defenders. Man may be civilized in some degree, without great progress in manufactures, and with little commerce with his distant neighbours, but without cultivation of the earth he is in all countries, a savage. Until he stops from the chase, and fixes himself in some place, and seeks a living from the earth, he is a roaming barbarian. When tillage begins, other arts follow.—The farmers therefore are the founders of human civilization. Look at it in any point of view, the farmer, simple, homespun name as that has become, wields a tremendous influence over society. Little does that man who is quietly cultivating his potato patch, or hoeing his corn-field, think of the importance of his calling. He is a part of a great whole that, to do without, would be to bring about dearth and famine upon the land.
