Six.—in reference to an article in last week's ** Advertiser*, headed "The Rock-wood Poisoning Case," allow me to make a few remarks. Although he has not mentioned my name, I consider myself nevertheless an interested party, inasmuch as it was at my hotel the liquor was taken and from his correspondent's statement of the case it appears to me that the inference he wishes to convey is, that the poison was also given in my house. Now, sir, does not the history of the affair very plainly show that such was not the case. They remained here for nearly two hours inspecting the commercial traveller's goods, after taking the liquor, and made no complaint of being sick. This is verified by the fact that the first thing Mrs. Warner did after getting home was to prepare and partake of a hearty supper—a thing very unlikely for a sick person to do. As to the peculiar sensation which she says she experienced on the way home, if not imaginary, is there no other solution than that she must have been given arsenic in her liquor? Mrs Warner, according to her own statements, had been fasting for some ten hours, and in the meantime transacting business and exerting herself a good deal. Is it to be wondered at that taking a glass of wine on an empty stomach—a thing which she is not accustomed to do—that it might affect her stomach and make her feel peculiar. Dr Perkins, one of the medical attendants, says that Mr Warner repeatedly stated that it was the tea, and remarked to his wife that there was something very strange about its taste. It was also stated that the girl partook of the lobsters more than either Mr or Mrs. Warner, and received no injury therefrom. But they do not choose to make it public that they took tea with their supper, and that the girl. As to the commercial traveller, I can testify to his innocence, as when the bell was rang I went to the room for 'the order. Mr W. chose a glass of beer, which was bought from Mr Massie of Guelph, and the traveller a glass of whiskey, which came from Mr. La and told, some improv

Installation of the Prince as a Knight of the Order of St. Patrick.

The ceremony of the installation of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Knight Companion of the illustrious order of St. Patrick was performed with all due pomp and ceremony in St. Patrick's cathedral. The arrangement of details was in the hands of Sir Bernard Burke, Ulster King-at-Arms, and as a pageant the display was the most brilliant that has been witnessed in Ireland since the accession of the presont sovereign. The Order of St. Patrick is respected by the Irish nation as of historic importance—founded in 1783, at the close of one of the troubled periods of the national career to be to Ireland what the Garter is to England and the Thistle to Soutland. The procession to the Cathedral was a most imposing affair, and all being in readiness the singing of Stevenson's Te Deum was the prelude to the installation, which is thus described. "The Ulster King-at-Arms, the herald's pursuivants and the esquires of his Royal Highness addivered to the Grand Master the collar of the Order and deposited on the table his insignia. The usher, genealogist, and the secretary then went to the front of the stall of his Royal Highness and conducted him to the table. The Grand Master then commanded the two senior knights to descend from their stalls and gird him with the sword and mantle, the prelate reading the prescribed admonition. His Royal Highness then proceeded to the stall of the Grand Master, who invested him with the collar. Thereupon his esquire unfurled his banner, and the Ulster King-at-Arms, with flourish of trumpets, announced the new knight's titles. His Royal Highness was then robed with the mantle, and the prescribed admonition being read by the prelate as follows: Receive this robe and livery of the most illustrious Order, in argumentation of thine honour, and wear it with a firm and steady resolution that by your character, conduct and demeanor you may approve yourself a true servant of Almighty God, and a worthy brother and knight comp Installation of the Prince as a Knight of the Order of St. Patrick. scribed admonition being read by the prelate as follows: Receive this robe and livery of the most illustrious Order, in argumentation of thine honour, and wear it with a firm and steady resolution that by your character, conduct and demeanor you may approve yourself a true servant of Almighty God, and a worthy brother and knight companion of the most illustrious Order. The Prince of Wales having advanced to the stall of the Grand Master, his Excellency invested him with the collar of the Order, saying: Sir, the loving company of the Order of St. Patrick hath received you their brother, lover and fellow, and in token and knowledge of this they give you and present you this badge, the which God will that you receive and wear from henceforth to His praise and pleasure, and to the exaltation and honor of the said illustrious Order and yourself. The mount is proposed to the stall high many to the collar of the Order, and the star worn on the shoulder was manufactured. It is of considerable size, and is surmounted by rosettes and streamers of white sain. Every portion of the Prince's robe is of Irish manufacture. The delivery of the Prince's banner to the Registar and performance of an anthem by the choir brought the cremontal to a close."
