AN OFFENSIVE YOUNG MAN.

Sarah Bernhardt's Illegitimate Son and His Boorish Manner.

From The Philadelphia Press.

A young man has just sailed for Europe who occupies a rather strange position in the world. It is Maurice Bernhardt, son of Mlle. Bernhardt, the French actress. It was rather curious to notice the deportment of this young fellow, not at all abashed by the misfortune of having been born out of wedlock. He is 21 or 22 years of age, about six feet in height, well built, dark complexioned, with deep set black eyes and typical French features. He combed his hair down over the temples, was perpetually in evening dress, the broad shirt front adorned or rather disfigured with large turtle-shell studs. He spends most of his time in Paris, but was in New York for some time during the theatrical season. He was a nightly attendant at the theatres, particularly favoring comic opera, and usually had a box, from which he would stare and leer at the ballet girls so offensively that on several occasions the managers seriously discussed the advisability of throwing him out of the window and only refrained for his mother's sake. When not at the theatre or at the Hoffman House, leaning against one of the gilded pillars puffing cigarettes with the air of a blase man of the world and talking small gossip with the cronies of the same ilk, he was at the Home Club on Twenty-fourth-street. When he slept was a mystery. The Home Club is a French organization composed of some of the masculine leaders of French society in New York. It is supposed to be what is commonly known as "high-toned." Here the young man dined and also passed the later hours of the evening and the early hours of the morning in playing baccarat, at which he is said to have been badly worsted. He was surrounded by sparks of his nationality, who knew he had plenty of money, and who regarded him simply as a young goose to be plucked. His manners were arrogant, overbearing, insolent. "I am the son of Sara Bernhardt," was declaimed in the loud manners of a born cad. Yet, surprising as it may seem, cultured girls of wealthy families, well-known in society, were silly enough to covertly encourage his notice. Stage-struck maidens of Murray Hill seeking the notice of a cynical coxcomb. Faugh! His birth is something for which he is not to blame, but retiring and gentlemanly manners would be peculiarly appropriate in such a case. New York is full of such odorous specimens of fast life, and they seem popular with a certain class of girls, who are fascinated by the fumes from a lower world.

The Strange Blanket Fish.

From The New York Commercial Advertiser.

"This blanket fish," said an American, "is nothing more nor less than a big ray—the manta diabolis of science—and these yarns, though founded on fact, are a good deal overdrawn, though I am willing to confess that I have been as badly scared as the Mexican you speak of. It was in this way: Some time ago I was down the coast on a trip and one evening I saw what I supposed to be a shark sailing about near the vessel. Wishing to have some sport, I put out the small boat, and taking two or three men pulled over to it. As it came by I put a harpoon into it. The next moment there arose from the water a ray that must have been twenty-five feet across, at least. It looked as big as a house, and as soon as it showed up my men screamed out: 'The blanket fish!' They were Mexicans and half scared to death. A moment later we were rushing over the water faster than I ever went before or since. The fish took us up the little bay, then turned and came down toward the schooner, going like a steam engine. We piled up in the stern to keep her from sinking. Just as we got opposite the schooner the fish dove right under her about amidships. Before we could make a move to cast off we struck the schooner. To make a long story short, we found ourselves in the water alongside. The rope had broken and the blanket fish gone. The force of the contact had smashed the cut-water of the boat in pieces."

Over-Worked Women.

—For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "cure-all," but admirably fulfils a singleness of purpose, being a most potent specific for all those chronic weaknesses and diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00 a bottle, or six bottles for $5.00.

A large treatise on diseases of women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for ten cents in stamps.

Buffalo Bill's First Indian.

From The London Globe.

"I was born in February, 1845, in the State of Iowa. I need not go into details respecting my family, and can dismiss my youth briefly by saying that when I was not on a horse I was just being thrown off one. I soon became a pretty smart rider, and my practice with a gun was pretty good too. I was 12 years old when I killed my first Indian. It happened rather sudden. I was out walking by the river, near Fort Kearney, one night about 10 o'clock. My companions had got ahead somehow, and I was quite alone, when, looking up toward the bluff bordering the river, I saw, illuminated by the moon, the head and shoulders of a live Indian, watching me with evident interest.

"Now, I had heard many stories of the doings of the red men, and had also been inculcated with a thorough distrust of their ways; so, quickly coming to a conclusion as to what I should do, I brought my gun to my shoulder, and, aiming at the head, fired. The report sounded louder than usual in the silence of the night, for it was past 10 o'clock, and was followed by a war-whoop such as could only be built up by an Indian, and the next instant over six feet of dead Indian came down splash into the river."

