

Furthermore, there are two resident physicians in the hospital itself. These resident physicians have charge of the admittance of patients, and must see that all the prescriptions and directions of the attending physicians are strictly carried out. It is also their duty to take care that the numerous cases of accident daily brought to the hospital are carefully attended to. According to the by-law the resident physicians shall not both absent themselves from the hospital at one and the same time, so that the sick may always rely upon immediate attendance, day or night, in cases of emergency, and this is a guarantee deserving of the highest appreciation.

"The care of the sick is entrusted to the reverend Grey Nuns, fourteen of whom reside continually in the hospital. In addition to these, two ladies of the same community come to the hospital every evening, to watch the sick during the night.

"Finally, the hospital has a catholic chaplain or almoner who provides the succors and consolations of religion to all that stand in need of them. Patients belonging to any of the protestant churches or to any other form of worship, may rest assured that they may have the assistance of the clergyman of their choice as soon, and as often as they may wish.
