

Did You Ever Notice that the Tins of Estabrooks' Red Rose Coffee are Double Sealed?

First there is a band put on the seam where the cover joins the tin, then over this band the label is placed, doubly sealing it and making it absolutely air-tight. If you ever get a tin that is not air-tight, that has been broken, or in any way damaged, return it to your grocer and he will give you another.

A good combination of Estabrooks' Coffee for breakfast and Red Rose Tea for other meals

Coffee after it is roasted, whether bean, ground or crushed, must be kept in absolutely air-tight packages, otherwise it quickly loses flavor and strength. This is one of the reasons why we never sell coffee in bulk to be ground in the store as required. It must be protected from the air from the very start.

DEBEC.

Debec, April 22.—Miss Pauline Henderson, of Plymouth, spent a short time at this village the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flemming. On Friday evening R. A. Flemming, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flemming, gave a party to a few of his young friends in honor of Miss Henderson. Various amusements were indulged in and ice cream and cake was served. A good time is reported.

Hon. J. K. Flemming was in Debec recently the guest of Mrs. Gordon Neal. Mr. Flemming was accompanied by his youngest son Hugh.

Miss Belle Ramzy, daughter of Rev. E. Ramzy, and matron of the hospital for incurables at St. John, has returned to her duties in the city after spending a week's vacation at Debec.

Mrs. Kelly, wife of Wm. Kelly, whose case has attracted such wide-spread interest, has been removed from their farm at Elmwood to McAdam Junction, where she will conduct a boarding house.

Mr. Howard Lavery met with quite a serious accident, when a colt which he was handling kicked him almost breaking his leg.

Miss Lulu Sanderson was about the village soliciting contributions for Home and Foreign Missions.

Spargue Flemming, eldest son of Rev. J. K. Flemming, paid a flying trip to Debec.

Cecil Clarke, of Waterville, York County, spent a few days at Debec the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Clark.

Stanley Deakin, of Benton, who met with a serious accident a few weeks ago is still very ill at his home. Miss Margaret Deakin, his sister, a trained nurse of Lawrence, Mass., is in attendance.

Rev. Mr. Bertram, of Benton, is spending some time at Debec the guest of Rev. E. and Mrs. Ramzy. Whooping cough has again broken out in the village. James A. Flemming, the little son of Grover Flemming, is very ill with it at present. Mrs. Howard Nason is quite ill. Mrs. William Lavery is again ill.

Rev. Calvin Currie delivered a very powerful sermon in the Foresters' Hall Sunday evening.

Recent visitors to Woodstock are Miss Jennie Meagher, Miss Susie Kennedy, Mrs. Grover Flemming, Mrs. Percy Hickey and Mr. Oliver Hempill. To Hamilton: Mrs. F. R. Blair, Mrs. J. R. Kirkpatrick, Rev. C. Currie, S. Billings, etc.

Joseph Lenihan has sold his valuable farm property, which is situated near this village.

Mr. Monteth, who has purchased the farm of Jas. Gillen about one mile from Debec, has moved with his family into his new residence.

Notwithstanding the fact that the majority of the farmers of this locality are at a loss on account of the failure of the potato crop and of the condition of the market, yet many of them have already purchased a large amount of phosphate preparatory to planting large acreages in potatoes.

Mr. P. J. O'Rourke, who for the past eleven years has been a member of the staff of the Western Union Telegraph Company, left on Saturday evening for Toronto, where he has accepted a position with the Great Northern Western.

Special Services In City Churches

ODDFELLOWS OBSERVE

THEIR ANNIVERSARY

Service in Carleton Methodist Church—Special Music—Rev. Gordon Dickie Preaches on The Spirit of Fraternity.

The Oddfellows' of the city celebrating their services in the Carleton Methodist church, where they heard an excellent sermon by the Rev. Gordon Dickie. The West End Oddfellows formed up in the hall at 120 and came to the city, headed by the Carleton Cornet Band, marching to the Oddfellows' Hall where they were joined by the city and north end lodges and marched to the ferry. The lodges and band made a fine appearance, and the procession was viewed by large crowds all along the line of route.

