AFGHANISTAN AFFAIRS.

The death of Abdurrahman Khan, the Ameer of Afghanistan, recalls the tragic events in that country. Before he became its ruler, it was in July, 1880, that he was chosen Ameer, in the same month in which Sir Frederick (now Lord) Roberts made his famous dash from Kabul to Kandahar. Robert crushed Ayoub Khan, and Abdurrahman, who had just returned from years of exile in Russian territory at Samarcand, was chosen Ameer by the people of Kabul, and acknowledged by the British Indian government. Then Roberts and the British forces retired, and the Ameer has ever since remained the friend of England as against the designs of Russia. Roberts had entered Afghanistan in 1879 to avenge the massacre of Sir Louis Cavagnar, the British envoy at Kabul, and seventy-eight British officers and soldiers. Abdurrahman Khan had gone into exile in 1880 because he had been defeated by his cousin, Ayoub Khan, and he opportunely returned at the time when the treachery of the latter was so severely punished by Roberts. It was Ayoub's turn to go into exile, while his cousin assumed the reins of power.

For 21 years Abdurrahman Khan has ruled the country with success. Originally the various provinces were ruled by sirdars, who were practically independent of the Ameer, being held in check either by divisions among themselves or by clever policy. But the late Ameer by degrees reduced the tribes to subordination, established a regular army of perhaps 60,000 men, and made his own power secure. The despatches yesterday stated that his son, the Sirdar Habibulla Khan, had been chosen Ameer. The new Ameer is the eldest son of Abdurrahman Khan, and is no doubt friendly to England, for he will receive, as his father did, £100,000 a year from the Indian government, besides quantities of arms and ammunition for his military forces. Afghanistan has no foreign relations with any other country than British India, but in all other respects independent.

The accession of the new Ameer has, according to the despatches, been accepted by his brothers and the sirdars and all is quiet at the capital. Harmony in Afghanistan means considerable to at least two other nations. That country has a significance out of all proportion to its size and population. Its area is only about 270,000 square miles, and its population about the same as that of Canada, yet its affairs are watched closely by more than one foreign office. The country forms, as it were, a barrier between Russian advances and British India. Through it there is easy access to the eastern possessions of Great Britain, and without an open door in that country there is no way by which Russia can obtain an easy entry to India.

Since the above was written a St. Petersburg despatch has come to hand stating that Russia favors the claims of the fourth son of Abdurrahman Khan to the throne, and that Russian troops are being ordered to the frontier in readiness if necessary to seize Herat. While one can never safely predict what will occur in Afghanistan, and while Russia would be very glad to have an Ameer of her own choosing at Kabul, it seems most probable that this is an alarmist despatch, and that the present Ameer will be able to hold the throne.

THE TORONTO FABIAN LEAGUE.

An interesting discussion took place in the Canadian Socialist League in Toronto on Sunday night on the question of public ownership. A declaration of principles was adopted, and one of them was public ownership of all the means of production, distribution and exchange. Dr. Hargrave, who was the socialist candidate in Central Toronto at the last dominion election, strongly opposed this paragraph. He said that the Fabian Society, which had done the most effective work for socialism in England, did not pronounce in favor of public ownership of all the means of production and distribution, but only such means as would conduce to industrial freedom. Even that was far more than he expected to see realized in his lifetime, and as practical men and women they should not aim at the unattainable, but keep on the earth.

Despite the vigorous opposition of Dr. Hargrave, however, the clause was almost unanimously adopted by the society.

An exchange says: "Toronto's chief of police advises that bicycles and baby carriages should be kept off the streets when the crowds turn out to see the duke and duchess, thereby reducing the danger of accidents." Toronto's chief of police is a wise man, and this advice might well be taken in St. John. During the royal visit there will be crowds on the streets and baby carriages and bicycles would be better and safer at home.

THE INDIANS AT CALGARY.

A Picturesque Group Reviewed by The Duke and Duchess.