Pedlars and Hawkers.

From Cassell's Magazine.

Pedlars, again, fall into several distinct categories. There are those who may be spoken of as locally attached, who have a habitation and a name, and in most cases take, week in and week out, a regular and unvarying route. And there are those whose ambition is wider and more restless, who journey from county to county, and are seldom seen twice in the same locality within a long term of years. Beyond and beneath these are the occasional and, so to speak, amateur pedlars, who more properly belong to the formidable hordes of vagrancy, and who are genuine Ishmaels, with their hand against every man, and every man's hand against them. Many legitimate and recognized pedlars travel with some single specialty—brushes, combs, ornaments, spectacles, or even clothes lines. These have often a pride in their profession which would vie with that of the flourishing town tradesman. The rounds taken are long, and, with their interminable calls, very wearisome. To walk on an average twenty miles a day, and visit several hundreds, its may be, of cottages and farms, is a severe test of physical endurance.

The Prince and the Freemason's Sign.

From The Highlander.

While at Osborne Prince Albert, the late husband of the Queen, was in the habit of getting up early and walking about his farm. Passing a farmer's house he stopped to make some inquiries, knocked at the door and asked the servant if his master was in? The servant replied: "He is in, but not down-stairs." "Oh, very well," was Prince Albert's reply, and he was about to leave. "Would you be kind enough to leave your name, sir?" said the servant, "my master would be angry if I did not tell him who called." "Very well," said his royal highness, "you may say Prince Albert." Upon which the man drew back, looked up significantly, put his thumb to the tip of his nose, extended his fingers, and exclaimed: "Walker."

The Pitcher on the Post.

From Labor's Stage.

Years ago—some say forty, others thirty—a young girl was in the act of placing a white pitcher on a post which stands near the South Carolina Railway, five miles from Aiken, when she was struck dead by lightning. Ever since this tragic occurrence the white pitcher has remained on the post, safe by superstition from the touch of negroes, who believe that the arm which touches it will be paralyzed. Storms and cyclones and earthquakes have not displaced it, although the post which holds it is fast crumbling with decay.

BIG OREGON CAVES.

Just How Large They Are No One Knows, but They Bid Fair to be Interesting.

From The Oakland Enterprise.

For several months past there has been considerable interest in the but little known Cooper caves. Since the discovery of human bones in these caves last spring by some adventurous young men, several parties have visited them.

Prompted by a desire to ascertain the truth regarding these caves, their exact location, characteristics, subterranean construction, etc., The Enterprise detailed a party, armed with torches, rope, extension ladders, compass and scientific apparatus to prosecute a thorough search. The searching party started from Oakland last Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, and after a pleasant trip through the picturesque valley, a distance of four miles, a halt was ordered, the torches primed, water secured, etc. From this point to within 200 yards of the caves is a most beautiful though steep incline, which winds gracefully around the mountain side, with overhanging branches of green laurel, the tall, stately fir and shady oak. This lonely trail has been called Cave-avenue.

Having gained the summit, and all being ready, the torch was lit, ropes adjusted, and the party began to descend. Having reached the first level, a distance of 30 feet, instruments were compared and the journey begun. After leaving the level for 10 feet a large chamber 15 feet high and 16 feet long, containing large cavities, projecting rock, etc., was bound; a narrow passage leads from this to another chamber 10 by 5 feet, composed of a granite formation with here and there decaying sandstone. From the main entrance west 100 feet, thence northwest and north 250 feet, another and smaller chamber was found, connected by a narrow lead southeast to the ten-foot, and another due southeast to the fifteen-foot chamber back to the entrance. Some of the leads are extremely narrow, and extend down, and in for thousands of feet. Evidences of animal and vegetable life were found in many places. A species of bat was found having no eyes. On the top of the mountain, which is largely of solid stone, one can strike with a stick or stone, and a sharp, well-defined hollow sound is produced, proving beyond a doubt that these caves extend perhaps for miles into the bowels of the earth.

Parts of a human skeleton, supposed by many to be that of an Indian—a skull, right and left innominata, coccyx, a portion of the vertebra, right and left femur, two tibia, one fibula, one humerus, one radius, two ribs, portion of ulna, phalanges, metacarpal and metatarsal bones—were found on Sunday, March 13, in the largest cavity of the Cooper caves. Those who have seen them say they are upward of 100 years old, and if not an Indian's bones they are probably those of some hunter or early settler who lost his way and sought shelter in these caves. The parts of skeletons now in the museum at the Umpqua Academy, it is stated, were also found in the largest cave, which has never been fully explored.