Arrived at the church, the lodges occupied seats reserved for them in the centre where a large congregation filled the other seating. The absence of Rev. Jacob Healey, the pastor, who was unavoidably kept away by illness, Rev. H. R. Reid, of the Carleton Presbyterian church, conducted the service.

The musical programme, by an augmented choir, was particularly good. It was as follows:

Opening Ode.
Male Quartette—"Remember now
M. W. Long, H. Linkley, W. Lanyon, T. Ripley.
Duet—"Hark, hark My Soul,"
Mrs. M. W. Long, Miss Heyshe.
Solo—"Then Shall the Righteous,"
Fred McKeen.
Anthem by the Choir.
Instrumental Quartet.
M. Perkins, M. W. Long, G. Palmer, W. Lanyon.
Quartette—"Jesus Saviour Pilot Me,"
Mrs. M. W. Long, Mrs. R. Ring, M. W. Long, H. S. Mayes.

The Sermon.
Rev. Gordon Dickie took as his theme "The Spirit of Fraternity" and preached an excellent sermon to the visiting Oddfellows. The spirit of fraternity, he said, should be the life for others as opposed to the life for one's self. There was a very general belief that to be successful in life a man must look out for himself first, and this naturally led to the opinion that a successful man must be selfish. It was a case of the survival of the fittest and the weaker one goes to the wall.

In the spirit of fraternity, or brotherhood, the ideal was to live for others, and the sympathetic spirit very often tended to the survival of the weaker. This was the barrier to the ideal of the Christian life, for the ideal of the Christian life, for the gospel was written for the unfittest, and Christ came on earth to save people, some of whom were unworthy saving. We should prefer one another and have a fraternal love for the community at large.

Fraternal societies had this spirit of brotherly love as their foundation; they helped their brethren by increasing their self-respect and their confidence, and hence, they were men. They also taught their members the responsibility of brotherhood and to love their fellowmen. Men thus learned the lesson that they have more than themselves to live for.

Jesus, in His work on earth, was inspired by charity, said the preacher, "and we should be the same. There is a great development along this line, and the idea of the 20th century is the life for our fellowmen. The spirit of the collective life is rapidly breaking down the barriers of politics, and blotting out prejudices of other kinds.

Classes Against the Masses.
This is the fact in the business world as well as in politics. The great struggle in Great Britain today is not between Liberals and Conservatives, but between the privileged classes and the unprivileged, and all over the world it is the same—the classes against the masses, the trusts against the people.

In closing Rev. Mr. Dickie urged his hearers to live up to their obligation of fraternity and brotherhood, to help the masses, and to be the greatest of these is Charity. In time faith and hope, he said, would not be necessary, but charity or brotherly love was ever vital to the being of manhood in time and through eternity.

At the close of the sermon the procession reformed and marched to the ferry.

Every Item a Feature at Nickle.
The week will be commenced in Nickel Theatre with a complete new line of pictures. New comedies by Mile. Tessier, the blind prima donna, and new illustrated number by Mr. Bragg. Of the pictures the Biograph comedy-drama "The Ranges" will be the most interesting. Here we have a tale of the Californian oil fields, its principal characters being the pretty little juvenile actress so familiar to Biograph enthusiasts and the funny youthful actor, also popular with the crowd. "An Unending Discussion" will be one screen of merriment, and "Dear Old Aunt" is another good comedy. In addition to these three fine pictures, there will be Edison's famous animal story "An Equine Hero," a one act comedietta, "Queen of Burlesque" will start the fun going again. Mile. Tessier has chosen for her opening number Decca's charming comedietta, "May Morning" and Mr. Ralph Bragg has the Indian novelty, "Ran-awa." Orchestra as usual.

CHARACTER BASIS OF TRUE PATRIOTISM

Rev. E. B. Hooper in Annual Sermon to St. George Society Urges Members to Live Up to Traditions.

We do not cease from battle; we will not slouch on the sword. St. George, St. George for England, and England for the Lord. Eighty-five members of St. George's Society joined with a large congregation in singing these words at the annual church service held in St. Paul's (valley) church last evening. An excellent sermon was delivered by Rev. E. Bertram Hooper, rector of St. Paul's and chaplain of the society in which he urged that the members should exemplify in their character and daily conduct the highest ideals of Englishmen and the traditions of the race. This, he said, was the best way to teach true patriotism and love of nationality.

