Letter of Explanation.

Editor Evening Telegram,
Dear Sir,—As may be seen from an announcement in the last issue of The Industrial Worker, there has been a change in the editorship of that paper. This change may be passed off without any comment on my part, were it not that the announcement of the change was accompanied by a remark to which I must take exception, and I therefore ask the use of your columns to set myself right before the public. The remark in question reads as follows:—

"Personally the management regrets the decision of Mr. James to sever his connection with the paper of which he was the founder, and that the terms upon which he would re-engage were such as could not be considered."
Several times during the past few days I have learned that an impression has got abroad, owing to the publication of the above, that terms for a continuation of my services as editor of the N. I. W. A. paper, were of such a nature that even the Newfoundland Industrial Workers' Association, that public advocate of higher wages, could not for a moment consider my exorbitant demands. If this impression were allowed to continue uncontradicted, I would experience great difficulty in obtaining other work, no person would want to employ one who had made such extravagant demands on his present employer. Therefore it is that I wish to set right the injustice done me by the publication of that item in Saturday's Industrial Worker.

What I did ask for was ordinary working conditions and a living wage, the figure being that for which the N. I. W. A. has already established a precedent.

I asked for a private office, to be devoted solely to the use of the paper. The Executive of the Association assigned me a room in the garret of the Newman Building, opening off a dark hall, with a ceiling only eight feet high, and the sloping roof of the building cuts so far into the room as to leave the ceiling barely one foot ten inches wide overhead and approaches to within a little over two feet of the floor on the low side. Better homes to live in, better places to work in, has been the policy of the Association all through. I have fought for these principles through the columns of the Industrial Worker whenever opportunity offered. Then how could I repudiate these principles by going to work in such a hole and thus make a huge lie of myself, the paper and the Association every time I would advocate better ordinary working conditions for other members of the organization? I absolutely refused to work one hour in that miserable garret. In this, I fancy, Mr. Editor, I acted consistently with principle.

"Equal pay for equal work" is the labor's slogan the world over. We of the N. I. W. A. have shouted it also. I asked for the same pay that is given another official of the Association, whose duties were not in any way so onerous as mine, and did not call for the literary qualifications that were essential in my case. As an alternative I made the same offer that I made when I founded the paper, namely: I would run the publication as my own venture, assuming all financial risk of its being a paying proposition or otherwise. I would "take it to make it, win or lose," or what is popularly known as "a sporty proposition."

These, Mr. Editor, are the terms which the "Management" of the Industrial Worker regard as terms "such as could not be considered."
Alas for cherished ideals! Consistency, where art thou fled? Are the foremost principles of labor's policy, the very vitals of organized labor, to be rudely set aside at the dictates of the manipulator? Is the Union "boss", to reign undisputed arbiter of Union men's independence? Is this getting in the thin edge of the wedge in order to use the Union for certain purposes by first shaking one who could not be handled like a lump of plastic clay?

There are various opinions afloat, not the least of which is that the N. I. W. A. is now in a poor position to negotiate better pay and better working conditions for its members. What answer can be made when an employer of labor asks, "How did you treat the editor of your paper, when he asked you for the same concessions you are now asking of me? You send him forth to walk the streets of the city out of work, you encourage another Union (?) man to cut under him and take his place, and then you told the public that his demands were 'such as could not be considered.'" The Association has thus cut its legs from under itself in this respect.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I wish to say that I do not lay any blame to the men who constitute the general body of the N. I. W. A. The members of the body are all right. Some of the "brains" have just gone wrong, that's all.
