The young man has a rifle of which The young man has a rifle of which he is very fond, and was going to the woods near by for some sport, when he encountered Miss Alway. The young girl had been seated on a swing, but seeing her brother, she came toward him. Just how it happened is not definitely known, but while the two young folks were walk-ing as stated the rifle was discharged. The bullet struck the girl in the mouth at an angle. Several of the upper front teeth and parts of the jaw were carried away. The bullet jaw were carried away. The bullet next encountered molars on the right jaw, knocking them out, and embedding itself near by.

But for the fortunate angle at which the bullet entered, the result would in all probability have been fatal. Dr. Graham, of Lobo, and Dr. Morris, of Delaware, were called, and probed for the bullet. No very serious outcome is now expected. The young girl was yesterday doing quite as well as

Vm. Gray & Sons' Magnificent Exhibit Much Eulogised in London.

One of the finest exhibits of the Western Fair at London, is that of Wm. Gray & Sons, of this city, Of it the London Free Press says:

Never in the history of the Western Fair did the Transportation Building contain a finer display of carriages and in this record display, the exhibit of Wm. Gray & Sons, of Chatham, is the largest and most conspicuous. Gray's carriages have long been the standard for Canada, and when the standard for Canada, and when one looks at these fifty magnificent rigs, it is easily seen that thoust and ard is a very high one. One of the most striking traps in the exhibit is a doctor's Stanhope. It is fitted with rubber tires, and is the counterpart of those driven in Hyde Park, London, England. A light two-seated surrey trimmed in whip-cord, attracted a great deal of admiration, and several hansome Mikados, run-abouts, and stivers, are at once exquisite in design and unsurpassed in easy running qualities. The London agent for these carriages is Mr. J. H. Moran, 363 Talbot street. Anyone who will visit these spacious show rooms, opposite the Market Square, will find Mr. Moran ready to show them a truly magnificent stock of Gray's carriages.

The floral tributes were beautiful and completely filled a wagon-box which was utilized to carry them in the procession. One, of a particularly beautiful design, was a wreath from the Government. There were also numerous other emblems from different friends and institutions.

The service, which was conducted at the home, was very impressive. Rev. Mr. McInnis, of Thamesville, presided. Rev. Mr. Munroe, of Ridgetown, opened the service by reading a very appropriate passage of Scripture. He was followed by Rev. Rev. Mr. McInnis then gave his address, choosing his subject from Heb. vi., 12,-"That ye be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises." From this subject the reverend gentleman gave a very earnest, eloquent and appropriate address. He reviewed in general terms the life of deceased. He pointed out that although Mr.

Férguson was a modest, retiring man, not wishing to put himself forward in any way, still there were many things in his life that not only deserved admiration but imitation. He laid particular stress on the sterling monesty of deceased and of his faithfulness to the constituency he represented; also his faithfulness to his own church.

"I have seldom met with a man who took such a deep, interest in church work," said the minister. "Mr. Ferguson was always a very liberal member and an exceedingly attentive and patient hearer. He took a great spiritual interest in every-The hymns were also very appropri-