The scenery from the top of the mountain, where the caves are located, is grand. From down in a yawning chasm thousands of feet below comes the musical sound of rushing waters, as the mad, foaming stream courses its way onward until lost in the hidden recesses of the distant hills. Here, too, one can form an idea of what splendid farms and cultivated valleys we have in Douglas. The secluded valleys, nestled among the grandite mountains, with fields of ripening grain swayed by every passing breeze, the sheep, cattle, horses and swine grazing lazily on every sward, suggest to our mind nature in holiday attire.

—It may be only a trifling cold, but neglect it and it will fasten its fangs in your lungs, and you will soon be carried to an untimely grave. In this country we have sudden changes and must expect to have coughs and colds. We cannot avoid them, but we can effect a cure by using Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the medicine that has never been known to fail in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest.

A Brave Man Shrinks.

From The Omaha World.

First Omaha Man: "How's this, John? You said you intended to propose to Miss Gushington this evening, and here you are back before 9 o'clock. She surely didn't refuse you?"

Second Omaha Man: "N-o; I didn't propose. I concluded to postpone the question."

"Now, see here, John, if you don't get that girl it's your own fault. The idea of being such a coward. You, who have bravely walked up to the cannon's mouth."

"Y-e-s, but the cannon hadn't been eating onions."

—First relief, ultimately a cure. These are the successive effects of one of the most deservedly popular remedies in the Dominion, Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which reforms an irregular condition of the bowels and liver, invigorates the stomach, renews digestion, and changes the current of the blood from a sluggish and turbid into a pure, rapid, and fertilizing stream.

Catarrh.

Catarrh, on account of its prevalence in this country is attracting a good deal of attention, more especially now when there is a probability of a visit from cholera, for where there is a muco-purulent discharge, such discharge forms a nidus very inviting to cholera germs, and very favorable for their reproduction in a more violent form, thus placing sufferers from catarrh at a great disadvantage in the event of a cholera visitation.

The reason that catarrh has become so prevalent a disease is entirely due to the fact that it has not been understood. Physicians have been unanimous in treating it as a simple inflammation of the membrane, and have signally failed to produce cures, but microscopic research has revealed the presence of the parasites. Those who appreciate the fact that it is by way of its secondary effects a most deadly one, will be glad to learn that a wonderfully successful treatment has been formulated, whereby the most aggravated cases of catarrh have been permanently cured in from one to three simple applications. The interesting pamphlet descriptive of this new treatment, from which we glean the above, is sent free to all applicants on receipt of stamp, by A. H. Dixon & Son, 305 King-street west, Toronto, Canada. —The Star. 22

A Professional Opinion.

—Rev. F. Gunner, M.D., of Listowel, Ont., says regarding B.B.B., "I have used your excellent Burdock Compound in practice and in my family since 1884, and hold it No. 1 on my list of sanative remedies. Your three busy D's never sting, weaken or worry." 246

Cholera Infantum.

—That terrible scourge among children may be speedily cured by Dr Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. All forms of bowel complaints, nausea and vomiting, from an ordinary diarrhœa to the most severe attack of Canadian cholera, can be subdued by its prompt use. It is the best remedy known for children or adults suffering from summer complaints. 246 Miraculous.

—"My Miraculous Cure was that I had suffered from kidney disease for about two years, was off work all that time. A friend told me of B.B.B., I tried it, and am happy to say that I was cured by two bottles." Wm. Tier, St. Marys, Ont. 246

Nature Makes No Mistakes.

—Nature's own remedy for bowel complaints, cholera morbus, cholic, cramps, vomiting, sea sickness, cholera infantum, diarrhœa, dysentery and all diseases of a like nature belonging to the summer season, is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which can be obtained of all dealers in medicine. 246

—Ayer's Sarsaparilla operates radically upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing and invigorating it. As a safe and absolute cure for the various disorders caused by constitutional taint or infection, this remedy has no equal. Take it this month. 4

She Went.

—Biddy, me darlint, it's a small favor I would ax of ye. Go to McDowell's music store, 423 Queen-street west, and get that song, "Why Paddy is Always Poor." shure its workin hard I've been for the last 20 years an' I'm poor yet, and I want to know the raysun why. You'll find it there for he keeps all the new music. Ax him the price of his organs, Biddy. 462

A Business Letter.

T. MILBURN & Co., TILLSONBURG, March 15th, 1887.

Sirs,—Please ship at once three dozen B. B. Bitters. Best selling medicine in the shop. Sold seven bottles to-day. Yours truly, C. THOMPSON.

The above sample is but one of hundreds of similar expressions regarding the popularity of B.B.B. 246

Try It.

