BASEBALL.

It is the players who make any game, and if their heart is not in it it is madness to expect spectators to get enthused. Last night's game was called for 7:15, but when the Red Lion clan was lined up they were like the famous painting "The Thin Red Line," for there were gaps in the ranks everywhere and volunteers had to be culled from the grandstand. Against such a motley collection everyone present felt that Andy Clouston and his gang would gobble up the remnants of the champions, but to the surprise of everybody the scrap was not through with a score of 9 to 7, after a desultory exhibition.

"Just Say a Black Man Did It," Says Rescuer.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Threading the traffic during Fifth avenue's most crowded hour a woman lost her head and stepped in the path of swiftly moving automobiles. Crowds looked on in horror or turned away from what appeared to be an inevitable fatality, but one man dashed through the vehicles, seized the woman by the arm and dragged her back to safety. Dashed, she failed to thank her rescuer.

A traffic policeman was more alert. He stopped the man after he had taken a dozen steps, and asked his name. The stranger, who was a negro, turned.

"Are you going to arrest me?" he asked.

"No," said the officer. "That was a brave act. And I want to report it."

"Just say a black man did it," he said and turned away.

He was Dr. Robert R. Moton, successor of Booker T. Washington as head of the Tuskegee Institute, major in the American army during the war and one of the foremost figures of his race in America.

Daring Chemist.

Among the most wonderful and dangerous of all explosives is iodide of nitrogen. For many years chemists tried to determine its precise composition, and in doing so sometimes fairly took their lives in their hands, for the substance explodes on the slightest provocation. A mere draught of air passing over it will cause an explosion. The least shock or friction is equally disastrous.

But Dr. Sanjay of Budapest was not deterred from trying to ascertain what the iodide of nitrogen contains, although he had some of his apparatus pulverised in the winking of an eye. He succeeded, however, in his attempt, and established the fact that the extraordinary explosive, which he produced in the form of a fine powder, contains hydrogen as well as iodide and nitrogen. This fact had been suspected, but never proved.

To the general reader it might seem hardly worth while to risk one's life in order to find out a thing like that; but to the man of science, devoting all his energies to investigations that the busy world never dreams of noticing, the discovery of such a fact is as thrilling as the finding of a gold nugget would be to a half-starved man.

Criticizes Tax

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In a recent editorial, you state "It will also be well to remember that, when this bill for taxing newspapers was before the House of Assembly, the Minister of Posts, Hon. W. W. Hallyard made the statement that the chief use for newspapers in the outports was for kindling fires."

I beg to differ with this gentleman and will cite instances to prove the falsity of his statement, although it might possibly apply to Trinity and Fogo, the districts which I have no doubt, regret ever having elected him to represent them. I have been sending your paper to a brother of mine for quite a number of years and he has told me time and again that so soon as the people of his settlement arrive home from the Labrador, they visit his home to read and hear read the newspaper, and would then debate the general topics of the day. My brother said it was surprising to find what an interest the people took in the contents of the paper, and the knowledge gleaned by them from reading it. They would keep this practice up until the time came for them to go to the fishery once more.

Another friend of mine who has constantly sent your paper out to Trinity, has received word from the person who used to get the paper that the idiotic transaction of the Government in placing a tax on newspapers has prevented him from obtaining any information concerning doings in the outside world, and the absence of his paper seems to deprive him of a necessity of life. I have no doubt but that hundreds of others are in a similar position. The Government has been guilty of an idiotic act in taxing papers, in most cases, the only means of our people to obtain information. Why, many a child has been taught to read with newspapers. The taxation of newspapers is, to my mind, one of the smallest and meanest acts that could possibly be placed on the Statute Book of the Colony. We are always hearing the people talking of raising and sending money to educate the heathen, and our Government is doing all in its power to prevent the people of Nfld. from obtaining that grand privilege, education. If the late Rev. Dr. Harvey (rest and bless him) were alive to-day he would most assuredly have greater need to say "Where are we and whither tending" when he discovered what the Government had done. Thanking you for space, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

A READER.
