ber 25, 1920.

g. Higher and louds of silver his little hear grew dim with Winding River ad, and Lonely a crystal gobningbird might e Nighthawk en envied, had i risen so high gely, the stars ay as ever, and cy grew deeps eamed.

rising now, but in and out of The scene beiliar and indisingan to wonder are Merry Forest gain, strangely faint. he should die ner sky? Some matter. If the time were to be ingle hour, like flowers in one tume—should he dizziness passed ad strong again. die—not yet at thought about it of Limself and d Bill to Bob, d has come right a bird!" laughed ticket? Didn't dollar a minute v anything about hink perhaps he actors a song or I he was out of at the moon and sang, but when d down again he from Redhead's city. Thousands long, interlacing trees and house e and movement.

ng sound.
this part of his
he Merry Forest,
little mixed—he r-ship must have those wonderful oodpecker would
he should not be ly began to dive

those starry, en, scarcely more sousetops, it just d and rose. It kless somersaults was bewitched, nd clung, but it im. In the midst rot dizzy and lost lown he fell, too e his wings. The red in his dazzled went out, and a pped him like a n passed, and he puiet little wallednidst of a bed of a and sweet allyought he must be the saw the moon over the wall he ened in the same was glad, for he k to the Merry adventures to an audience.

from the Merry from the Merry w, and it was sevhe got back. His his safe return arty on the banks er, where he talked ent, and was the Blue were there sure they did not t wonderful story. ntinued.)

CARADIAN Charanan

A National Church of England Weekly

VOL. 47

TORONTO, DECEMBER 2nd, 1920

NO. 49

The Unity of Christendom

Let us thank God.

For the clearer vision of a united Christendom.

For the invitation put forward by the Lambeth Conference to all Christian people to respond to God's call to unity.

For the better understanding of aims and motives, and the desire for fellowship.

For the measure of co-operation achieved in the Mission Fields and at home.

Let us pray.

That Christian people everywhere may be willing in the quest for unity to enter on an adventure of goodwill and faith.

That they may discover anew God's creative resources, and the power of His Holy Spirit to further the unity of Christians.