A BEAUTY TALK; TAKING CARE OF THE HAIR

(By Maude Miller.)
"Yes, I have auburn hair—in fact, it's very nearly red. And for that very reason I have to take great care of it." Thus spoke Miss Helen Ely of "The Girls of the Great White Way" Company, decidedly as she looked out at me from under her auburn lashes.

"This is the very opportunity I have been longing for. I have always wanted to talk about hair, and, as mine is red hair, perhaps I know more about the care of it than I do about brown or yellow. The right kind of hair first. Of course we must have a standard of some kind kind to go by. Well, the right kind of hair is clean, healthy and characteristic. And this brings me to the time-worn discussion of how often should the hair be washed. Let me settle it this way—it all depends upon the temperament. Do you think this is begging the question? Really, it isn't. Just stop and think how often you have left more important things than a hair shampoo to this selfsame temperament, and they generally come out all right—don't they? Well, leave the matter of a hair shampoo to your temperament. Depend upon it to cry out and let you know whenever the hair is ready, and then there will never be a stated time when the thing must be done, and things will be happier all around.

"And now for the healthy hair. Healthy hair must have air baths. It should be allowed to hang free and unconfined, the life-giving air passing through it, so that each separate hair will positively crinkle with good will. Then the scalp must be attended to, for it is the soil for the hair, just as the earth is the soil for the flowers. Good hair never grows on a dry, unhealthy scalp, just as flowers never bloom on an arid soil. The best way to keep the scalp healthy is to stimulate the blood to action by massaging the scalp with the finger tips immediately after the hair has been brushed thoroughly for fifteen or twenty minutes. A scalp where the blood is allowed to flow freely will never be bothered with dandruff, falling hair or any of the other unpleasant scalp afflictions. Never use hair tonics on the hair, and above all, don't use perfume. Perfume brings gray hair and takes away all the pretty luster.

"As for character, look around in the theatre at the different girls and see if you can't determine character by their hair arrangement. Remember, you girls with auburn hair, arrange your tresses carefully. There is a way of piling it up loose that will bring out all the copper tints, while a tight arrangement means nothing but just plain red. Be careful of the colors you wear near your hair, too. Black, white and green are the best, while brown, yellow, and orange are splendid, if one's complexion is exceptionally good.

"I love red hair myself. I've never been sorry that I've been blessed with it, but I do give it a great deal of care, and I wish every one else would, too."

PIRIET IS SUSPENDED AND EDITOR EXCOMMUNICATED

Differences Over Political Programme of Abbe Lemire in France

Hasebrouck, France, Jan. 12.—Abbe Just Lemire, the only priest who was a member of the chamber of deputies, has been suspended by the Bishop of Lille, and M. Bonte, editor of Le Cri Des Flandres, the organ of the abbe's supporters, has been excommunicated as a result of differences over the abbe's political programme.

The bishop's letter, which has been read in all the pulpits of the diocese, has aroused intense interest and much comment. Friends of Abbe Lemire have signed a strong protest against episcopal action, and it is understood that the matter will be immediately carried to the higher ecclesiastical authorities.

The bishop gives Abbe Lemire four days in which to renounce all further candidature for the chamber of deputies and publicly sever his connection with the newspaper. He is also required to disavow lectures on social questions, which have been given under his
