YACHTING

After Coronation Cup

It was decided at the quarterly meeting of the R. K. Y. C. last evening to hold a public meeting early in September to consider plans for building a yacht to challenge for the Coronation Cup at present held in Halifax. This cup was donated twelve years ago by Robert Thomson, when commander of the R. K. Y. C. and was carried off to Sydney by a freak yacht called the Chion. Until this summer, when it was won by the Gen, it has been held in Sydney.

The Leafs

The fact that the Toronto team was able to annex only one-half of the twenty clubs staged at the Island Stadium during the last Eastern invasion, shows conclusively that the present aggregation under Manager Kelley's management certainly will not do, for it is no secret that unless a team can win in the neighborhood of seventy-five per cent of its home engagements, it will not prove a very serious pennant contender.

Some of the more rabid fans are already clamoring for the abdication of Manager Joe Kelley in favor of "Bill" Bradley, pointing out, in an endeavor to strengthen their arguments, that the great team plays better ball in the absence of Manager Joe. Inasmuch as this contention was accentuated during the last Montreal series, there may be something in the wind, but the fact is patent that Manager Kelley is plenty big enough for Toronto.

Never since Toronto has had a representative team in either the Eastern or International League have its players been the victims of so much injuries and sickness, but in clamoring for the scalp of the Baltimore politician, the local supporters of the game seem to forget that Manager Kelley is plenty big enough for Toronto.

Through Charles P. Taft, Murphy secured control of the Cubs and Phillips. As the dollars piled up as a result of his club's success, Murphy's arrogance increased until he made enemies of almost every newspaper man who had to come in contact with him.

His dismissal of Frank Chance and Mordecai Brown, two men who more than any others were responsible for his large fortune, brought down upon Murphy's famous green hat, the wrath of the fans. An effort to buy him out failed, and he continues the stormy petrel of the old league.

Murphy revels in and strives for newspaper publicity. He realizes that every bit of advertising he gets is money in his pocket, and although some of the things said about him would make a paralytic fight, Murphy has never permitted his personal feelings to interfere with the golden stream at the box office.

The Scouts

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 12.—Major League scouts are finding the Central League a profitable hunting ground and are buying the best players right and left, without waiting to take chances in the draft. In the present race of purchases, it is estimated that few players of major league caliber will remain in the Central League season closes, four weeks from now.

Central League team owners are doing all they possibly can to encourage the scouts to watch their men in action, for, on the sale of young players, depends most of the earnings for the managers. While the average attendance in the six cities of the league has been better than ever before, the gate receipts will not make more than they expect, and the owner must look to the sale of players to make his money.

A few of the players that have been taken recently from the ranks of the Central League are called Hargrove to the Chicago Americans, from Terre Haute; Pfeffer to Brooklyn, from Grand Rapids; Pieck and Kroy, to the New York Americans, from Terre Haute; Fabrice and Tutewiler, to Detroit, and Bowman to Cleveland, from Grand Rapids.

Braves Buy Second Baseman

Waco, Tex., Aug. 12.—Oscar Duguey, second baseman of the Waco, Tex. League, team and leading base runner of the league, was sold this week to the Boston Nationals to report at the end of the Texas League's season. The consideration is said to have been $2,000.

Decision for Kid Kennedy

Harry Cones, champion lightweight of New England, sends the Times from Portland, Me., a paragraph to the effect that Kid Kennedy on Friday night met Spike O'Neill in a six round bout and Referee Tom Sawyer gave Kennedy the decision. Cones is Kennedy's manager.

Dundee Knocks Out White

Los Angeles, Aug. 12.—Johnnie Dundee, a New York featherweight, knocked out Jack White, of Chicago, in the ninth round of a scheduled twenty round bout in the Vernon arena last night. Dundee led in every round.

Dundee's speed seemed to dazzle White from the start. He floored White in the third round, and again in the sixth. Both times White came promptly, only to take some savage punishment. In the fourth round, White showed a slight flash of form for the only time. A left hook, cleanly planted, sent the Chicago boxer to the canvas in the ninth. Referee Egan immediately raised the New York man's arm. White tried to regain his feet, but there was no count.

