

hoped that some member of the Institute will continue it to a successful ending.

In these remarks I have not undertaken to follow the Doctor in the battles he waged with his fellow geologists, nor to enter into the details of the grounds upon which he based his geological conclusions. It may be said that his labors in working out the structures of the Arisaig rocks and tracing them into the other parts of the Province have afforded great assistance to those who have followed in his footsteps, and have given him a lasting claim on the gratitude of Provincial Geologists.

I beg in conclusion to say that I hope this brief sketch of Dr. Honeyman's Geological work will serve to us as a monument of perseverance and assiduity, and remind us of how much we owe to him for his labors in forwarding the Institute.
