BITTEN BY A NEVILLO

ONE OF THE TERRORS OF LIFE ON THE ISTHMUS OF TEHUANTEPEC.

Recovered-The Treatment Which Saved Him From Death.

"I guess I am the only living man that has been bitten by the nevillo, a venomous lizard of the isthmus of Tehuantepec," said William W. Cloon, a New Yorker with Central American experiences. "This lizard is of the Gila nster family and is a horrid looking reptile of a mottled liver color and is from six to ten inches long. Its bite is deadly, and, as I said, I am the only person known who has lived after being bitten. It was a case of nip and tuck, though, and I didn't get over it for two months or more. "The brute bit me out of pure malice, for I wasn't doing a thing to it. I had a coffee plantation down on the isthmus several years ago and just before the hot season began, which was in March, I had as my guest Dr. Fergus MacDonald of the Smithsonian institution, who was in that country in the interest of science. While he was with me we received an invitation to visit the great plantation of Dr. Pedro Arguilles, one of the most prominent men of that country, and we went to his bacienda near Minititlan. The ladies of the family had all gone to Mexico City, and as the weather was hot we men loafed around in our pyjamas, the upper garment of which is a big sleeved affair called a camisa.

"One day Dr. MacDonald and I had adjourned to the patio or court of the building, and while I lay in the grass talking to him he was busy greasing and putting into shape his guns and revolvers. He was six or eight feet away from me, and I was lying with my head propped up on my arm, from which the sleeve had slipped, leaving it exposed to the elbow, which rested on the grass. Of course neither of us was thinking about reptiles or other dangers right there in the court of the building. Suddenly, as I talked, the doctor threw his hand up in warning, and I knew that whatever it was he saw there was danger in my moving, and I must keep still. So I kept as steady as I could, and then I felt something go up my arm toward my head and stop near my wrist. "I couldn't see what it was, but I knew something about tropical reptiles and I kept perfectly quiet while the doctor caught up one of his revolvers and threw a couple of cartridges into it. He aimed across my body and fired, and as I jumped to my feet a nevillo at least seven inches long fell writhing to the ground, shot through the head. The bullet had gone on into my arm and came out at the elbow and I was phy when we compare his process bleeding. Between the bullet marks, with that of the Frenchman. Dableeding. Between the bullet marks, though, were the fang marks where the neviño had stuck its teeth into my arm, and I told the doctor I thought it had got me. As soon as he saw it he gave me some kind of a hypodermic injection in the left leg. the right arm having been bitten, and at once took his had been bitten > began to grow dizzy and to see what seemed to me to be clouds of light smoke, and when the ammonia struck me I keeled over in a

"Five days later I awoke in a mudbath by the riverside, my body twice its normal size and my tongue sticking out of my mouth. They had carried me there as soon as I fainted, and night and day my guide and his daughter had been watching by me, with fires at night to keep off the animals from the jungle. Every 12 hours my arm was lifted from the mud and cleansed, and on these occasions it was always found to be of a green color, As soon as I returned to consciousness was carried to the house and put to bed, and there for two weeks I remained and then went down to the coast and up to the well known hot springs, where I was treated for two months until every bit of the venom had left my body. During it all I suffered no pain, nor have I ever felt the slightest inconvenience since. What effect the builet wound in the arm had I don't know. Possibly the blood that came from the bullet wounds saved me. Anyhow something happened that never happened to any other person bitten by a nevillo, or I wouldn't be here to tell the story." Mr. Cloon bared his arm for the benefit of the listeners, and if an arm ever looked as if it had been through a hard campaign that one did. It was scarred as if burnt with hot irons and covered from the elbow down with all kinds of peculiarly shaped mottled spots of about the same color as the lizard.

Located the Noise.

A little 4-year-old was taken on a visit to grandmamma in the country. There for the first time he had a view of a cow. He would stand and look on while the man milked and ask all manner of questions. In this way he learned that the long crooked branches on the cow's head were horns, Now, the little fellow knew of only one kind of horn, and a few days after obtaining this information, hearing a strange kind of bellowing noise in the yard, he ran out to ascertain its cause. In a few minutes he returned with wonder and delight depicted on his countenance, ex-claiming: "Mamma, mamma! Oh, do ne out here! The cow's blowing her horns!"-Exchange.

20TH CENTURY'S HOROSCOPE.

diets For This Period.

The horosce je of the twentieth cen ton astrologer, known in astrologi-cal literature as "Hermes."

Mercury stands in the tenth house of the Zodiac, and Mars in the seventh house, both in angles. Mercury rules the destinies of the United States, and its dominant position over Mars shows that the United States will rule the whole of North and South America, but not with-out fighting with Germany and Eng-land, for Mars, the ruler of those countries, stands in the house of open enemies. Uranus, the ruler of Russia, however, stands in the powerful, ruling tenth house, and near to Mercury, showing a possible coalition between Russian and the United States.

Uranus and Saturn, rulers of the rising sign, portend universal changes in political and intellectual circles and point to a growth of Socialism.

The spread of education, commerce, aerial and submarine navigation, increase of mechanical invention, are all indicated by Mercury strongly placed in the tenth house elevated above all other planets.

Celibacy will increase, as is indicated by the conjunction of Venue with the moon in Mars' second house of Scorpio. Wars, and rumors war, and business disasters shown; the first by the position of the sun in the house of congresse near to Saturn; and the second by the position of a retrograde Nep-tune in the house of speculation. Speculation in general will be very active in the opening years of

The outlook on the whole is optimistic and rose colored. Saggitarius rules the eleventh house, the houses of hopes, ambitions and of congress es, parliaments, etc. Jupiter, its ruler, applying to a conjunction with Venus, in the ninth, are both grand testimonies of an optimistic outlook for the twentieth century. Governments will yield popula measures to the people; religious creeds will near a better point of common understanding, and bigotry will decline.