ATHLETIC

New Canadian Record

Jack Tait set up a new Canadian record for three-quarters of a mile at Scarborough Beach on Saturday night when he covered the distance in 3:17.02, the previous record was 3:18. Jack Treadwell paced him for practically the whole distance and was leading by about ten yards out twenty yards from the finish when he dropped out, and Jack went on and set the new mark.

Tait was running in the mile handicap from scratch and finished third behind Ted Phillips and McCullough, both of whom were on the 80 yard mark.

TROUBLES OF JOCKEYS

Victious Attacks by Race Horses and Serious Injuries Inflicted (Pearson's Weekly)

Trouble in the paddock and at the post before a big race is frequently caused by a horse which is nervous, sudden and violent dislike to his jockey, and there are numerous cases of well-known jockeys being nearly eaten to death by their mounts.

One of the worst cases of "savaging" occurred to Otto Madden, a famous jockey, at Brighton races a few years ago. He was riding down to the starting post for the Worthington Plate, when a horse called Margold IV, overtook him, dragged him out of the saddle by the shoulder, and rearing him by the throat, shook him as a terrier shakes a rat.

The jockey of Margold IV, who had himself been unseated, used his whip freely on the brute's head to make him release Madden, and other jockeys coming to his assistance, Margold IV, was even beaten off but not before Madden had been severely wounded.

Diamond Jubilee, the horse which won King Edward's first Derby took a violent dislike to his jockey, Mortimer Cannon. If Cannon went near his horse box, or the horse saw him in the stableyard or paddock, he would make frantic efforts to "go for him" and Cannon had several close shaves from being badly mauled.

Fred Archer once had a bad tussle with a horse which tried to "savage" him, but the famous jockey succeeded in getting the better of the animal and won the race. The horse was "Peter" and the race the Hunt Cup.

Peter Archer in the paddock before the race, riding him by the arm, nearly bit him in two. Archer succeeded in beating him off, whereupon he threw himself down on the ground and screamed, lashing out at everyone who came near him. Archer, however, was not to be daunted and he eventually succeeded in mastering the brute.

Lord Charles Cunningham, a well-known paper in the London Times, was a large scale in India, had a very valuable racing pony which took a violent dislike to the "grooms" or native grooms. He absolutely refused to allow them

Marathons and Frederick have Made Their Gains by Defeating the Other Teams—The Record to Date

It might be interesting at this time of the New Brunswick and Maine League race when the teams are exchanging the initials for their last sport for the penultimate to analyze the standing of the teams and to show how many games each team has won and lost to each of the others.

The Marathons, who are in the lead are credited with 88 victories. Of these 19 have been won from Bangor, eight from Fredericton and seven from St. Croix, or in other words, the Greeks have taken as many victories from Bangor as the other two teams combined.

The Marathons' losses now number 28. St. Croix is credited with the greatest number of wins over the local team, having secured nine, Fredericton comes second with eight, and Bangor not far behind with six.

Fredericton is now second in the league standing. They have likewise taken a large number of games from each team, ten of the Bordenites' victories were secured from Fredericton, nine from St. John and eight from Bangor. St. Croix has dropped twenty-five games since he was taken to Fredericton, and four to Bangor.

Bangor's fifteen victories look scarce alongside the other teams wins, but a very large part of them have been secured in the last few weeks. Bangor has taken most of the games from Marathons, six in all, five have been won from Fredericton and four from St. Croix. The forty-one losses are divided as follows: Nineteen to St. John, fourteen to Fredericton and eight to St. Croix.

The late John H. Treadwell, a well-known landscape painter, was essentially an "artist's artist," in that his style appealed more to his colleagues of the art world than to the lay public. Any one familiar with the man and his work would say that the following incident which is related of him might easily be true. A man who had bought one of the artist's paintings wished his opinion on the subject of the picture and inspired him to dine. Mr. Treadwell expressed his approval of the background, of the height at which the canvas was hung, pronounced the light favorable—indeed, he said, there was only one particular in which he would suggest any change.

"And what is that?" inquired his host solicitously.

"Why," said the artist, "I should hang it the other side up. I always have."

