NORTH END NEWS

An abundant supply of country produce is being brought to the city with each trip of the river boats and farmers are getting good prices for all kinds of vegetables and apples. The latter are exceptionally plentiful this year. Early apples are selling from $1.00 to $8.00 a barrel. Potatoes were a little higher yesterday and were selling at from fifty to sixty cents a bushel. Tomatoes are also very plentiful and cucumbers, cabbage and carrots are selling at the same prices as last week.

The steamers have had good passenger lists during the last week as people are moving in from the country and several families have been coming down river each day. The May Queen had about fifteen passengers this morning when she left for the Grand Lake. Many of these were excursionists taking advantage of the holiday on Monday to spend Sunday up river.

Paving work in Main street is progressing very slowly and street cars are still running on the one track from Mill street to Douglas avenue so that there is often considerable delay in going either way on the cars and teams can use only one side of the street for a considerable distance so that traffic is often congested.

During the exhibition, which opens tonight, traffic will be even heavier in Main street than now. It does not seem as if the work will be completed for some time yet.

SPECTATOR ASKS WHERE KAISER'S VIOLATION ENDS

London Paper Sees Where President Wilson Can Render Service to Mankind by Demanding Explanation From Germany

London, Sept. 4.—The Spectator, discussing the German operations at Louvain, says:

"We venture to take this opportunity of again suggesting that President Wilson should approach the German emperor and ask him for a plain declaration of what his intentions are with regard to all the treaties signed in his behalf at The Hague. Those agreements have been shamelessly disregarded so that no earnest man can now place any trust in German promises."

The newspaper says that Englishmen, no matter what Emperor William's answer might be, would have no thought of repudiating the treaties. There must be no policy of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth."

"Here is Mr. Wilson's opportunity," the Spectator continues. "The United States is strictly neutral—as honestly neutral toward Germany, we are sure, as toward ourselves. But she is the only neutral great power, except Italy, left outside the orbit of war. We earnestly hope that Mr. Wilson, finding himself in this position—particularly since he represents a nation deeply committed to the principles of The Hague—will boldly ask the German emperor to declare his intentions."

"Mr. Wilson can act where no one else could as the spokesman of civilization and of human rights. The question he be put to the German emperor could be asked in a manner that would admit of no misunderstanding or evasion."

"Does the German emperor repudiate the Geneva convention, and—perhaps even more binding—the common understanding of Europe that has grown up in the 200 years? Does he repudiate all the Hague conventions? We ought to know. In our opinion the United States owes it to civilization to find out for the rest of the world."

WHY IS IT?

Why is it that a glass dropped into a pan of hot water will break but if put in a pan of cold water and boiled, it will not even crack?

This is not such a poser as it seems to be, because almost everybody knows that most things get bigger, that is, they expand when they are heated just as they shrink or contract under the influence of cold. So if a tumbler is filled with hot water or put in hot water it expands or breaks because every part of it does not become hot at once.

If, however, the glass is in the pan while the water is boiling the whole glass expands equally, there is no strain between inside and outside and there is no reason why it should break.

A HEALTHOGRAM

Out of every 100 cases of typhoid, 85 come from polluted water, five from milk, five from flies and five from other causes. Water is a mere carrier of germs. The germs do not grow and multiply in it as they do in milk. Demand close inspection of all dairy farms from your health department as a man with "walking" typhoid may easily start an epidemic of real cases.

MEREDITH'S PRETTY NIECE MAKES COURT BOW

This is Miss Joan Meredith Sturgis, the handsome and accomplished niece of the late George Meredith, who has just been presented to her sovereign. She is not without literary ability herself, having contributed both sketches and poetry to various society publications. The possessor, too, of an agreeable voice, she has appeared in more than one of the musical scenes written by Mrs. William Meredith, daughter-in-law of the famous novelist.

A Lesson In War Geography

ST. DIE—Picturesque city of 22,136 on the Meurthe, 32 miles from Lunenburg, with which it is connected by railroad. The surrounding district is thickly wooded. A cathedral built in the 14th century has been attractive to tourists.

ARRAS—Formerly a fortified city, on the bank of the Scarpe, 82 miles northeast from Calais and twelve miles south of Lille. It is the center of a grain-growing district. In the middle ages it achieved a reputation for making tapestries, but that industry has long been abandoned. Population 24,921.

ROUBAIX—Important manufacturing city of 126,000, six miles from Lille. It is connected with the Scheldt by canal. A national university for industrial training is located here.

ROUEN—Midway between Paris and Havre, on the English Channel. It had a population of 118,469 in 1906. It was the former capital of Normandy and does a large business in cotton manufacture. Its medieval walls were often besieged during wars in the middle ages. It was the birthplace of La Salle, the explorer.

