BRITISH FOOTBALL LOSING GROUND AT UNIVERSITIES

Hockey Is Making Great Inroads On the Old Game at Oxford and Cambridge.

London, Dec. 5.—The statement that F. P. Campbell, the Surrey cricketer and Association Blue, has declined the captaincy of the Oxford University Association eleven simply crystallizes general opinion at Oxford and Cambridge as to the low depths to which Association football has sunk at both universities.

There is little interest in Association football at the universities. Many men from the famous Association schools, such as Charterhouse, Merton and Repton, have nearly all taken to hockey.

Hugh Jennings Will Sign Contract Next Week to Pilot Tigers During Season 1912

President Navin, of Detroit Club, Says He Will Increase Salary.

SORRELTOP IS CHEERFUL AS EVER

Tells Interviewer at Scranton Hospital How Accident Occurred—Rev. Lynett Very Low.

Detroit, Dec. 6.—The following telegram was received from Hugh Jennings, manager of the Tigers, yesterday afternoon: "Scranton, Pa., Dec. 5.—Say to the Detroit people that I will be able to leave the hospital for home not later than Saturday, Dec. 9, at right except my left arm, which is broken above the wrist. Thank the Detroit public for their friendly interest in my behalf."

President Frank J. Navin said yesterday afternoon that he would go to Scranton, Pa., next week. He intended to start in Scranton before going to New York, but since the accident happened he will go to Scranton from New York. He will carry a 1912 contract with him, and Hughie will officially continue as the manager of the Detroit team.

Before he signs the contract Hughie will discover that a large salary will reward his efforts next year. After the injured man attaches his name to the papers he will discuss plans with Mr. Navin, and decide on the personnel of the Detroit team, probabilities, possibilities, etc.

Feels for Injured Priest. A Scranton dispatch says Jennings was as cheerful as ever except at times when he let his mind stray to the next morning, where Rev. P. J. Lynett is. A couple of times the tears welled up in his eyes.

"Poor Father Lynett," he'd say. "I wish that I could take some of the bruises he has. And yet he is such a patient man, such a good man, that if he hadn't been with me I'm sure I'd have been killed."

"What caused the accident, how fast were you running the machine, what sort of a sensation did you have going over the bridge? Tell me about it," requested the interviewer.

"We got to Goudsboro, I should say, about 9 o'clock at night, when the machine showed a leak in the pipe running from the gasoline tank to the engine, and I had to lay over in Goudsboro an hour or an hour and a half to get the leak soldered."

Law Demand This. "We were three miles or so on this side of Goudsboro. If you ever sat beside the driver of an automobile you know the lights on the body of the machine have their rays cast ahead on the outside of a curve, because the body of the machine does not turn with the front wheels. I was not overly familiar with the road, but the ground was hard and I should say we were making about fifteen miles an hour, not over that, when I saw we were striking a sharp curve, and I slowed down to ten miles. The curve took a double twist like the letter S.

"Before I knew of the other twist of the curve leading to the bridge, up went one wheel along the elliptical span, and over we went into the creek. The instant the front wheel began to climb the span I realized that something was wrong. I gripped the steering wheel tighter, hoping to get back to terra firma, and the next moment I was spluttering water from my mouth. I couldn't tell whether we dropped one inch or tumbled down No. 18 shaft.

Happened in a Flash. "I experienced no pain from the awful bump; it happened in a flash, and gave me no time to think, except to utter a prayer, as quick as a snapshot camera takes a picture."

"As to the sensation of going over and down, I really have no recollection. I can remember wriggling to get my face out of the water, as I lay under the machine. You know the rest."

Jennings' room was fragrant with roses, geraniums and carnations sent by many friends. He has the Sunday papers, magazines and daily papers by the score to while away the time.

HARRINGTON LEADS OTTAWA COLL. CREW

Big Fellow Succeeds "Silver" Quilty as Captain of Rugby Crew.

KENNEDY AND QUILTY Are Only Members of This Year's Fourteen Who Will Be Missed From Gridiron Next Year.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—The Ottawa College football club held a meeting today, at which affairs of the past season were wound up. "Silver" Quilty retired as captain and was succeeded by Jerry Harrington, the big middle wing, who will graduate in 1913. Jim Kennedy also dropped out as manager, Lee Kelly succeeding him. The collegians had the largest surplus since they joined the intercollegiate.

Father Stanton congratulated the team on its splendid showing, and announced that he hoped to have all this year's players excepting Kennedy and Quilty for next fall. Harrington, the new captain, is the veteran of the college fourteen. He was on the wing line when Father Stanton plotted them to the intercollegiate championship in 1907, but missed two teams. He is just recovering from a broken hand, sustained in the College-Varsity game at Toronto.
