As to House Adornment. Public taste in the matter of house adorn ment has been, revolutionized and purified. The decorative arts have been veritably revived and enriched from all the sources of beauty; the masterpieces of the plastic artists of antiquity, of the Renaissance, and of the eighteenth century have been reproluced in such a manner that they can hen forward enter the most modest homes; no longer exist for the exclusive joy of a no longer exist for the backmark also con-single possessor, but in their turn also con-tribute to the pleasure of our daily life. The history of this revolution of task and of this remarkable growth of the artistic in the plane artistic in the list Canadian homes is to a large extent the his-tory of the development of the firm of James A. Skinner & Co., which it is proposed to sketch in this article. Toronte, the Hub of Trade. Toronto is the banner city of this Dominion. Its growth is more rapid and its trade ion. Its growth is more rupht and its trate shows greater development than any other place in Canada, and its early possibilities are such that the year 1900 will cer-tainly see it a city of a million or more inhabitants, the great hub of education, politics, commerce and finance. Everything about Toronto shows an accelerated growth. In area, in population, in assessment, in municipal development, most of all in trade and manufactures, is this the case. New territory, tributary to Toronto's commerce, is being added by every mile of railway extension. Great continental roads like the Vanderbilt system are seeking for a direct entrance into this metropolis. A dozen lines that are projected or under con-struction in various of the new sections of Ontario all open up new country that will be tributary to Toronto. The country now tributary is only a fraction of what it will be when these new roads and new districts are pened up. But Toronto has a present supremacy The v But Toronto has a present supremacy irrespective of its prospects. An immense volume of trade is now centered in Toronto; what immense sums of capital are accumu-lated here for investment; how rapidly the population and the wealth of its inhabitants have increased! One of the most remarkable things in Toronto's growth is the fact that more and more it is the retail purchasing centre of an area 60 miles distant from the centre. side of yards of frontage and is con by arche centre of an area to inter the taken are under All the new improvements that are under way, especially ptblic buildings, are of a truly metropolitan character, and the business structures of the former state of things and the new metropolitan painese of commerce that are rising alongside of them. stone an them.