"What shall I do for this distressing cough?" Try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam; it is soothing and healing to the throat and lungs, and loosens the tough mucous that renders breathing difficult or painful. 246

A Living Miracle.

—"My infant daughter was taken ill with cholera infantum, the doctor said she could not live. The Rev. Orend Wm. McWilliams would not allow her head to be lifted when he baptised her, she was so weak. Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry gave immediate relief. She is a living miracle, hale and hearty. Since that time (7 years) our house has never been without this remedy. * * * * From statement of George Johnston, Harwood, Ont. 246

—Avoid the use of calomel for bilious complaints. Ayer's Cathartic Pills, entirely vegetable, have been tested forty years, and are acknowledged to be the best remedy for torpidity of the liver, costiveness and indigestion. 4 —Free and easy expectoration immediately relieves and frees the throat and lungs from viscid phlegm, and a medicine that promotes this is the best medicine to use for coughs, colds, inflammation of the lungs and all affections of the throat and chest. This is precisely what Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is a specific for, and wherever used it has given unbounded satisfaction. Children like it because it is pleasant, adults like it because it relieves and cures the disease.

Photography.

—No art is more prominently and conspicuously brought before the public than photography. The question often asked is, "Where can I get a life-like picture?" "At Lemaitre's, 324 Yonge-street," is the answer. By careful attention to business and using the A 1 material, and employing only first-class assistants, Mr. Lemaitre has built up a business that will bear comparison with any in the city. 861

"JUNE OF LIFE"

ASTHMA CURE.

TESTIMONIALS.

The proprietor of "JUNE OF LIFE" was cured of Asthma 10 years ago, after suffering over 20 years from it.

MR. JOHN SENNOTT, of Toronto, writes: "I suffered from Asthma when a child, and for nine years, taking many medicines without relief, till I got two bottles 'June of Life,' which cured me completely, and I can recommend it to other sufferers from Asthma.

(Signed) JOHN SENNOTT."

MR. ROBINSON, of 21 Arthur-street, Toronto, writes: "I take great pleasure in recommending your 'June of Life' to parties suffering from Asthma. I was a great sufferer from it for eight years, and tried every kind of Remedy I heard of, as well as a great many doctors, without relief. I was unable to lie in bed for a week at a time, and was seldom free from suffering till I took your 'June of Life,' about six years ago. Since then I have been a different man, never losing any rest or suffering any inconvenience from it since, and I think any one giving it a fair trial cannot fail to receive benefit by its use.

Truly yours,

Chronic

Catarrh destroys the sense of smell and taste, consumes the cartilages of the nose, and, unless properly treated, hastens its victim into Consumption. It usually indicates a scrofulous condition of the system, and should be treated, like chronic ulcers and eruptions, through the blood. The most obstinate and dangerous forms of this disagreeable disease cured by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "I have always been more or less troubled with Scrofula, but never seriously until the spring of 1882. At that time I took a severe cold in my head, which, notwithstanding all efforts to cure grew worse, and finally became a chronic Catarrh. It was accompanied with terrible headaches, deafness, a continual coughing, and with great soreness of the lungs. My throat and stomach were so polluted with the mass of corruption from my head that Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and Emaciation totally unfitted me for business. I tried many of the so-called specifics for this disease, but obtained no relief until I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using two bottles of this medicine, I noticed an improvement in my condition. When I had taken six bottles all traces of Catarrh disappeared, and my health was completely restored.—A. B. Cornell, Fairfield, Iowa.

For thoroughly eradicating the poisons of Catarrh from the blood, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will restore health and vigor to decaying and diseased tissues, when everything else fails.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. | Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

Catarrh

Is usually the result of a neglected "cold in the head," which causes an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose. Unless arrested, this inflammation produces Catarrh which, when chronic, becomes very offensive. It is impossible to be otherwise healthy, and, at the same time, afflicted with Catarrh. When promptly treated, this disease may be by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "I suffered, for years, from chronic Catarrh. My appetite was very poor, and I felt miserably. None of the remedies I took afforded me any relief, until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which I have now taken five bottles. The Catarrh has disappeared, and I am growing strong and stout again; my appetite has returned, and my health is fully restored.—Susan L. W. Cook, 309 Albany street, Boston Highlands, Mass.

I was troubled with Catarrh, and all its attendant evils, for several years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I commenced taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint, and completely restored my health and strength.—Jesse Boggs, Holman's Mills, Albermarle, N. C.

If you would strengthen and invigorate your system more rapidly and surely than by any other medicine, use Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is the safest and most reliable of all blood purifiers. No other remedy is so effective in cases of chronic Catarrh.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.
