GAIL KANE in

The Scarlet Oath

Her mother dies because of merciless persecution. She and her twin sister are taken to America, where they are brought up apart, but with the knowledge of their mother's wrong deeply imbedded in their consciousness. One sister becomes engaged to marry an American diplomatic agent. The other is sworn into the ranks of the dreaded nihilists. The two roles give Gail Kane the best opportunity yet accorded her, and she certainly makes the most of her chances.

Patriotic Baseball League.
A double header was played in the patriotic baseball league Saturday afternoon on the Barrack Square. The first game was between the Canadian Garrison Regiment team and a nine from the Y. M. C. I. and the second game was between the Y. M. C. I. and the Depot team and resulted in a score of 30 to 0 in favor of the Y. M. C. I. team. The game lacked interest and was so advertised that many of the spectators left the grounds before it had progressed more than two innings. The battalion overrated hard enough, but they were against a superior team and in addition their pitchers were off, in all probability due to a strong cold wind which swept across the diamond.

On Tuesday evening the Acadia will give their first appearance in the league when they will meet the Military Headquarters team. This should prove quite an attraction as the teams should be evenly matched.

Gates Closed In Invaders' Face

Heroic Deed of British Cyclists
On Italian Front—Ran Into Austrian Force

Italian Headquarters, June 22.—Montello, the oval-shaped chain of hills which hinge the Austrian offensive, has been occupied for several months by the British, who came to Italy under Gen. Pianner. A British division occupied the south-western ridges of the Asago plateau, with the French on their right. The British, after reconquering advanced positions, momentarily abandoned on Saturday morning with a view of strengthening the line, not only resisted all Austrian attacks, but gallantly counter-attacked in a fashion that caused an Italian superior officer to remark: "They are slanting the gates of Italy in the face of the invader."

A detachment of British cyclists accomplished heroic deeds. They were changing position, and moving along a sunken road parallel to the front. Suddenly they ran into a vastly superior Austrian contingent barring the way. Instead of fleeing, they dismounted and advanced with fixed bayonets. Simultaneously the Austrians were ordered to charge, and the two waves of bayonets clashed. A terrific fight ensued, but the splendid physique and undaunted courage of the British cyclists proved the deciding factor. The British pursued and capturing many rifles and prisoners.

Handling of Reserves.
One of the most successful features of the organization of the Italian army consists in the wise distribution and rapid handling of reserves, which is illustrated by the brilliant feat on the Asago plateau. The British defenders of a certain position were ordered to retire, with a view to straightening the salient. A small detachment was left on crest of a hill 3,000 feet high, to cover the withdrawal. The Austrians, who immediately received the operation, tried to overtake the detachment, but the latter, although almost completely surrounded and outnumbered tenfold, succeeded in holding the enemy at bay.

The commander of an Alpine detachment on the left of the British detachment, decided on his own initiative to attempt to rescue the Britishers. The question was whether the Alpine would be able to arrive in time to find the defenders alive. The commander of the Alpine unit: "We would be too late if any unit of the British detachment were defending the position and if any but the Alpine Chamois were rushing to their rescue." The Italian Alpine thereupon dashed forward and were received by the British with cheers. For Italy, the Austrians were taken aback by this unexpected onslaught that they wavered, whereupon the commander of the British detachment leaped to the top of the trench and ordered a charge. The Austrians were forced to withdraw in face of the attack, both in the front and on the flank.

LEARNING TO FIGHT THE GOTHA IN THE DARK

British Airmen Acquire Facility in Combating German Airmen at Night

London, May 22.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The activity of British airmen in connection with recent air raids on London indicates that they are learning rapidly the art of fighting the Gotha in the dark. Until a few months ago there was little air fighting at night, even in France, and raiding craft enjoyed a marked advantage because their object was solely to avoid attack while dropping their bombs. It is evident that they are able no longer to avoid attack. For one thing, the British pilots have learned to see in the dark as a result of numerous night flights in search of enemy machines. Now they are able to spot Gothas at distances which would have been considered impossible in the early stages of the war.

