The Evening Chit-Chat
By RUTH CAMERON

How often do you think before you speak?
In other words how often do you plan in your mind before your tongue begins to work just what you are going to say?
Not very often, I'll wager.
If you are an average person, your tongue and brain probably work simultaneously, and as a consequence you seldom express yourself with absolute accuracy.
I met a woman the other day whose accuracy of expression, whose exact and measured use of words, whose perfect English, I at once marked.
And before I had talked with her for long, I also remarked a queer little trick she had of not answering the instant I ceased speaking, but of remaining silent for a moment as if to arrange her answer.
"Why do you do that?" I asked, when I knew her well enough to do so.
"I'm arranging just what I want to say before I speak, just as I do when I write," she exclaimed.
Doubtless it would be pretty difficult for most of us to do that as a regular thing.
But don't you think it is a good scheme to try to follow when you are engaged in any rather important conversation?

DON'T FORGET.
In large letters beside the living room clock of one home in this city hangs that warning, and beneath it in smaller letters is written—

To wind the clock.
To feed the cat and bring her in at night.
To wrap up your shirts and collars Wednesday and put them on the stoop for the laundryman.
To lock the window over the porch.
And half a dozen similar "to's".
Another copy of this document is stuck in the corner of the man-of-the-house's mirror, and another behind his pipe rack.
"I only put up one the first year," explained the little wife whose idea these "Don't forgets" are, "and when I came home it was gone and he said it had blown out the window. I had my suspicions, but I didn't say anything. I just put up three the next year."
Rather a good scheme, don't you think?
An amusing little birthday gift for a child or even an older person is a collection of pennies—one, two, or three of any number you care to procure—dated for each year of his life.
If you do it for anyone who is over twenty you probably won't want to get more than one for each year, as pennies of the older dates are rather hard to procure.
Scour the coins with silver polish, and present them in a little bag or purse and they make a most amusing and original little gift.
And, besides the pleasure of giving them, I fancy you will also find more interest than you would think possible in the hunt for the proper date.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.
The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallaw cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum, but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 22 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

Fads and Fashions.

Paris dressmakers are recommending Hindu embroideries and printed designs. These eastern patterns are employed in numerous ways.
Round yokes or neck lines are plentifully seen, but the latest waists show the square cut at the lower edge of the yoke or neck.
For informal visiting, travelling, trotting about, the short narrow skirt with the accompanying short jacket is the mode of the hour.
There is a disposition to finish all varieties of veiling with hems, or in some cases with narrow chantilly or light weight edgings.
The latest wrap is a sort of dolman, made of all-over lace in either black or white. Some are bordered with chiffon and lace bandings.
Fine edgings are used on frills of net, malines or tulle. A great deal of malines by itself is going into ruffled flat shoulder scarfs.
Some of the little neck pieces of colorless gowns are of silk covered with violets or some small blossom that are dainty and dressy.
In dress materials there are Paisley silks, cottons, foulards, chiffon and velvets; and perhaps the very latest thing is Paisley Shantung.
Good results are secured by a combination of contrasting materials, and this fashion is having a tremendous vogue at the present time.
The old-fashioned mixture of Paisley and fringe is shown in most of the shops in many articles of clothing and other accessories that women use.
Etamine linen—in lovely shades of wisteria, soft greens, wedgewood blues, saxe blue, dull reds, corn yellow, etc.—is ideal for the skirt an coat suit.
Attractive waists for summer are made of eyelet embroidery or of white linen, embroidered in broken dots. Belts, tie and stockings should match the color of the dots.
A morning blouse of any white material may be set off by a yoke and cuffs of the new mustard shade, or of blue, and should be worn with a belt of the same shade.
Evening gowns are simple. They show the influence of the peasant style. Instead of being on splendid lines with gorgeous ornamentation, they are unusually simple.
Many tunics are seen. They are not short, as they were last year, but they drop well down to the hem, or at least over the knees. They are of chiffon or mousseline.
Exquisite are many of the Dresden flower striped muslins. Some of the blouses of this material are trimmed with frills of sheer white muslin bordered by tiny colored blinds.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular or violent throbbing. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or, again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin, and visible pulsations of the arteries.
There may also be experienced a smothering sensation, gasping for breath, and feeling as though about to die.
In all such cases the action of Dr. Bove's Iron Tonic Pills in quieting the heart and restoring it to its normal beat, is beyond all question marvellous, as our thousands of testimonials will show.
Dr. Bove's Iron Tonic Pills are sold by all druggists and dealers at 25c per box.
If your Dealer cannot supply you send 25c. (in stamps) to us direct.

Dangerous Runaway.

Shortly afternoon yesterday a young and spirited horse owned by Mr. Geo. Summers, and driven by his brother, William, a young chap, took fright and ran away. The lad held the reins and after great exertion brought the beast to a standstill. The animal received several wounds in its flight, and Vet. Donnelly had to attend it.

Welcoming Him On.

One wonders if the Duke of Connaught's trip to South Africa will be as fruitful of adventure as his past voyages. His Indian trips have always been productive of good anecdotes.
On one particular passage he intended to break his journey at Port Said, with the idea of a trip to the Pyramids. The captain of the P. and O. boat had been told of the Duke's coming, and, as a special mark of honour, had all his officers drawn up to welcome his distinguished passenger.
Presently, a boat came alongside, and the port captain of the guardship, accompanied by two gentlemen in plain clothes, ran up the ladder. The P. and O. captain, who was acquainted with the naval commander, greeted him effusively, ignoring his companions, who walked smilingly on. After a few preliminaries, the captain ventured to his naval friend: "I wonder when the Duke will arrive; we've been waiting for him for some time."
The naval man lifted his eyebrows in astonishment.
"The Duke is here," he answered.
"He and his secretary were on my boat."
For a moment the P. and O. man looked as if he wanted his ship's deck to open and swallow him, but the Duke of Connaught, coming on deck, soon put the man at his ease in his own genial way.
The Duke's unostentatious entry was responsible for yet another mistake. The chief steward was accosted by a gentleman who inquired, when dinner would be served, adding he was very hungry.
"We'll be later than usual this evening, sir," said the steward, "for the Duke of Connaught is behind time in coming aboard, and we've been ordered not to serve dinner until he is quite ready."
"Serve it right away, then," said the gentleman, "because I'm, quite ready."
And the steward realised that he was talking to the Royal passenger.—Tit-Bits.

Worst Case of Eczema

Cure only came when doctors gave up and DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT was used.

Mrs. Wm. Miller, St. Catharines, Ont. writes—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her all to no purpose. Finally I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment and to my surprise she immediately began to improve and was completely cured of that long standing disease. That was four years ago when we lived at Cornwall, Ont. and as not a symptom has shown itself since, the cure must be permanent."
The record of cures which Dr. Chase's Ointment has to its credit have placed it alone as the standard cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease. Do not be satisfied with imitations of substitutes, 50 cents a box at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co. Toronto.