(Regina, West.)
 After the review the royal party proceeded to the Indian encampment, at Shaganappie on a wide plateau among the foothills overlooking Calgary. Here two thousand Indians were assembled from the various reservations, including the Blackfoot, Cree and Sarcee. A tent was erected for the Duke and Duchess bearing the message "Kitikimsia tsimponion," signifying "Welcome" in the Blackfoot tongue, and before it squatted the great chiefs of the various nations smoking their pipes. Beyond were the children of the Indian schools of the district and beyond again were hundreds of Indian women with their paposes and blankets, the whole a great semi-circle of mounted Indians on their wary ponies. They were in full war paint and gaudy with turkey feathers, beads, cattle horns and many colored fabrics. The horses had been decorated with feathers and paint. The splendid little bodies of the almost naked Sarcee were brilliant with ochre which had been rubbed into face and legs.

Here the chiefs presented the duke with a royal address which was read. Several of the chiefs spoke in their native language. In reply to their address the duke made a lengthy reply. The duke cast his reply in high flow language, the only previous occasion on which he has during his tour having been in speaking to the natives of New Zealand. He pointed out that their pipes were empty and their hearths cold when the Great White Mother had come to their aid, but the part which he was speaking of was his hearth, his allusion to their loyalty during the rebellion of 1885. This allusion was loudly applauded by the chiefs and head men around him. The duke's reply was translated by a clever half-breed who repeated it to a chief who called it out in native tongue to the assembled tribes.

A war dance was gotten up for the benefit of the duchess.

SOUTH AFRICA.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—A despatch from Middelburg to the Times says: "Colonel Buller, in an engagement with Myburgh, killed two and wounded three Boers. He also captured 60 horses, 20 saddles, 8 rifles, 600 rounds of ammunition and many blankets." LONDON, Oct. 8.—A despatch to the Times from Mafeking says: "Fifty mounted men of the Northumberland Fusiliers proceeded on the night of the 18th inst. from Lichtenburg to a farm at Dukerfontein with the object of capturing General Delarey, his staff and family. The farm was rushed at daylight on the 19th inst. but Delarey had fled overnight. Eleven Boers were captured."

LONDON, Oct. 8.—A Johannesburg despatch to the Times says: "The following have been caught in arms in the Transvaal. They have been permanently banished from South Africa: Field Cornets Botha, Hugo, Nieuwoudt and Duijssels; Captains Olivier, Coetz, Coetz and Kruger; and Adjutant Van der Linde." CAPE TOWN, Oct. 9.—Marital law will be modified in its application to the ports by leaving the docks, railroads and harbors under the control of the civil authorities. Military rule will be mitigated in some other respects.

A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION

Of the Massacre of The American Soldiers by the Filipinos.

(Mail and Express.)
 We see a little coast Philippine village, eastward-looking, its low huts and palm trees commanded by a church and convent, joined together. The church has its dome and bell tower in this tower hangs a chime of bells, open to the weather. The town is known to be in the neighborhood. The sun has risen, and the mess-call has sounded on the bugles. All the village knows that the soldiers and officers are at their somewhat boisterous breakfast. The soldiers' arms are stacked within the enclosure made by the quarters. The whole town wears an aspect of perfect peace. The president, or mayor, has been a very friendly visitor of the American captain, young Connell, and his people have been profuse in their expressions of loyalty.

As the officers and men begin to breakfast, the people, dressed in their white, loose tunics, and trousers, begin to arrive for morning service in the church. Evidently some special service is taking place. Religious feast days are rather more common than work days in the Philippines. The bells of the convent begin to ring clamorously, and the people—not a man of them apparently armed—flock into the church in large numbers. The smiling president, the good friend of the Americans, is prominent among them. They advance with genuflection along the open floor, for there are no such things as seats in Philippine churches.

Doors give from the back of the church and convent to the space occupied by the troops. All at once, to the surprise of the unsuspecting officers and men, the band of sharpshooters begin swarming out of the church and convent into this space. Out from under their tunics they whip their bolos—savage sword-knives which they know very well how to handle. Before a command can be uttered, a hundred of these natives rush in between the breakfasting soldiers and their guns. A hundred others swarm out of the convent. At the same time a smaller band has fallen upon the three officers, captain and his two lieutenants, whom they cut down instantly. The soldiers, dropping their cups and mess-kits, are rushing for their guns, and fighting madly with their hands and with such revolvers and knives as they have, to regain the rifles. Meantime another force of natives, armed also with bolos, has poured in upon them from the rear. The bells have been a signal for a general attack from all directions.