The members of the society headed by the banner and accompanied by the president of St. Andrew's society paraded from their rooms to the church and occupied the centre pews. There was scarcely seating accommodation for the large number who came to the service in addition to the regular congregation.

An excellent musical service was rendered by the choir under the direction of Mr. H. R. Reid. In addition to the patriotic hymns the anthem Jerusalem, was beautifully rendered.

The Sermon.
In speaking to the members of the society Rev. Mr. Hooper said in part: "It is again my privilege on behalf of St. Paul's church to welcome St. George's Society and express pleasure at their visit. I can assure them that the organist and the choir have done their utmost on this occasion, and the members of the congregation have cheerfully given up their places."

"I feel satisfied that the members of the society do regard this event as the mere celebration of the anniversary of St. George but they attach importance to joining with us in the beautiful service of worship of Almighty God who has His part in the making and government of empires. We must recognize God as the source of England's greatness and the stay and strength of the Empire."

"I would first call your attention to the object of St. George's Society as stated in the membership pledge, namely, to foster the spirit of patriotism. The object of the society then is not merely a social club, to smoke and dine together, but to cultivate the love of country among fellow citizens—a love for the dear old land which gave us birth and whose national characteristics we must respect."

"It is exceedingly gratifying that each year an increasing number of societies are observing the anniversary of St. George, the patron saint of England whose cross we have engraved on our banner tonight. To extol St. George, to display the grand old flag, to hold a splendid banquet, however, is not all that is required to teach true patriotism. It must be built up, taught and lived."

The Heart of the Empire.
"The who who recognize Great England as the heart of a greater empire. This was a result of the greatness of the people. If there had been no great Englishmen, there would have been no great Empire. If there had been no great Irishmen and great Scotchmen there would have been no Great Britain, and if there had been no great Englishmen, there would have been no Great Britain, the glorious Empire upon which the sun never sets."

"In Canada, yes, St. John, let it be our motto, the heart of the Empire. Englishman is one to be respected. These sentences spoken such as these, 'He is one of our people more quickly than that of Englishmen,' have made my cheek blush with shame. These were spoken of miserable specimens of our race, but it is the duty of every Englishman to show in his life the traditions and glories of England."

"Those of us who live in the winter-weather of Canada can realize that this is a growing time, for we can look forward to the time when the country is filled up and attains its full growth. It is our opportunity to teach the newcomers love and respect for Canada, and to show them the splendours of patriotism should be taught in every school house and so thoroughly understood that when the child is grown his loyalty will ring strong and true."

What England Gives.
"England has freely given to Canada of her laws and practices, conferred the privilege of responsible government, helped in the foundation of our institutions and the development of our resources. Above all the mother country shares with us the principles and the achievements brought by the blood, courage and sacrifice of her sons for centuries."

As a mother she has cared for the fatherless and when Canada becomes full grown let me express the hope that there may never be a movement for independence which would sever the connection."

In closing, Rev. Mr. Hooper urged devotion and loyalty to the gracious sovereign Edward VII, King, Defender of the Faith, and Pecosmarch.

The congregation then joined in singing God Save the King. The members of St. George's Society filed out while the congregation remained in their places.

Anniversary of Sunday School.
A special musical and song service was held in Centenary church last evening, the occasion being the 70th anniversary of the Sunday school. A number of musical selections were rendered by the choir and a Male Quartette, consisting of Mrs. Deinstadt and Miss Wright. The orchestra of the Sunday school also took part and there were a number of fine choruses. Rev. Dr. C. H. Flanders delivered a short address in which he reviewed the history of the Sunday school and spoke appreciatively of the work of the teachers. F. R. Murray, the superintendent of the school acted as master of ceremonies and M. H. Emerson was the musical director.

CONGREGATIONS URGED

TO FIGHT WHITE PLAGUE

Tuberculosis Sunday Observed in City Churches Yesterday ---Indifference Strongly Condemned.

