Charlotte W. Talcott, somewhat known to our readers through occasional communications in the REVIEW, has recently become a member with Friends at Bloomfield, Ont. She formerly belonged to the Church of England, but being connected and associated with Friends during the past years, possessing a mind susceptible to new ideas, original and independent in thought, she has come to find herself one with us in belief and principle, as well as in association, and the outward step of joining us nominally, indicative of the unity in thought and spirit, is very welcome and encouraging news.

The following arrangement of meetings will probably be followed out at Coldstream in 8th mo. We hope to give quite full information in regard to railroad arrangements, routes, destination, entertainment, etc., next issue :

Allen Flitcraft and John J. Cornell spoke at the morning meeting and Isaac Wilson made prayer. In the afternoon Allen Flitcraft made prayer, Isaac Wilson spoke at quite a length, and William M. Way and Charlotte W. Cox briefly. We heard many expressions after the meetings to the effect that they were deeply interesting occasions. Our views were set forth clearly and convincingly. Religion was shorn of its mask and mystery and made so simple that the merest child who had arrived to the years of understanding might comprehend it.

In the early part of the morning meeting Allen Flitcraft broke silence with the text, "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life
