After seven days journey I reached Pyeng Yang and went at once to one of the houses which had been purchased for our use, but which, on account of the opposition of the governor, we were unable to occupy for several months. It had been used as a home for dancing girls and was still being used for the same purpose. After some difficulty, they consented to give up the house. The following two nights the heuse was vigorously stoned by a band of men, who had been accustomed to spend their evenings there, but had now been defeated in their evening and had a great many visitors who all heard the story of salvation. Every night we held our service and a deep interest appeared to be manifested by a good number. Everything was moving on smoothly and all opposition had ceased, but on the morning of the 17th of Feb., several of the leading men of the district came in and said they had been accustomed to receive 1,500 cas ($2.50) from this house every year to sacrifice to the evil spirits, and they wanted me to give the same amount. Asked as to the statement that he intended to form a new religious body, Mr. Horner replied, "I have not even thought of such a thing. My work is evangelizing."

"Why then did you buy the Concession st. Baptist church?" was asked. "I did not buy it, nor is it in my name. The property was bought by a committee of gentlemen, and the purchase was not even at my suggestion."

He was cheerful and happy and showed no spirit of resentment. I asked him if he felt like giving up serving Christ when he was so sorely persecuted. A smile lighted up his countenance as he said. I cannot give up serving my king, even if they kill me."
