By this means, to quote Count Karnice-Karnicke's pamphlet, many fellow creatures will be saved from the horrors of the grave in which, through an error of diagnosis, they have been interred as good as alive. In a footnote the Count observes: "Science fixes the length of the state of lethargy at fifteen days' maximum. The apperatus should be at the disposal of families at the rate of 1 france per day, that is, 15 francs per burial. Thanks to an arrangement with an insurance company the total rate of hire should not be more than 5 francs for the whole period of observation."

The World's Swedes. The 31st of December, 1896, Sweden The 31st of December, 1896, Sweden had a population of 4,962,568, an increase since 1895 of 48,000 people. Estimating an additional increase during 1897 Sweden probably now contains 5,000,000 inhabitants, or a million less than the Dominion of Canada; in all about 6,400,00 people of the world speak the Swedish language, inclusive of 1,000,000 in the United States, 325,000 in Finland, 38,000 in Norway, 10,000 on the continent of Europe, a few thousands in Denmark, and probably the same number in this country.

In the winter we would haul logs on the pond where the alternate thaws and frosts of early spring would imbed them in the ice and slush. When the time came for starting up the mili I would go out on the pond sometimes in water up to my knees and work from morning till night chopping logs out of the slush and ice. I was generally wet from head to foot and every second thrown into lethargy. That would therefore be one person of 1,000 taken in lethargy and declared dead by the physicians. Would it not be logical to admit, that if these four persons owe their life to the fortunate chance of waking up before interment, four others at least have come to life too late in the grave? In assuming the proportion to be one to 1,000 I am very much below the calculations of the Drs. The least bit of walking in damp weather overcame me and I remember one stormy night when I tried to walk from Cocagne Bridge to my home, a distance of five miles, that I had to sit down by the roadside six times to ease the terrible pain that had seized my legs. During all those years of agony I think I tried all the patent medicines I could get hold of, but they did me no good at all. I consulted doctors but my sufferings remained undiminished. In the fall of 1895 I went to a doctor in Buctouche to see if there were any mesns by which I might de relieved of my sufferings. The doctor said frankly "Mr. Murray You cannot be curred nothing will cure you." I was not a staisfied and then I d termined to try. Professor Emil Theoder Koches I Switzerland's leading surgeon and alsone of the foremost surgeons in the world. He has practiced the art of surgery in London, Parls and Berlin, but of late years he has made Berns his home. He is there the chief of the Berne Poly-technic School. His treatises, memoir has made a specialty of children, and his original methods and discoveries have gone far toward advancing the art of surgery and of reducing the sum of human suffering. Professe Kocher has had ample opportunities and apple Kocher has had ample opportunities of acquiring position in worldly life, but with the modesty of the true scientist he has shrunk from all pursuit except to which he felt himself called. His fame does not lie with the world at large, but is conterminous with the members of his own profession. In that world his name is known to all, and in his country of Switzerland he is loved and respected for the good he has done and is doing for humanity. Professor Kocher is not merely a surgeon. He is a man of science also, and his work has been of the highest order, judged from a purely scientific point of view.

Professor K. Munzinger is perhaps the Professor K. Munzinger is perhaps the most distinguished musician and composer of Switzerland. He is the director of the Berner Liedertafel, the most prominent musical organization in the country. In that position he occupies a high place in the national music of Switzerland. When the six hundredth anniversary of the republic was celebrated in 1891 Munzinger composed the festival cantata. This was also the occasion of the seven hundredth anniversary of the frounding of Berne. As a conductor he has won great distinction and has conducted almost all of the great national musical feasts held in Switzerland of late years, or, at least, since he has come to the front as a director. Professor Munzinger is a graduate of the noted conservatory at Leipsic, and the influence of the Germans is shown in nearly all of his compositions. As a composer of national songs Munzinger is without a peer in Switzerland. His music is note-familiar to oar public, owing chiefly to the fact that most of it is written for large choruses or singing societies, and especially for male voices. It is by no means unknown, however, to the German singing bands in Canada. Professor Munzinger has not written any operas and has indulged in but few songs.
