengine on the division-the 101 ; and only one man on the whole West End tion just west of Jackson. And with Callahan's copper hair, rising higher -Bucks.

Bucks was assistant superintendat every letter, this came from Oga-lalla. "Heavy gust caught twelve coal cars on side track, sent them ent, and master mechanic, and train master, and chief despatcher, and store keeper—and a bully good fel-low. There were some boys in the grade." out on main line off down the service; among them, Callahan. Callahan was seventeen, with hair country that you've forgotten how men do business—at home. Of course I'm in earnest, and to prove it I'll make a definite offer. If you come to me I'll double __it you eight miles away, headed east, and running down hill. Callahan's eyes turned like hares to the train sheet Fifty-nine, going west was due that minute to leave Callendar. From Callendar to Griffin is a twenty mile run. There is a station between, but in those days no night operator. The runaway coal train was less than thirty miles west of Griffin, that night that it blew most of the color out of his hair. Horses and cattle huddled into friendly pockets a little out of the worst of it. or froze mutely in pitiless fence corners on the divides. Sand drove gritting coming down a forty-mile grade like a cannon ball. If 59 could be stopped at Callendar, she could be laid by in with me that that is the best and quickest way to end the matter." Mr. Rivers picked up a ruler and tapped meditatively on the desk be fore which he sat—for this conversation took place in the office of the Caridad. "Perhaps so," he said guardedly. "It is a point on which I hardly feel main line. Callahan seized the key and began calling "C-n." He pound-ed until the call burned into his fingers. It seemed an age before Cal-lendar answered; then Callahan's

"Hold 59. Answer quick."

the station; but everything else was A Sequel to "Lucky Bob" Cloth, with Frontispiece $1.00 Postpaid

> In this new story the vividly interesting young hero comes into his own at last, after a year of adventure in a large city.

By Christian Reid A Daughter of the Sierra

367 Pages 60c. Postpaid

"The story of the Santa Cruss Mine is admirably told, and the denouement is just what one would wish."—Ave Maria, Notre Dame.

NOW READY FOR DELIVERY THE NEW CODE OF CANON LAW Codex Iuris Canonici Price $4.50 Plus Postage 26c. Gatholic Record LONDON CANADA