They have learned also how to take the best positions for combating the enemy, and how to keep those positions. The Gotha, being an extremely heavy machine, is adept at slipping away. By a sudden plunge in front of the attacking plane it can create a "backwash" and

Must Cut Bequests Of G. W. Vanderbilt

New York Estate $929,740 After Deductions Including $312,047 in Debts
—Cash Legacy of $250,000 to Wife is Reduced

New York, June 22.—An appraisal of the estate of George W. Vanderbilt of New York and Biltmore, N. C., who died on March 25, 1914, shows that his property taxable here, which does not include his North Carolina real estate and personal effects and his residences at Washington, D. C., and Bar Harbor, Me., is valued at only $1,914,892. The net estate here is only $929,740, being reduced by debts of $812,047 and other deductions.

Mr. Vanderbilt in his will gave away about $1,800,000 in bequests, and as a result of the deficiency the legacies are all reduced, and nothing remains for his daughter and only child, Corolla Stuyvesant Vanderbilt, named as the residuary legatee. Miss Vanderbilt, however, receives the $500,000 share of her father in the trust fund of $800,000 set aside by his father, William H. Vanderbilt, for the latter's eight children, the principal of each fund to go to the children of the legatee and the interest to be paid to the child. As the only child, Miss Vanderbilt receives all her father's share.

Mr. Vanderbilt had an insurance policy for $1,000,000 in cash, which is reduced to $178,415, and a life interest in $1,000,000. She also received all the Bar Harbor, Washington and Biltmore properties, estimated at more than $500,000, and not taxable in New York. The other legacies, reduced by about one-third, are life incomes of $2,000 each to Charles and Julia L. McNamee, $1,000 each to Talbot Ross and George V. Cesar, and $1,500 to Bernard V. Kerkhof.

Mr. Vanderbilt owned real estate in New York worth $801,778, including a third interest in the property at 647 Fifth avenue, worth $90,918, and the title to buildings on Staten Island worth $447,504 after the deduction of $124,118 unpaid on a mortgage. He had $15,234 in cash, a painting, "Hollis," by Zola, worth $10,000; eight bronze busts by Meunier, valued at $8,850, and two Chinese Kakanawas, worth $2,820. The bulk of the art objects are in the Washington residence and at Biltmore.

Mr. Vanderbilt had an insurance policy for $1,000,000 in the Mutual Life, but he had borrowed on it and $840,822 was due at the time of his death. He had a claim for $120,000 against Jacob H. Van derbilt of Stellaco, Wash., for advances, which was secured by an insurance policy, but the appraiser found the claim of no value because the premiums payable will amount to the face of the policy.

The stocks and bonds were valued at only $11,125, of which $11,000 is the value of 220 shares of the Bar Harbor Water Company. Bonds of the Bar Harbor Association of Art, having a face value of $5,000, are declared to be of no value.

The bulk of Mr. Vanderbilt's debts of $812,047 consisted of promissory notes made since 1910. The largest series of notes is for $65,000 made in 1912 to the American Security and Trust Company of Washington, D. C., and secured by a mortgage on the Washington property.

N. E. SAWMILL UNIT FINISHES ITS WORK.
Within Two Hours After Disbanding in Scotland 240 of Them Enlisted.

The famous New England sawmill unit, in which 325 eastern college men enrolled for civilian forestry work a year ago, finished its allotted task last week at Arden, Scotland, and was disbanded. Within two hours after disbandment almost all the men in the unit enlisted in the American forces, 140 in the engineers and 100 in the navy. The remainder will leave soon for the United States to enlist.

The men who enrolled with the engineers went straight into a training camp near by where those who enrolled in the navy were hard at work on American ships next day.

The Canteen In France

What a Recent Rush of Refugees To Paris Meant For The Workers

(From Women's Section, Office of Director of Public Information.)
Canteen work in France, emergency work in any place "over there" carries with it something more than the privilege of wearing a becoming uniform and having one's picture in the Sunday supplements. The following account of just one night in the women's emergency canteen at the Gare du Nord will convince any one that the work makes a tremendous demand on physical strength, resourcefulness and sympathy.
"When the refugees began to arrive" (after the last great drive) says the report, "ours was the only canteen on the station which was open to them and, as there was no organization then working which allowed of their being taken away to lodgings or other stations, our canteen did its best for them and did it well. Two ladies and one man struggled all night with more than 1,000 refugees and all their multiplicity of belongings, as well as with crowds of soldiers going back to the front or coming from it, some wounded, some worn out and hungry, all demanding food and shelter. To describe that night is impossible and in the days and nights which have followed the call has been almost as great."

