PARKER & MONROE, LIMITED.

The housekeeper who considers the comfort of herself or maid will plan only one hot meal a day in summer. Sweet corn should never boil more than three minutes. If it boils longer it will lose much of its sweetness.

The most important feature in giving comfort is to keep the air from the burn. Only four lima bean plants should be allowed to a hill. If more remain they are too thick to produce well.

In sultry weather let the lid of the bread box remain open every morning. This will prevent mould. Olives, a small quantity of minced red peppers and a spoonful of capers, increase the savor of potato salad.

British Fighting Subs. Off American Coast.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 18.—Apparently with the idea of trying to capture or sink German submarines, Great Britain has despatched two fighting submarines to this side of the Atlantic. The submarine depot ship Adamant, with two British undersea fighters, was off the Virginia coast a few days ago, and reported to have engaged in a three days' search for the German submarine Deutschland. The Adamant is reported to have sighted a third periscope 300 miles off the coast, and with her charges started after the stranger. The chase apparently did not result in the capture of the mysterious submarine, as the Adamant and other Allied warships are still reported off this coast. The two submarines are reported to have come from Bermuda or Halifax. They are said to be of a small type.

Dairy Shorthorns.

Remarkable Results are Being Secured in Alberta.

Dairying forms a prominent feature in the work carried on in connection with the demonstration farms and schools, conducted by the Department of Agriculture in the Province of Alberta. As part of this work demonstrations have been given as to the capacity of the double-purpose Shorthorn as a milk producer. The records made in the Alberta Provincial farms have not quite equalled the best made at the Ontario Agricultural College, where one dairy Shorthorn gave 12,401 pounds of milk in a year. What has been accomplished in Alberta would, however, be creditable under any circumstances, and is especially so in view of the fact that the Alberta records were made by cows imported from Ontario, and that had not as yet been fully acclimatized in the west.

At the demonstration farm at Selkirk, Alberta, the Shorthorn cow Lady McKay 2nd, gave 10,472 lbs. of milk in a year, and two other Shorthorns gave 9,699 and 9,096 lbs. of milk respectively. Fourteen cows of the same breed at this farm, five of these being two-year-olds, and one three, gave an average of over 6,000 lbs. of milk for the year.

The most interesting feature in connection with what is being done with dairy Shorthorns at these Alberta Provincial farms is found in the records made by daughters of one of the herd bulls. This bull is Butterfly King. He has, says the official report of the Department of Agriculture all the characteristics of the choicest dairy Shorthorn sires, and at the same time he would in his prime have stood in good company in any beef show ring. This bull is the sire of one cow which produced 8,343 pounds of milk in nine months; another which is credited with 5,284 pounds in a little over six months; of a three-year-old which produced 2,561 pounds in three months, and a two-year-old which has a record of 3,454 pounds of milk in five months. The Department report claims for this bull that he has more daughters in the Record of Merit in Canada than any other dairy Shorthorn bull in the Dominion.

MURDO'S LINIMENT CURES DIS-TEMPER.

The Allies' Man Hunt.

(From the Boston Herald.)

Observe how methodically the generals and war offices of the entente powers count and record the numbers of men captured in the engagements on every front. Mention is often made of the number of guns taken, but that is always secondary. The first thing to ascertain is the extent to which the enemy has been disabled by loss of men, and, while the dead and wounded can only be estimated, the prisoners can be counted. This there is always reliable information of the results of one method of reducing the hostile staff for the reduction of Austro-German man power. First of all, be sure to get the men rather than the guns, the men rather than the miles, and then the deserted guns and the vacant miles can be appropriated easily enough. That is, in effect, the order of the day.

The Russian, French, British, and Italian armies are all engaged in a great man hunt. They are closing in to capture or kill. Within the narrowing ring the enemy's guns must be put out of action and the fortifications demolished, but only in order that their defenders may fight no more. The guns, the munitions, the trenches are useless without the men, and to capture them without the men would be profitless. Guns are easily replaced, new for old; men are not. As fast as the Allies can capture guns the Krupp and Skoda works can make them; but where shall men be found to fill the depleted ranks when the army reserves are exhausted? The German reserve is believed to have entered on the down grade at the beginning of the year, and so heavy have been the losses of the Austrians, especially in prisoners, the Austrian reserve is probably extinct.

How is it that the allies are so successful now in capturing large bodies of the enemy? It is no secret; the enemy knows all about it, and laments the loss of that superiority in artillery which in the early days of the war enabled the Teutonic forces to gain a footing in Belgium, France and Russia. These words appear in a semi-official Austro-Hungarian statement: "Our artillery cannot rival the overwhelming strength of the enemy's guns, and is therefore unable to protect our infantry." Besides, there is the manner of handling the artillery for the capture of men. We noted this first on the Russian front, when Brusiloff dropped his curtain of fire in rear of attacking infantry, cutting off the retreat and gathering in the prisoners. This the horrible grinding down of the French front at every assault, and the guns are incessantly shelling a five-mile-zone behind the German lines. The same plan is in operation on the Austro-Hungarian front, and the armies proceed, the attrition that is deemed of the first importance being in men, not in materials. It is hardest on Austria, next on Germany. France and Italy resist it wonderfully well; Russia does not seem to feel it; and Britain, according to Sir Douglas Haig, "will not achieve her full strength on land until next summer." Surely by that time the man hunt should be over and the reign of peace begun.

McMurdo's Store News

FRIDAY, Aug. 25, '16.
We have just opened a new lot of Kepler's Malt Preparations—Malt Extract and Oil, Malt Extract, Oil and Chemical Food—which are highly esteemed as tonics especially for children.

Other recent arrivals include Red Spruce Gum, Tad Sails, and Colgate's Sulphur Soap, the last named useful in many kinds of skin troubles.

Belvidere Orphans at Smithville.

Yesterday the annual picnic for the Orphans of Belvidere was held at Smithville. The little ones, who were conveyed to the grounds in carriages, etc., enjoyed themselves right heartily. Nor could it be otherwise with them as the proverbial kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Furlong and the Misses Furlong was literally showered upon them. Sweetmeats and good things in superabundance, like the glorious sunshine, prevailed everywhere.

In the early evening the Rt. Rev. Mgr. MacDermott, V.G., paid a well-come visit and added greatly to the enjoyment of the children by promoting races and "scrambles" for them, into which they entered with vim and zest, right merrily.

Towards late evening the return to the Orphanage was made, and the joyous laughter and song of one hundred and thirty supremely happy and delighted children, eloquently proclaimed their grateful appreciation of the kindness of their hosts of Smithville, and of all who bent their energies towards rendering the day a happy one, but especially of the good Nuns, who unselfishly, in season and out of season, give of their best in talent and in labour to impart sunshine, happiness, noble sentiments and lofty ideals into the lives and hearts of their young charges. An ideal ending of an ideal day.
