KHAKI UNIFORMS TO PREDOMINATE

Men on Week End Leave Will Be on the Grounds Today.

GET FREE ADMITTANCE

Exhibition Directors Again Show Patriotism by Extending Special Favors.

Khaki is expected to predominate at the Exhibition grounds today and it will not be the fault of the directors if such is not the case. In the first place a great many men in uniform are expected because of the week-end leave and no doubt there will be many from Camp Borden and Niagara, who will ask especially for an opportunity of visiting the fair today. In addition to this the directors have decided to admit, not only today but every day from now on, every overseas man with a pass from his O. C., all these who have been across and who have served their empire in the war who present their discharge papers, all convalescent soldiers who bear cards from the officer in charge of their respective hospitals. This does not apply to local militiamen.

DOG SHOW WILL OPEN AT EXHIBITION MONDAY

Record Entry Predicted by Superintendent Jacob, and Four Champions Are Listed.

The tenor-like whines of confiding puppies who are still in that stage where they think everybody is their friend, to the basso-profundo growl and others who have got beyond the confiding stage and know some of the vicissitudes of life, were heard in the dog building for the first time this season. The dogs are arriving for the show, which opens on Monday, and Boston terriers top the list with 81 entries, including four champions. The bull terriers, fox terriers and toy dogs lead the management to expect that ones. The American entries are unusually large and exhibitors are assured of a fine point show.

TONGUE LASHING GIVEN HORWOOD

Counsel for Ex-Ministers Makes Comparison With Methods of Titus Oates

WELL PAID TO TESTIFY

Salt and Villeroi Included in So-Called "Coterie of Paid Witnesses."

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1.—Severe criticism of the course taken by the crown in the ex-ministers' trial was expressed by A. J. Andrews, K.C., this afternoon in the continuation of his address to the jury on behalf of the three accused. Mr. Andrews was confident over the crown's confidence in V. V. Horwood, the former provincial architect, and over the payment to Horwood of $4 per day. "Are you going to believe," he said, "that there has been no dealing of witness in this case? The crown has been paying Horwood $4 a day as reward for his conduct, and he has had nothing to do for a year but to prepare his story and visit crown counsel. I venture to say that never before in any case has the crown dealt so with witnesses. Such unheard-of conduct has no parallel in the history of British justice. Is there anxiety to secure a conviction? My learned friends can find no year but where a successful government has used its power of office to prosecute its defeated opponents—unless we go back to the time of Titus Oates and the Popish plots. In fact, Titus Oates and Horwood are very much alike; they have the same earmarks."

A Vigorous Tongue Lashing.

Mr. Andrews was very severe on Horwood thruout the afternoon. He spoke of the "coterie of paid witnesses"—Horwood, William Salt and Leopold Villeroi—and said Villeroi had been paid about $10 per word for the evidence he gave. Horwood, he said, was "a confessed perjurer, a confessed thief, a man who has conspired to forging documents and to falsify oaths of crimes." Counsel spoke of the onerous duties of the public works department. Two ministers had died as the result of their work "unless," he added, "my learned friends claim the credit of Dr. Montague's death as the result of this prosecution."

Defence counsel pointed to alleged contradictions of Horwood's evidence. He declared that the appointment of Horwood as supervisor of the building was justified because Horwood was a trusted official of the government and relied upon to protect the province.

Not Defending Kelly.

"There are not in Manitoba," he went on, "three men more vitally interested in protecting the province than the accused. We are not defending Kelly or Kelly's claims. We are more anxious than the accused to make him do what is right."

Mr. Andrews maintained that Horwood had "one of the earmarks of a liar" in his inability to fix definite dates. On the unsupported testimony of Horwood they were asked to believe that Dr. Simpson and Mr. Coldwell had told him a campaign fund was to be taken from the building. He drew attention to Horwood's poor memory over the caisson tender letter of Mr. Kelly's. This letter was "another secret between Horwood and Kelly," since Horwood told the ministers nothing about it. He said he deduced that "Horwood lies when he says he does not know when he got this letter."

Mr. Andrews did not conclude his summing up, and is expected to continue for most of Saturday.

ONLY THE FISH KNOW WHAT HAPPENED NAVY

Yesterday's Ships Are Gone, Not Up, But Down, and Search Proves Futile.

No one knows whether the "Fair weather navy" torpedoed itself, went on strike, mutilated or died. Yesterday following the brief storm it was not—and that about all there is to it. Prior to the wind avalanche no one had been paying particular attention to it, except that the flagship, the

"Col. Marshall," was seen to twist and fuse considerably, evidently because of the approaching clouds. Then all spectators became so busy trying to find temporary shelter that they clean forgot the "darned" navy and left it to rescue itself.

"Col. Marshall," was seen to twist and fuse considerably, evidently because of the approaching clouds. Then all spectators became so busy trying to find temporary shelter that they clean forgot the "darned" navy and left it to rescue itself.

The wind with its sand had died away when someone said, "Where's the navy?" Admiral Anthes made frantic search in his fast patrol boat, and according to a message flashed now somewhere beneath the waves, in the hope that they might finally destroy her all the undersea mines were discharged as per schedule, and the daring aviator dropped bombs on the expansive waters of Lake Ontario.

But whether the Exhibition navy has been reduced to splinters is still known only to the fish.

NO SERIOUS CASES.

Weather conditions may have something to do with the fact that the emergency hospital on the Exhibition grounds is not called upon to assist any but light cases. Visitors suffering from slight indispositions arising from the fatigues of traveling and moving about the many buildings are the only patients. No serious cases have been reported.