ALLENSTEIN—Important railroad junction in East Prussia, reported to be occupied by Russians. It is fortified and has been the headquarters of an army corps. It has a population of 38,000.

THORN—Strongly fortified town on the Vistula river and on direct line of railroad from Berlin to Warsaw. It has a population of 47,000.

LEADER RESIGNS TO FARM IN CHILE

Count Otani's Ideas Were to Make Buddhism of East as Strong as Christianity of the West

Tokio, Sept. 4.—Indictments which have been returned charging five Buddhist priests with the embezzlement of approximately $4,000,000, together with allegations that the corruption has extended to some prominent officials attached to the Imperial Palace in Tokyo, and the resignation of the distinguished abbot, Count Otani, of the Western Honganji sect, because of the scandal and his announced intention of migration to Chile to begin life anew as a farmer, have constituted a sensation for all Japan.

Count Otani's case is of absorbing interest. The Western Honganji sect, founded 700 years ago, has been one of the richest Buddhist associations in Japan. Today it has a debt of some $5,000,000. The sect has a beautiful temple at Kyoto, and its leader, Count Otani, has over a million followers throughout the Empire. He was one of the most picturesque and commanding figures in Japan, although only thirty years of age.

His great idea was to make Buddhism of the East as strong a force in the world as the Christianity of the west. He had traveled much abroad. He went through China, studied Buddhism in India, made investigations in England, sent favorite priests on long journeys to all parts of the world, equipped an expedition to Central Asia, started a religious propaganda on a large scale for the diffusion of Buddhism and kept in touch with the world problems to an exceptional degree. He spent much time and money in establishing Buddhist schools in which his priests were educated, bought and sold land, harbored an ambition to become a member of the House of Peers, and built a magnificent palace on the top of Rokkasan, a mountain near Kobe.

He saw that Christianity, as he put it, was like a strong chain that joined the countries of Europe together. He predicted a time when there might be a great clash between Oriental Buddhism and Occidental Christianity, and wondered whether Buddhism would be strong enough to hold together the yellow race.

His ambition was to strengthen Buddhism so that when the great combat came the religion of the east would predominate.

In Japan Buddhism found its greatest strength, he believed. Returning to Japan he began a vigorous campaign. He preached his doctrines and his ideas. He told the young men that they should go abroad as missionaries, specially to the uncultured parts of the world for the diffusion of Buddhism. His students began to dream of adventures in far distant lands. Some went to Australia and others to the Pacific coast of South America.

Then he conceived a gigantic scheme to explore Central Asia. He was convinced that a Buddhist party would be able to make discoveries that would strengthen the claims of Buddhism upon the world. Older priests pleaded with the abbot not to launch such an expensive project, but the Count insisted and sent a boy of eighteen, son of a Nagoya priest, as the leader of his expedition. The undertaking cost thousands of dollars. Its results were doubtful as concerning science, say the Count's critics.

Count Otani meanwhile lived in almost regal style in his wonderful villa at Rokkasan. His mansion was rich in carvings and paintings and rare objects of art. There were gardens, dormitories, schools and all that goes to make up a little kingdom of itself, looking down upon the harbor of Kobe and the Bay of Osaka. The dormitories were modeled after those the abbot had seen at Eton. Clothing, furnishings and food were luxurious. When the old priests who slowly climbed the mountain, coming from the temple at Kyoto, remonstrated with him for extravagances he told them not to worry as he was seeking the great interests of Buddhism.

Not one of the abbot's present critics accuse him of vanity or personal aggrandizement. He was sincere, they say, in his big enterprises which included speculation in land. He was influential and well liked by his priests. But debts began to accumulate and the sect with its 30,000 priests and 10,000 temples began to face financial troubles. The superb art treasures of the Kyoto temple had to be sold. There was payment and acceptance of illicit commissions in the transfer of property from the sect to the Imperial House.

Count Otani forthwith resigned his leadership and appointed his four-year-old son as his successor. He auctioned off the furnishings of the beautiful villa at Rokkasan and announced his intention of going to Chile to begin life anew as a farmer.

The five priests who are under indictment were members of the board of directors managing the extensive properties of the sect. The charges include allegations that there was payment and acceptance of illicit commissions in the transfer of property from the sect to the Imperial House.

PLENTY OF OYSTERS BUT NO MARKET

War has nipped the oyster crop of Long Island in the bud. The bulk of the blue point crop, which is a big one, is sold abroad, but the embargo on foreign shipments leaves the oyster men with only the home market to supply, and this means that the supply will be much greater than the demand. Hundreds of men are employed in gathering and packing oysters. These will be without work until the foreign market re-opens.