Retreating, the old sergeant, has assumed command. The onslaught has been so sudden and so fierce that the majority of the soldiers have been already cut down. Betton and twenty-five of his men remain as many rifles, and for a time they beat back both the bodies of the assailants. But it is a losing fight. The surviving Americans are assailed by a mass of savages climbing over the bodies of their comrades. In the little interval in which they saw with the general, the soldiers devote themselves, in addition to their desperate fighting, to drawing out the bolts of the Krag-Jorgensen, thus rendering them useless. By and by, dragging with them such wounded men as they can move, they make their way, still fighting, to the shore, where only thirteen sound men, having with them thirteen wounded, escaped.

"It is, in broad lines, the picture. It is a picture of Oriental savagery, of a blind and smiling murderous assault, under the guise of solemn religious worship, in the genuineness of which under any circumstances it is the instinct of an American to believe. The central incident strongly suggests that of one of De Quincey's romances of the thirty years' war, in which soldiers, with concealed arms, were masked under the guise of worshippers and sprang up at a signal. The fight at Balangiga was a deed of savage treachery, easily without a parallel in modern times."

Union Blend tea is used by the masses used by all classes, use it and you profit, only if you lose.

SOLEMNIZATION OF MARRIAGE.

SA FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—The action of greatest importance taken today by the tri-ennial Episcopal convention was the adoption by the convention of bishops by a vote of 37 to 21 of Canon 38, which relates to the solemnization of marriages. All of its provisions had previously been argued except those contained in section four, which forbade the marriage of persons divorced for any cause not existing before marriage.

"For any cause not existing before marriage," is understood to refer to such causes as insanity, inability to execute a contract, the existence of a living wife or husband, or like reasons which practically render the marriage null and void. This section has been a bone of contention, a strong element in the church holding that the re-marriage of the innocent party to a divorce, granted on the ground of infidelity should not be forbidden. The bishops have refused to accept this view of the matter.

RATS ATTACK CHILD.

Cries of Infant Brought Help Just in Time.

WATERTOWN, Oct. 8.—The other night neighbors of Mrs. Mary Martin, who resides at No. 35 Court street, heard a child crying in her house, and, knowing that she was about from home, Fred Eaton broke in the door and found Mrs. Martin's 6-months' old daughter lying in a cradle screaming and almost covered by a swarm of rats.

Eaton drove the rats away, and called Dr. B. C. Cheeseman, who reached the house just after the mother returned. He found that the rats had fed the feet and legs of the child. Portions of it had been gone, and the parts remaining were badly lacerated by the sharp teeth of the rodents. He dressed the wounds and the child will probably live unless blood poisoning sets in.

There is full value in every package of Red Rose tea.

Most testified that the article had been published years ago and that he had copied it in the Freiheit on March 14, 1893, the time of it, but at the time of the murder of President McKinley, he said, was an unfortunate coincidence.

FREE BAPTISTS.

Thought it Advisable to Co-operate with Maritime Baptists in Educational and Missionary Work.

At the closing session of the Free Baptist conference at Fredericton it was resolved that 3,500 copies of the year book be printed and $200 per annum be spent in advertising in the Religious Intelligencer. It was decided to ordain H. H. Ferguson, A. A. Rideout and F. H. Knollin, to renew the license of J. H. Puddington to grant conference licenses to J. C. Wilson, E. H. Cochran, W. O. Kierstead, R. W. Ferguson and W. E. Kirkpatrick, and that Geo. Bolster be continued on a district license. The ordination services were then proceeded with.

Dr. McLeod, for the committee of resolutions, presented a report which touched upon the death of the queen, the accession of King Edward and the visit of the Duke of York.

Rev. L. A. Fenwick, for the home mission executive, reported: Receipts, $504.30; expenditures, $501.58; balance, $2.72. Gideon McLeod reported for sick and disabled members fund: Receipts, $275.76; expenditure, $20; balance, $255.76.

Resolved, on motion of Rev. Dr. Hartley, seconded by Dr. McLeod Vince, that "as God has blessed us as a people while teaching the doctrine of free grace, free agency, free salvation and free and open communion, therefore we will continue to urge home to the hearts of the people the Scripture truthfulness of these doctrines with unabated earnestness."

Rev. Jos. McLeod, from committee on Maritime Baptists' proposal, reported that while rejoicing in their prosperity and reciprocating their feelings of friendship, yet this conference thought it inadvisable to co-operate in the education and missionary schemes proposed.

Conference adjourned sine die.