The Father of Photography.

The discovery of the art of photo graphy is very generally, but erroneously ascribed to Daguerre, a Frenchman; but those who have any acquaintance with the history art rightly ascribe the honor its inception to an Englishman, Fox Talbot, the centenary of whose birth has recently occurred. It is a matter of comparatively easy proof to show that Talbot brought his process before the Royal Society some menths before Arago introduced Daguerre's name to the French Academy. Still more has Fox Talbot the claim to be the parent of photograguerre produced on a single plate a sinule picture in the camera, and his process has for many years been obsolete; Fox Talbot, on the other hand, gave us the transparent nega-tive image from which numberless copies could be printed—a method which, in this main feature, is pracknife and slashed me across the fang ticed in the present day. It is also marks. Into the wounds of my arm noteworthy that Fox Talbot gave us he poured a bottle of concentrated a method of obtaining pictures by nonia, Almost instantly after I the action of light on metal plates, the prototype

The Gaelic Service.

One fine Sunday morning a tourist arrived at a kirk in Argyleshire, intending to enter for the English seras soon as the Gaelic service was over.

"Is the Gaelic service over?" inquired of the beadle. No, but it will not be very

So the tourist strolled on into the churchyard, where the tombstones lay deep in the long grass. By and by he was recalled by the shouts of the beadle, who stood at the door waving to him.

But is the Gaelic service over? he asked once more. "Oh, ah! it will be over.

"But I have not seen the congre gation; which way did it go?" The beadle directed his attention to a solitary figure slowly wending his way up the hill, and said: "That's him!"

Relative Importance of Letters.

To those who have never considered the subject it might appear that each letter is of equal importance in the formation of words, but the relative proportions required in the English language are these: A, 85; b, 16; c, 30; d, 44; e, 120; f, 25; g, 17; h, 64; i, 80; j, 4; k, 8; l, 40; m, 27; h, 64; i, 80; j, 4; k, 8; l, 40; m, 27; h, 64; i, 80; j, 4; k, 8; l, 40; m, 27; h, 64; i, 80; j, 4; k, 8; l, 40; m, 20; h, 17; n, 64; 1, 80; J, 4; k, 8; 1, 40; m, 30; n, 80; o, 80; p, 17; q, 5; r, 62; s, 80; t, 90; u, 34; v, 12; w, 20; x, 4; y, 20; z, 2. It is this knowledge of how ferquently one letter is used compared with others that enables cryptogram readers to unravel so many mysteries.

Probably half or two-thirds of his lung surface barely knows the contact of oxygen. He's the kind of man, who, when a cough attacks him, goes galloping down the road toward consumption. Many such a man has found strength and healing for weak lungs and tissues lacerated by coughing and drained by hemorrhages, in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. when I started to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' writes Mr. A. F. Novotny, of New York, N. Y., Box 1437. "I had a regular consumptive cough, of which I was afraid, and everybody cautioned me and warned me concerning it. I was losing weight rapidly, was very pale and had no appetite, whatever. Now my condition is changed entirely. I do not cough at all, have gained eight pounds in weight, have recovered my healthy color, and my appetite is enormous. I can recommend your medicine to everybody who may be in need of the same, as it is a sure cure."

SKIN DISEASES.

Simple Precautions by Which They May Be Prevented.

Among the most common diseases of Among the most and eczema, one of which is known to be and the other probably is the result of the presence of a microbe on or in the skin. This microbe is a vegetable growth, although a very minute one, and, like other nox ious weeds, when once it has been plant ed and has begun to grow it is often ex-tremely difficult to dislodge it.

Every farmer knows that it is easier to keep a field clean by constant care than to clear it after it has once been overgrown with weeds. It is the same with the skin. It is easier to keep the skin in health and to arrest a commence ing disease than to cure a disease once it has become firmly established.

If it were generally understood that the presence of a few pimples constitutes a true skin disease, which, if neglected, will probably grow worse, fewer persons would suffer from the disfigurement of

The skin is much like the system in general. If it is in good condition, it will repel the assaults of disease, but if neglected it becomes less resistant and soon offers a favorable soil for the growth of noxious germs. The skin is one of the so called excretory organs, and if the other organs of similar function—the kidneys and the bowels—do not perform their work properly an undue proportion of the waste products of the body must be got rid of through the pores of the skin. This throws work upon the integument which it is not accustomed to perform, and it soon becomes diseased in consequence. The first thing necessary to keep skin well is to maintain the health of the body by exercise, cleanliness, fresh air day and night, good food properly cooked, a sufficient amount of sleep and suitable clothing. In addition to these general measures the skin itself should receive special attention in the way of a daily bath, followed by vigorous rubbing with a coarse towel or flesh brush. Some persons have naturally clear skins, while others appear to have a special predisposition to black heads and special predisposition to black heads and pimples. The fortunate was must see to it that they do not mar what nature has given them by an unhygienic mode of life, but the others need not despair, for their tendency to eruptions may often be evergone by a compalant care, both of be overcome by scrupulous care both of the body and of the skin itself, after the manner above indicated and in such other ways as the physician may direct.

Those who say they will forgive, but can't forget an injury, simply bury the hatchet, while they leave the handle out, ready for immediate use.—Dwight L. Moody.