A motorist felt this one on himself. Trying out a new car on the road between Cedar Grove and Great Notch, he stepped to pick up an old farmer who looked as if he might like a ride and who admitted that it was his first experience in an automobile. The machine was hitting a pretty good clip when it skidded on a soft spot and ran into a tree. Nobody was hurt, but as the ruralist picked himself up he said to the motorist:

"Well, that was going some. But say, mister, there's one thing I'd like to ask you. How do you stop one of these contraptions where there ain't no trees?"

to come into his stable, and on one occasion when two of the "gyces" came in together to try to groom him he bit off one man's arm completely at the elbow whilst the other only escaped with a badly lacerated ear. After that, while stable boys from England had to be especially imported to look after him.

"Gyces," which became "savage" through ill health some time before he died, wore a muzzle and the stable-boy was paid extra to look after him.

Ladies, Lord Roseberry's famous racehorse, was perfectly quiet under ordinary circumstances, but for some unknown reason he had a great dislike for ladies.

The Giants in a Slump; What McGraw Says About It

By JOHN J. MCGRAW, Manager of the Champion Giants.
(Copyright, 1913, by John J. McGraw)

The Quakers have done well on this trip west and have surprised me by their tenacity in holding on. When they left their slump and last year's out of eleven some time ago, I figured the team to be in for the season. Doubtless they deserve credit for having kept their club in the race after the discouraging slide, and I think it is in the race yet. Doubtless, however, has to depend largely on two pitchers, and he is forced to overwork them.

The strain will begin to tell on the club again, too, and I look to see it run into another slump when the westerners visit the east. I do not think the Quakers can possibly hold their present pace for two months more.

It will be recalled that last year the Cubs crawled up to within fewer than four games of us in the latter part of August. But we were able to stand them off and finally came through. The Cubs have always been strong against us, and I think they will be again.

However, we have a fairly comfortable lead now, and Meyers is the only regular who will be out of the game for some time on account of his injury. It is my opinion that the ailments of both Mathewson and Marquard are temporary.

The Athletics had a slight scare last week when the Los Angeles team got a two games in a row from them. If a team out in the lead loses two games in succession to another team, it is a bad omen, and it is not surprising that the Athletics feel that they are in a bad way.

"Connie" Mack has demonstrated this year what a clever manager he is by taking time on account of his injury. It is my opinion that the ailments of both Mathewson and Marquard are temporary.

Feather in Mack's Cap

Mack, as I say, had good youngsters, and he has a very good one in the person of the remarkable looking pitcher who is called Mack. Mack will be in a position to work out for him. If money is not a consideration, Mack will be in a position to work out for him.

Therefore, you can bet that Athletics' series' last week was merely a fluke. I am sure that they will be able to clean up in it, they had a chance to cut in on the world's championship.

Jack Coombs

They tell me John Coombs looks to be in pretty good shape. He will greatly strengthen the Athletics if he can work some of the September games. He is a great pitcher for a world's series. If he can't get a chance to pitch, he is a great pitcher for a world's series.

Plans are maturing for a national boxing organization which will have for its purpose the booking of boxers for various clubs or promoters throughout the United States; in fact, it is to be a general booking agency, the same as is in vogue among the theatrical managers.

Back of the project is Wilbur Stuart, of Columbus, Ohio, and associated with him are men in New York and St. Louis. It is the intention of the organizers of the company to have connections in all the large cities. This project would do away with the middleman, or manager, to some extent, but not necessarily, as very often managers are only too willing to pay the regular booking fee to get a match. The scheme may not look very tempting to some at the present time, but with the growth of the boxing game there is no reason why the project should not be a success—at least it is worth trying.

FISH THAT PROVIDES MEAT FOR THOUSANDS

(London Tilt-Bits)

Very seldom indeed is the sturgeon the way in which Edward II. was weighed as much as 563 pounds and 738 have been captured by trawlers.

It is pointed out that one of the most remarkable facts about the fish netted in the North Sea is that they are similar to the American species, whence it would seem that the specimens caught from time to time in our waters must have made the voyage across the Atlantic, since the fish appears to have died out as a regular inhabitant of British waters.

Sturgeons pass the greater part of the year in the sea, but periodically ascend large rivers, and it was due to this characteristic that the specimen was caught recently in the River Delph.

Not only do they attain great size and weight, but, according to the estimates of some experts, they sometimes live as long as 200 years. Apropos of the fact that Edward II. made the sturgeon a royal fish, it is interesting to note that the fish, quite apart from the fact that