"Although the American Red Cross and French war emergency fund have undertaken to carry off the people to other shelters, yet the hundreds of tired and hungry, discouraged and homeless babies, little children drooping for want of sleep like flowers for want of water, old men and women, girls, boys and so many pet animals. They all have to be fed and it is not always easy to get food in these days of bread rationing to say nothing of the money it takes to keep things going when eggs, butter and milk are so expensive. Extra workers, too, are not easily found, just now, for the call is great on all services; but somehow it is managed and British and American men and women, not all in their first youth by any means, have given what help they could and have turned their hands to anything—washing dishes, scrubbing floors, carrying baggage and babies, serving hot coffee and food, and above all, keeping up a spirit of hopefulness and cheerfulness, helping the happy people over the discouragement of a second evacuation of their homes."

"It was noticeable among the majority that they all believed the German advance would be stopped by our men and we were glad they had kept their faith in the steadfast courage of our magnificent soldiers—we, whose hearts were beating with theirs in this hour of utmost trial."
"Surely if friendship is ever sealed between France and England this great fight should seal it for the soil of France is being fought for, inch by inch, by

PIMPLES AND RUNNING SORES

Would Hold Head Down Face Was Such a Sight

Pimples are caused by the blood being out of order. Those festering and running sores appear on the forehead, on the nose, on the chin and other parts of the body, and although they are not a dangerous trouble they are very unattractive to both you and your friends.
There is only one way to get rid of this obnoxious skin trouble, and this is by giving the blood a thorough cleansing by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters. This sterling remedy has been on the market for over forty years, during which time we have received thousands of testimonials as to its curative powers over all skin diseases.

Mrs. G. Fry, North Battleford, Sask., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters when I was about eighteen. I was so bad with pimples and running sores, that when I went down town, I would hold my head down when I would see anyone coming, my face was such a sight. I got two bottles, and my face began to clear, so I kept on until I had a beautiful complexion. I have recommended it to everyone who is in a run down condition, as it builds up the blood, and when the blood is all the face is clear."

WAR-TIME CLOTHES FOR THE WOMEN

(From Women's Section, Office of Director of Public Information.)
All women engaged in official war work have the problem of what to wear solved for them by their government, as a rule. There are other women, however, who are just as truly engaged in war work but whose performance does not remove them from the generality of women. The question of what to wear is, however, a most important one. The great consideration is to secure suitable material, clean, as much as possible in the way of laundry work that comes under the head of "luxuries" and never for one instant look dowdy or what some women abhor almost as much—just "serviceable."

Femininity has set its brains to work and there is a general agreement that the one-piece frock is most satisfactory. If one must have blouses the recommendation is for dark ones with dainty guimpes which can be renewed easily and frequently, suffer comparatively little from their visit to the laundry and always look dainty and fresh. Both time and money are saved by using guimpes. Linen or lawn of good quality is the preferred material. Underwear has likewise been chosen with the same idea in view. Frills are practically banished. All of these points recommend themselves because they emphasize most attractively the two things dear to the womanly woman—daintiness for every day and immaculate freshness.

A London tailor is offering a war-time one-piece dress which has many attractive features. The design is patented and all royalties go to the British Red Cross. The frock is a "slipover" and by means of a clever combination of collar, stole and belt the fullness is adjusted about the waist and one frock may be made to appear different each time it is worn provided the "harness" as it is called, is made up in various colors or materials. The same model can be made up for morning, afternoon and evening wear. Canadian women might design and patent a dress, the proceeds to go to the Red Cross.

A Good Sponder.
Has your wife registered for war work?
"Yes."
"What branch of service would she be best at?"
"I don't know just what it is she volunteered to do, but if there's a vacancy in the purchasing department she'd be a right-at-home there."

The Central Ratepayers' Association of Vancouver has appointed a committee to collect data on the subject of cultivating sugar beets locally and having women render them into sugar and syrup.