From quite a number of city pulpits yesterday the ministers urged on the crusaders who are fighting the great white plague, and exhorted the people generally to follow more religiously the gospel that is next to godliness. All the resources of religion, all the powers of art, and all the arms of service, were utilized by the preachers to overthrow the ancient superstition that sickness and disease are visitations sent upon men by an angry and jealous God, and to show that consumption, like many other human ills, instead of being the result of man's personal vices, is caused by the general neglect of the ordinary requirements of public hygiene, and that the innocent suffer as well as the guilty.

Exhortation to greater public and private activity in promoting civic and social well-being was mingled with instruction in the best methods of ministering to the afflicted and preventing the infection of other people. At some of the churches special offerings were taken up to assist the work being carried on by the local society for the prevention of tuberculosis, and in all envelopes were distributed requesting contributions to the movement.

In Brussels Street.
Rev. A. B. Coloe, of the Brussels street Baptist church, preached in the morning from the text, "I was sick and ye visited me."

"Modern communities," he said, "must face the fact that consumption and similar diseases did not spring from the nature of things, and could be regarded as punishments visited by Providence upon men for their personal sins. The young and innocent often fell victims to this disease and all of us were more or less responsible for the sacrifices it required of us."

It was clearly demonstrated that tuberculosis was a preventable disease and could be stamped out if the living conditions of the people were raised to the standard we ought to be able to attain in a new and prosperous country like Canada. Isolated individual efforts cannot satisfactorily cope with the conditions that produced the disease; nor are the efforts of the public authorities alone sufficient to overcome the forces of the disease. A co-operation between the public authorities and private associations and individuals is necessary and a better education of the people in the requirements of sanitary science.

Indifference on the part of any class of the community was sinful. So long as the disease persisted in any part of the city we are all liable to fall a prey to it. Inevitably sooner or later, disease bred in the slums penetrates into the mansion, borne thither by the germicidal waves of heaven, or the flies who are no respecters of persons.

Leinster St. Church.
Rev. Wellington Carr, of the Leinster street Baptist church, in his morning sermon, devoted a good deal of attention to the Anti-Tuberculosis campaign. He pointed out that consumption was caused mainly by unsatisfactory housing conditions, and the lack of fresh air and sunlight in the homes. He cited statistics showing the ravages of the disease, and commended the work being done by the local Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

A great number of homes in this city, he said, had been devastated by this fell disease, and everybody should assist in the movement to stamp it out. He also spoke appreciatively of the work being done by the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, and urged the people to improve the physical condition of the city, and stamping out dirt and ugliness.

St. George's Church.
Rev. W. H. Sampson, rector of St. George's church, preached from the text: "And Jesus went about teaching and preaching, and healing the sick." The anti-tuberculosis crusade was, he said, essentially a religious movement. The gospel of Christ inculcated the care of the body as well as of the soul. Christ not only taught greatness—He went about healing the sick."

"Modern science has shown that tuberculosis is a preventable disease, and we can, by improving the living conditions, hope to eradicate it altogether in time. But the movement must have the support of all classes interested in the welfare of the community. One body, and an evil affecting any class in the community is necessarily the concern of all."

In many of the city churches owing to previous arrangements it was not found convenient to take up the subject. It is, however, the intention of the ministers to refer to the anti-tuberculosis campaign at an early date. In St. Mary's church a lecture by Dr. Thomas Walker will be given in the near future.

WIFE SEES HUSBAND IN DEADLY PERIL

Mrs. Leonard Sees Conductor Leonard Fall Between Cars of Moving Train --- Escaped Death by Miracle.

To stand within a few feet of her husband and see him in peril of death in such a form is a terrible experience for a woman, but it is what Mrs. Leonard, wife of C. P. R. conductor C. P. Leonard was forced to do Saturday evening at the Brownville, Me., station.

Conductor Leonard's home is in Brownville, Me., and it has been his wife's custom to visit the station when her husband's train is due. On Saturday, Mr. Leonard was in charge of an immigrant special with passengers from the Moncton, At Brownville while passing from one car to the other he slipped on the wet platform, and fell between the cars, while the train was moving.

Fortunately, Mr. Leonard's presence of mind did not leave him. He kept his hold of a rail, which he clutched while falling, and in this way was saved from what would certainly have been a fatal accident. Mrs. Leonard was a witness to the accident from the platform, a few feet distant.
